Taft Says GOP Record Will Be Written In '54

Leftover Problems Will Keep Congress Busy, Ohioan Asserts

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) says the second session of the 83rd Congress will have a full-time job writing the Republican record for next year's elections and he expects good results. "It promises to be a very busy session," he commented.

Demos Needle GOP

As an example, Taft said it will be extremely difficult for the lawmakers to start revising the social security laws at the same time they are undertaking thoroughgoing changes in the tax structure.

Although he didn't say so, it was evident Taft felt the Republicans might have to stand in the elections next year on proposals made by a commission scheduled to report on proposed social security changes.

Hopes For T-H Agreement

Taft, now back in New York for a week-end checkup of his ailing hip, said he hopes agreement can be reached soon on an administration program for revising the Taft-Hartley law, but he said settlement of this issue will have to await next session.

The session also is checking to the next a decision on the Reciprocal Trade Agreements program. A one-year extension, scheduled to get approval before Congress adjourns, merely puts off this controversial issue until a year when all of the members of the House and one-third of the Senate will be elected.

Overhauling of the tax laws also may give the Republicans a headache. Next spring will bring an automatic end to some excise taxes and a reduction in the normal corporation tax.

Legislators Rap Military Buying Plan Criticism

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Investigating congressmen today rapped Defense Department management experts for taking up their time with "unfounded criticism" of a program to streamline military buying.

A House armed services investigating subcommittee said the experts had used a "silly interpretation of the law" in labeling the government's single military catalog project a failure. Rep. Hess (R-Ohio) is subcommittee chairman.

The project, ordered by Congress last year, is to lump 15 duplicating inventory lists into a single catalog covering the millions of items used in common by the military services. Congressmen say the new catalog when completed will save up to four billion dollars a year.

The Pentagon's defense management staff reported last January that the first part of the catalog, covering foodstuffs, failed to include all the information required by law and indicated the project would never be completed.

The report was written by Ben G. Huff and signed by Edward J. Sheridan, then acting director of the management staff, a Pentagon advisory group on management problems.

They told the House subcommittee in subsequent hearings that they interpreted the law to require full information on each item, including "performance data."

The subcommittee, in a report issued today, said this "silly interpretation of the law" would have wrecked the program. It said the director of the project was authorized to determine what information is needed.

"How ridiculous it would be to try and state 'performance data' for a hammer or a can of peas!" the subcommittee said. "But there was some evidence that certain members of the defense management staff would go to that extreme."

"Reading absurdities into the text of the law is a distinct disservice to the Congress and to the public!"

Fireworks Claim Only One Life But Traffic Toll Heavy

(By The Associated Press)

The Fourth of July holiday spelled death to mounting numbers of motorists and vacationers. Only one death was caused by fireworks—at a supervised display in Willows, Calif.

Edward Nolte, 15, of Willows, was peering skyward at the colorful display when a four-pound aerial bomb that failed to explode plunged out of the darkness and struck him on the jaw. He was pronounced dead at a hospital.

A total of 294 dead has been counted in holiday accidents that began at 6 p.m. (local time) Friday. Traffic mishaps killed 184, drownings took 84 lives, fireworks one, and miscellaneous accidents 25.

In many instances, holiday fun was turned suddenly to tragedy. Mr. and Mrs. John Calorino of Kansas City, Mo., were crossing a railroad trestle to reach a fishing spot near Beverly, Mo. A Burlington passenger train ap-

Heavy Rain, Mud Curtail Korean Ground Activity

SEOUL, Monday, July 6 (AP)—A driving rain turned the Korean front into a quagmire Sunday. Ground action dwindled and Allied soldiers fought to keep their water-logged bunkers from caving in.

The heaviest fighting was reported south of Virginia Hill on the Eastern Front where two Communist companies—about 300 men—assaulted South Korean 7th Division troops before dawn.

The Korean defenders killed or wounded 100 Chinese, the Eighth Army reported, in beating off the attack despite a Communist artillery barrage of some 4,000 rounds.

Red Jabs Turned Back
Allied troops manning an outpost on Sniper Ridge in the central sector killed or wounded 87 Chinese, the Army said. The Reds threw three light probes against the position.

Other light jabs were turned back southwest of Little Gibraltar on the Western Front and northwest of the Punchbowl on the Eastern Front.

Nineteen B26 Invaders unloaded 38 tons of high explosives on Red front-line positions.

For the third straight day weather interfered with fighter-bomber operations. The Fifth Air Force reported no missions Sunday.

Supply Traffic Slowed
The Air Force said from sunrise to 5 p.m. up to 2 inches of rain fell along the front. Rain continued throughout the night.

Mud slowed but did not halt Army supply traffic on the dirt roads. There were reports of some bunker cave-ins.

Meanwhile, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Eighth Army commander, "conservatively" estimated Communist casualties during June at 70,000. The Taylor estimated indicated half the Chinese soldiers who stormed Allied lines were killed or wounded. Some of the assaults, supported by the greatest Red bombardments of the war, gained up to five miles of ground, however, on the East-Central Front.

Three Missing From Campsite

PINEDALE, Wyo., July 5 (AP)—A prominent Oklahoma City attorney and his two young sons were reported missing today in the rugged Wind River Range of the Bridger National Forest 40 miles southeast of here.

Gordon Rainey, 40, and his sons, Gordon Jr., 13, and Tom, 8, were discovered missing from their campsite near Lake Vera Friday.

They packed into the wilderness area by horseback last Monday from Boulder Lake ranch, 30 miles southeast of Pinedale. Floyd Bousman, ranch owner, helped them set up camp then returned to the ranch 12 miles away.

Bousman said he checked the camp Wednesday but found no one there. Assuming the trio had gone fishing, he returned to the ranch. Bousman said he noted washed clothing hanging up to dry and most of the trio's food provisions at the site.

Drunken U. S. Airman Kills Two Soldiers

SEOUL, Monday, July 6 (AP)—The Air Force said today a drunken American airman sprayed a barracks room with bullets from his carbine last Friday night, killing two GIs and wounding two others.

An Air Force spokesman identified the airman as S. Sgt. Paul M. Redmond of Shavertown, Pa. Redmond was being held at the Fifth Air Force correction center in Taegu.

Reds Report Ships Sunk
SAN FRANCISCO, July 5 (AP)—The Peiping Red Radio said today a North Korean Communist coastal artillery unit sank or damaged "three enemy war vessels" June 17.

LOCRI, Sicily, July 5 (AP)—Stillisano Rocco, a 93-year-old peasant, has passed his examinations and been graduated from elementary school here. His fifth grade teacher said Rocco was particularly good at history.

Graduates At 93
The National Safety Council estimated 40 million cars were moving upon the highways during the two-day holiday. It also estimated that highway accidents would claim 290 lives before midnight Sunday.

Robertson, Rhee Confer In Ninth Secret Session

SEOUL, Monday, July 6 (AP)—Prospects for a South Korean-U.S. accord on a Korean armistice remained clouded in doubt today while Red China's official radio appeared busy trying to widen the differences between the two allies.

The broadcast raised speculation in Seoul that the Communists were hinting they might sign a truce with the United Nations regardless of South Korean objections.

South Korea's President Syngman Rhee and Walter S. Robertson, President Eisenhower's special envoy, met again today in their ninth secret session in the 11th day of U. S. efforts to gain Rhee's backing for an armistice.

No Sunday Meeting
An expected meeting between the two Sunday failed to take place. Instead, Rhee told Associated Press Correspondent Bill Shinn he did not know whether the deadlocked talks with President Eisenhower's emissary would succeed.

"I am trying to clear up misunderstandings," said the President. He has adamantly opposed a truce agreement which would end the fighting with Korea still divided.

Meanwhile, Peiping Radio for possibly the first time in three years of Korean warfare had almost kind words to say about the United States.

The broadcast Sunday night spoke of "the spirit of independence and democracy of the American people."

ROK Army Bars Freed POWs
At Pusan, South Korea's defense minister Sohn Wun II said the ROK government issued strict orders Friday prohibiting escaped North Koreans from enlisting in the ROK army.

Previously the South Korean government has taken the position any Korean could enter the army and fight for the country.

It was Rhee's order to ROK guards to release the prisoners that disrupted truce negotiations June 18 just as the armistice was ready for signing.

Highly placed persons in Seoul have expressed an opinion that the Reds will agree to sign a truce even if the U. N. did not supply a guarantee that Rhee's forces will observe the cease fire agreement.

These sources reasoned the Communists now feel they have more to gain by stopping the shooting than in prolonging it.

Trumans Head Back To Independence, Mo.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 5 (AP)—A short, slender man in the white sport shirt and slacks watched the gasoline attendant fill up the tank of his car and then turned to the lady on the front seat.

"Bess, mark that down. That's 11 gallons at $3.45."

Mrs. Bess Truman nodded and pulled a little black notebook out of the glove compartment to add the new figures to a growing list.

That small ceremony, said former President Harry S. Truman, has been a ritual on his current motor trip from his home in Independence to the East Coast and now on his return.

The Trumans left New York City at 6 a. m. (EST), today on their way back to Independence with the former Chief Executive at the wheel of their black sedan.

Police said the number of their automobile was the same as that given by the witnesses.

The couple denied any connection with the killing, however, and police said their automobile bore no blood stains or other signs of violence.

Girl's Brain Pierced By Mystery Bullet

LOS ANGELES, July 5 (AP)—A 3-year-old girl whose brain was pierced last night by a mystery bullet as she stood with her parents watching a fireworks show lay near death today in Children's Hospital.

Police said little Linda Soin of nearby Puente was standing outside Memorial Coliseum when she suddenly screamed and dropped to the ground. Brain surgery disclosed a bullet, probably of .32 caliber, pierced the brain and lodged at the base of the skull. Doctors said it would be too dangerous to attempt to remove the slug immediately.

13 GIs Hurt In Rail Crash
SEOUL, July 5 (AP)—An empty freight train crashed into the rear end of an Allied passenger train in Southeast Korea last night, slightly injuring 13 American soldiers.

Their names were not released.

Reds Hit Idea Of U.S.-Korea Defense Pact

Hate-America Theme Dropped Only Briefly By Radio In Peiping

TOKYO, Monday, July 6 (AP)—Peiping Radio issued a thinly veiled warning today that it still would consider a mutual defense pact between the U. S. and South Korea proof of military support for President Syngman Rhee's plans to continue the Korean War.

"It is clear that anyone who supports Rhee is world public enemy No. 1," said the broadcast. It did not mention the U. S. by name.

Communist broadcasts thus returned to their normal belligerent tone after briefly dropping the hate America theme on Sunday.

Peiping has inveighed before against the defense pact.

Correspondents Quoted
The latest broadcasts, as heard in Tokyo, were attributed to special correspondents of the New China News Agency in Kaesong, Red truce headquarters.

Correspondent Wu Min was quoted as saying "If the American government really wants an armistice in Korea, it must take all measures to deal with and prevent the criminal actions of the Rhee clique to undermine the prisoner of war agreement and obstruct the armistice."

"Further American failure to take drastic steps and actions against the Rhee plot will only reveal that the American command is continuing to connive at and encourage Rhee's criminal plans against peace."

Earlier Broadcast Mild
Another broadcast, similar in tone, reassured that South Korea and the Chinese Nationalists were planning to detain "by force" large numbers of captured Chinese Red prisoners.

Such charges have been aired frequently in the past.

The earlier Sunday broadcast was astonishingly mild toward the U. S. but blasted Rhee as a "political gangster" and truce-wrecker.

Some observers felt this could mean the Reds might be willing to sign a truce in Korea even if Rhee refuses to accept it. Others saw it as just one more attempt to capitalize on the impasse between the U. S. and the Republic of Korea.

N. Y. Gang-Style Murder Probed

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—The bullet-marked body of a man was thrown to a Bronx street from a speeding sedan today in a mystery-shrouded killing.

A chauffeur's license found on the body tentatively identified the victim as James V. Manzo, 32, of the Bronx.

Police said Manzo was believed to have been in the contracting business. They said a promissory note for $1,500 was found on the body, but gave no further details.

The man had been shot behind the left ear and under the chin.

Two teen-age boys and two adults said they witnessed the incident. A license number was obtained which resulted in the questioning of a man and woman two hours later.

Police said the number of their automobile was the same as that given by the witnesses.

The couple denied any connection with the killing, however, and police said their automobile bore no blood stains or other signs of violence.

Administration Seeking Fairer Taxation System

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said the administration will present to Congress early next year a new tax bill aimed at giving Americans a fairer system of taxation.

Right now, Humphrey declared, the nation's tax structure is a jumble of laws piled one on top of the other.

But exactly what sort of taxation will be proposed in the plan isn't clear now, the Treasury head added. Humphrey refused under questioning on the NBC television show "Youth Wants to Know" to film before-hand—to speculate on how the plan will shape up.

Fairer System Sought
"What we are doing," he said, "is studying all manners and means of taxation."

"We are trying to work out a much fairer tax bill than the one that is now in vogue to raise a lot of money and we are studying all kinds of things and until that study is finished, we have no opinion on any particular phase of the matter."

Humphrey gave that answer to a question: "What do you think of the feasibility of a general sales tax to increase government revenue?"

Sales, Excise Taxes Opposed
Opposition to either a retail sales tax or a general manufacturers' excise tax was voiced by Rep. Eberhardt (D-Pa.), who told another NBC television (American Forum of the Air) audience that such a levy "violates the principle of taxation based on ability to pay."

He appeared with Charles R. Sligh Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, to debate the NAM's proposal for a general excise tax to replace what Sligh called "this hodgepodge system" of present excise taxes.

New Strikes, Farm Unrest Are Reported

Communists Reveal Extent Of Measures Taken Against Revolt

BERLIN, July 5 (AP)—East Germany's Communist government revealed today 50,000 persons have been arrested for rebelling against the regime.

The staggering total, announced by Justice Minister Max Fechner, was the first public official admission of the extent of repressive measures taken to crack unrest in East Germany.

Publication of the figure came as new industrial strikes and discontent among the farmers were reported throughout the Soviet zone. The Communist government admitted that the spirit of revolt is still alive.

Many of the 50,000 are being gradually released largely to appease the sullen and bitterly resentful public.

Revealing Speeches
Top officials of the regime, pedaling up and down the unruly East zone with promises of better living standards ahead, made revealing disclosures in their week-end speeches. Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl published an "open letter" to the farmers, urging them to get on with the job of bringing their crops to harvest and in it he conceded that many are still dissatisfied with mere promises.

"Organize yourselves and protect your machinery," Grotewohl wrote. "Turn every saboteur over to the people's police."

There have been reports that farmers had deliberately destroyed Russian-made tractors and threshing machines rather than continue delivering their crops for Soviet consumption.

Public "Grateful"
Deputy Prime Minister Otto Nuschke wrote an editorial in his newspaper, Neue Zeit, designed to show that the East German public now is "grateful" for the Red Army action in smashing the rebellion. But in it, he said:

"At first the workers did not fully appreciate the action of the Soviet tanks but today they know the Soviets saved the peace and the holy question of German unity."

Other spokesmen gave isolated instances of examples to show the 180-degree swing away from communism is being carried out. In Potsdam it was announced that the Rev. Franz Busch, Catholic priest sentenced at Easter to five years as "an enemy of the state," has been pardoned. New credits for farmers and private industry were granted by the state banking system.

Iowa Storm Causes Extensive Damage
WATERLOO, Ia., July 5 (AP)—Extensive damage was caused in the Waterloo area late this afternoon when a thunderstorm, accompanied by winds which carried gusts up to 100 miles an hour, tore through the city. One householder was hurt when a tree fell on him.

The Waterloo storm developed as a squall line passed across the state causing wind damage in scattered Iowa areas. It was the second such Iowa storm in 24 hours. One Iowan was killed by lightning.

Taft Says GOP Record Will Be Written In '54

Leftover Problems Will Keep Congress Busy, Ohioan Asserts

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) says the second session of the 83rd Congress will have a full-time job writing the Republican record for next year's elections and he expects good results.

"It promises to be a very busy session," he commented.

The Senate Republican leader intimated in an interview, however, that the Congress which meets next January may be so busy on leftover problems from this session it will not have time to get around to all of the GOP's 1952 campaign pledges.

Demos Needle GOP

As an example, Taft said it will be extremely difficult for the lawmakers to start revising the social security laws at the same time they are undertaking thoroughgoing changes in the tax structure.

Although he didn't say so, it was evident Taft felt the Republicans might have to stand in the elections next year on proposals made by a commission scheduled to report on proposed social security changes.

Democrats already have begun needing the Republicans on this score, laying down in the Senate a program to expand the social security system and to increase benefits under it.

The Fourth of July holiday spelled death to mounting numbers of motorists and vacationers. Only one death was caused by fireworks—at a supervised display in Willows, Calif.

Edward Nolte, 15, of Willows, was peering skyward at the colorful display when a four-pound aerial bomb failed to explode and plunged out of the darkness and struck him on the jaw. He was pronounced dead at a hospital.

A total of 294 dead has been counted in holiday accidents that began at 6 p.m. (local time) Friday. Traffic mishaps killed 184, drownings took 84 lives, fireworks one, and miscellaneous accidents 25.

In many instances, holiday fun was turned suddenly to tragedy. Mr. and Mrs. John Calorino of Kansas City, Mo., were crossing a railroad trestle to reach a fishing spot near Beverly, Mo. A Burlington passenger train ap-

Robertson, Rhee Confer In Ninth Secret Session

SEOUL, Monday, July 6 (AP)—Prospects for a South Korean-U.S. accord on a Korean armistice remained clouded in doubt today while Red China's official radio appeared busy trying to widen the differences between the two allies.

The broadcast raised speculation in Seoul that the Communists were hinting they might sign a truce with the United Nations regardless of South Korean objections.

South Korea's President Syngman Rhee and Walter S. Robertson, President Eisenhower's special envoy, met again today—their ninth secret session in the 11th day of U. S. efforts to gain Rhee's backing for an armistice.

No Sunday Meeting

An expected meeting between the two Sunday failed to take place. Instead, Rhee told Associated Press Correspondent Bill Shinn he did not know whether the deadlocked talks with President Eisenhower's emissary would succeed.

"I am trying to clear up misunderstandings," said the President. He has adamantly opposed a truce agreement which would end the fighting with Korea still divided.

Meanwhile, Peiping Radio for possibly the first time in three years of Korean warfare had almost kind words to say about the United States.

ROK Army Bars Freed POWs

At Pusan, South Korea's defense minister Sohn Wun Il said the ROK government issued strict orders Friday prohibiting escaped North Koreans from enlisting in the ROK army.

Previously the South Korean government has taken the position any Korean could enter the army and fight for the country.

It was Rhee's order to ROK guards to release the prisoners that disrupted truce negotiations June 18 just as the armistice was ready for signing.

Highly placed persons in Seoul have expressed an opinion that the Reds will agree to sign a truce even if the U. N. did not supply a guarantee that Rhee's forces will observe the cease fire agreement.

These sources reasoned the Communists now feel they have more to gain by stopping the shooting than in prolonging it.

Trumans Head Back To Independence, Mo.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 5 (AP)—A short, slender man in the white sport shirt and slacks watched the gasoline attendant fill up the tank of his car and then turned to the lady on the front seat.

"Bess, mark that down. That's 11 gallons at $3.45."

Mrs. Bess Truman nodded and pulled a little black notebook out of the glove compartment to add the new figures to a growing list.

That small ceremony, said former President Harry S. Truman, has been a ritual on his current motor trip from his home in Independence to the East Coast and now on his return.

Drunken U. S. Airman Kills Two Soldiers

SEOUL, Monday, July 6 (AP)—The Air Force said today a drunken American airman sprayed a barracks room with bullets from his carbine last Friday night, killing two GIs and wounding two others.

An Air Force spokesman identified the airman as S. Sgt. Paul M. Redmond of Shavertown, Pa. Redmond was being held at the Fifth Air Force correction center in Taegu.

Reds Hit Idea Of U.S.-Korea Defense Pact

Hate-America Theme Dropped Only Briefly By Radio In Peiping

TOKYO, Monday, July 6 (AP)—Peiping Radio issued a thinly veiled warning today that it still would consider a mutual defense pact between the U. S. and South Korea proof of military support for President Syngman Rhee's plans to continue the Korean War.

"It is clear that anyone who supports Rhee is world public enemy No. 1," said the broadcast. It did not mention the U. S. by name.

Communist broadcasts thus returned to their normal belligerent tone after briefly dropping the hate America theme on Sunday.

Peiping has inveighed before against the defense pact.

Correspondents Quoted

The latest broadcasts, as heard in Tokyo, were attributed to special correspondents of the New China News Agency in Kaesong, Red truce headquarters.

Correspondent Wu Min was quoted as saying "if the American government really wants an armistice in Korea, it must take all measures to deal with and prevent the criminal actions of the Rhee clique to undermine the prisoner of war agreement and obstruct the armistice."

"Further American failure to take drastic steps and actions against the Rhee plot will only reveal that the American command is continuing to connive at and encourage Rhee's criminal plans against peace."

Earlier Broadcast Mild

Another broadcast, similar in tone, reasserted that South Korea and the Chinese Nationalists were planning to detain "by force" large numbers of captured Chinese Red prisoners.

Such charges have been aired frequently in the past.

The earlier Sunday broadcast was astonishingly mild toward the U. S. but blasted Rhee as a "political gangster" and truce-wrecker. Some observers felt this could mean the Reds might be willing to sign a truce in Korea even if Rhee refuses to accept it. Others said it was just one more attempt to capitalize on the impasse between the U. S. and the Republic of Korea.

N. Y. Gang-Style Murder Probed

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—The bullet-marked body of a man was thrown to a Bronx street from a speeding sedan today in a mystery-shrouded killing.

A chauffeur's license found on the body tentatively identified the victim as James V. Manzo, 32, of the Bronx.

Police said Manzo was believed to have been in the contracting business. They said a promissory note for $1,500 was found on the body, but gave no further details.

The man had been shot behind the left ear and under the chin.

Two teenage boys and two adults said they witnessed the incident. A license number was obtained which resulted in the questioning of a man and woman two hours later.

Police said the number of their automobile was the same as that given by the witnesses.

The couple denied any connection with the killing, however, and police said their automobile bore no blood stains or other signs of violence.

Girl's Brain Pierced By Mystery Bullet

LOS ANGELES, July 5 (AP)—A 3-year-old girl whose brain was pierced last night by a mystery bullet as she stood with her parents watching a fireworks show lay near death today in Children's Hospital.

Police said little Linda Soin of nearby Puente was standing outside Memorial Coliseum when she suddenly screamed and dropped to the ground. Brain surgery disclosed a bullet, probably of .32 caliber, pierced the brain and lodged at the base of the skull. Doctors said it would be too dangerous to attempt to remove the slug immediately.

13 GIs Hurt In Rail Crash

SEOUL, July 5 (AP)—An empty freight train crashed into the rear end of an Allied passenger train in Southeast Korea last night, slightly injuring 13 American soldiers.

Their names were not released.

Glasses At Four Months

Four-month-old Paul Delaney, Nahant, Mass., peeks over his new glasses after he was fitted for them at Boston following two operations for congenital cataracts. Hospital attendants say Paul is pleased with the glasses and doesn't try to take them off but occasionally knocks them off when he swings his arms.

Administration Seeking Fairer Taxation System

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said the administration will present to Congress early next year a new tax bill aimed at giving Americans a fairer system of taxation.

Right now, Humphrey declared, the nation's tax structure is a jumble of laws piled one on top of the other.

But exactly what sort of taxation will be proposed in the plan isn't clear now, the Treasury head added. Humphrey refused to question on the NBC television show "Youth Wants to Know"—filmed beforehand—to speculate on how the plan will shape up.

Fairer System Sought

"What we are doing," he said, "is studying all manners and means of taxation."

"We are trying to work out a much fairer tax bill than the one that is now in vogue to raise a lot of money and we are studying all kinds of things and until that study is finished, we have no opinion on any particular phase of the matter."

Humphrey gave that answer to a question: "What do you think of the feasibility of a general sales tax to increase government revenue?"

Sales, Excise Taxes Opposed

Opposition to either a retail sales tax or a general manufacturers' excise tax was voiced by Rep. Eberhardt (D-Pa.), who told another NBC television (American Forum of the Air) audience that such a levy "violates the principle of taxation based on ability to pay."

He appeared with Charles R. Sligh Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, to debate the NAM's proposal for a general excise tax to replace what Sligh called "this hodgepodge system" of present excise taxes.

Britisher Is Forced Aground At Ocean City On Last Leg Of 7,000-Mile Trip In Sailboat

OCEAN CITY, Md., July 5 (AP)—A 32-year-old wind-burned Britisher, who sailed the Atlantic alone in his 23-foot sailboat, was forced aground here early today on the final leg of a 7,000 mile journey to New York.

Colin L. Fox of Osterly, Middlesex, told Coast Guardsmen and reporters he had set out from England nearly two years ago with no previous knowledge of sailing or navigation.

"I find the sea harder to contend with than any woman I ever met," he said in describing his voyage. "But I'll get to New York if I have to take what's left of the boat in a suitcase."

Fox, who said he was a turf accountant in England—corresponding to the American racing bookie—left Lynton, Hampshire,

Motorist Drags U.N. Flag In Dust

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP)—Edmund S. Mittler of suburban Oak Park spent part of the Fourth of July dragging the United Nations flag in the dust behind his automobile.

Mittler, a retired contractor, who says he heard few objections to his demonstration, trailed the flag from his rear bumper beneath a sign which read "Alger Hiss' U. N. Commie rag."

He told an onlooker, "I'm against any organization that undermines the Constitution of the United States."

There have been reports that farmers had deliberately destroyed Russian-made tractors and threshing machines rather than continue delivering their crops for Soviet consumption.

Public "Grateful"

Deputy Prime Minister Otto Nuschke wrote an editorial in his newspaper, Neue Zeit, designed to show that the East German public now is "grateful" for the Red Army action in smashing the rebellion. But in it, he said:

"At first the workers did not fully appreciate the action of the Soviet tanks but today they know the Soviets saved the peace and the holy question of German unity."

Other spokesmen gave isolated instances of examples to show the 180-degree swing away from communism is being carried out. In Potsdam it was announced that the Rev. Franz Busch, Catholic priest sentenced at Easter to five years as "an enemy of the state," has been pardoned. New credits for farmers and private industry were granted by the state banking system.

Iowa Storm Causes Extensive Damage

WATERLOO, Ia., July 5 (AP)—Extensive damage was caused in the Waterloo area late this afternoon when a thunderstorm, accompanied by winds which carried gusts up to 100 miles an hour, tore through the city. One householder was hurt when a tree fell on him.

The Waterloo storm developed as a squall line passed across the state causing wind damage in scattered Iowa areas. It was the second such Iowa storm in 24 hours. One Iowan was killed by lightning.

New Strikes, Farm Unrest Are Reported

Communists Reveal Extent Of Measures Taken Against Revolt

BERLIN, July 5 (AP)—East Germany's Communist government revealed today 50,000 persons have been arrested for rebelling against the regime.

The staggering total, announced by Justice Minister Max Fechner, was the first public official admission of the extent of repressive measures taken to crack unrest in East Germany.

Publication of the figure came as new industrial strikes and discontent among the farmers were reported throughout the Soviet zone. The Communist government admitted that the spirit of revolt is still alive.

Many of the 50,000 are being gradually released largely to appease the sullen and bitterly resentful public.

Revealing Speeches

Top officials of the regime, pedaling up and down the unruly East zone with promises of better living standards ahead, made revealing disclosures in their week-end speeches. Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl published an "open letter" to the farmers, urging them to get on with the job of bringing their crops to harvest and in it he conceded that many are still dissatisfied with mere promises.

"Organize yourselves and protect your machinery," Grotewohl wrote. "Turn every saboteur over to the people's police."

Diplomats Warn Red Satellite Riots Shouldn't Be Overrated

Feel Russia Still Holds Full Control

(Editor's Note: AP Bureau Chief Richard O'Regan has been stationed in Vienna for three years, digesting newspapers from the Communist satellites, listening to their broadcasts, feeling the temper and pulse of regimes which do not welcome free reporters. In the following dispatch, O'Regan, with the aid of Western diplomats in Vienna, assesses the meaning of the latest developments — violent and otherwise — in the East European Communist countries.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA, Austria, July 5 (AP) — Is Russia's East European satellite empire crumbling and about to fall?

Is this the meaning of the Berlin and Czech riots, or reported martial law in West Poland, or reported clashes in Rumania?

Western diplomats in Vienna said today they do not believe so despite the impression left in the West by week-end government shakeups and reported disturbances behind the Iron Curtain. They believe the Kremlin and its puppet leaders in the satellite countries have the restlessness of 70 million East Europeans under control.

To meet that discontent, the Communist regimes are reacting both with force and with concessions. Force has been used in Berlin and Czechoslovakia, "kindness" has been used in Hungary and Rumania.

And throughout the entire area a fundamental change of Communist tactics in dealing with the subjugated East European peoples appears in the making.

The Western diplomats say the reports of disturbances are of immense significance, but they cautioned that they "must not be overrated." They said they are merely signals that the Kremlin's past policy of treating East Europeans as slaves has been wrong, and that the Kremlin knows it and is changing it.

The diplomats say they believe the new Communist gestures to the dissatisfied workers of East Europe were planned before the East Berlin and Czechoslovak outbreaks. Fear that these disturbances would spread probably speeded them up.

European Beauty Contestants Arrive

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP) — A dozen beauties from as many nations arrived today to seek the "Miss Universe" title at Long Beach, Calif.

The girls arrived in two groups on planes from Europe. A vanguard of contestants from Latin American countries arrived yesterday.

Most of the beauties are spending a few days here before leaving for Long Beach for the contest July 9 to 19.

Bulgaria Okays Forced Labor

VIENNA, Austria, July 5 (AP) — Communist Bulgaria has legalized forced labor, it was revealed today.

The Soviet satellite's leaders have enacted a law whereby a Bulgarian worker who leaves his job without permission by his manager, and a young apprentice who quits his professional school face imprisonment and heavy fines.

Two Bulgarian newspapers, reaching Vienna revealed the new law was enacted by the country's top Communist leaders, despite fierce opposition by experts in the Bulgarian Communist parliament's legal board. They did not say when the law was enacted, or if it was approved unanimously by the puppet parliament.

The edict, published in the "Gazette of the Presidium of the Bulgarian National Assembly," is called the "law for the strengthening of labor in enterprises and public offices." It stipulates that a worker in state, co-operative or public enterprises may not leave his job without permission by the manager, and he will be punished with two to four months imprisonment or labor camp if he does so.

The manager of an enterprise who does not report violators to the authorities will face the same punishment.

Bolivian Indian Raiders Kill 15

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 5 (AP) — The toll of several days of violence caused by raiding Indians in the Cochabamba Valley was officially placed at 15 dead and 35 people seriously injured, telephone reports from Cochabamba City stated today. No foreigners are listed among casualties.

The Bolivian ministers of government and agricultural affairs arrived yesterday in Cochabamba and inspected the troubled area, which is the more densely populated region of Bolivia.

It has been impossible to determine so far the total amount of material damages. Reports from the town of Tarata said 90 per cent of the homes were sacked by Indians identified with farm labor unions.

Last Thursday the raiders arrived at the suburbs of Cochabamba City, but were halted by authorities. This morning a gang of Indians was reported heading toward the town of Totora, but the Farm Labor Union sent a delegation to dissuade them and avoid further bloodshed.

Gas Truck-Car Crash Claims Second Life

NEPTUNE, N. J., July 5 (AP) — The fiery crash of a gasoline tank truck and a car Friday claimed its second victim last night.

Mrs. Frances Fussell of Silver Spring, Md., whose husband, Willis, 72, was trapped and burned to death in their car, died in Pitkin Memorial Hospital of burns.

She was critically burned when a tank truck, seeking to avoid a collision, overturned, drenching the Fussell auto with flaming gasoline. The truck driver, Thomas Viracola, 63, of West Long Branch, was in critical condition in the same hospital.

Senators See Early Break In Money Measure Logjam

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP) — Two Senate Appropriations Committee members said today they look for House action shortly to break a growing logjam of bills to finance government operations the next 12 months.

The House so far has failed to appoint conferees to settle differences with the Senate on five appropriations bills carrying more than three billion dollars for the new fiscal year that began July 1.

A $3,444,145,000 appropriation bill for the Treasury and Post Office Departments is the only regular supply measure enacted thus far. It got through for one reason. The Senate accepted it without change as it passed the House, thus sending it directly to President Eisenhower for his signature.

In five other money bills, difference amounts have been voted by the two branches and these will have to be adjusted by conference committees.

The Senate has appointed its conferees but the House has not—even though one of the bills cleared both branches as long ago as May 20.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD) said the House Appropriations Committee, headed by Rep. Taber (R-NY), has been "trying to stall" until it can get a complete picture of the spending program.

"The Senate has suggested that conferees be appointed, but the House wants to wait," he said in an interview.

Another member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.), said he understood the House had taken the position it would not appoint any conferees until after July 6.

Dice Game Quarrel Climaxed By Slaying

CENTREVILLE, Md., July 5 (AP) — A July 4 shooting in an oyster shanty at nearby Grasonville ended in the death of Lorenzo Elton Dennis, 34, Negro, and the arrest of Charles Edward Johnson, 30, Negro, on a murder charge.

State police said Dennis was shot with a small rifle after a quarrel which followed a dice game in the shanty. Dennis was killed in his home next door.

Trooper Robert Crocker arrested Johnson 20 minutes after the shooting and placed him in Queen Anne's county jail here.

Doctor Treats Self After Mishap At Sea

OCEAN CITY, Md., July 5 (AP) — Dr. E. Ellsworth Cook of Baltimore was on the road to recovery today after treating himself at sea before Coast Guardsmen arrived to render aid.

Cook's foot was caught in a spinning flywheel yesterday when he slipped aboard his boat while looking for a leak. The vessel was 12 miles off Ocean City at the time.

The Johns Hopkins Hospital staff member radioed for help, treating his injuries with the aid of his wife until a Coast Guard craft arrived.

Romanian Reds Try To Appease Hungry People

VIENNA, Austria, July 5 (AP) —

Fear of anti-Communist rebellion in Eastern Europe apparently has reached Rumania, forcing that Soviet satellite country's leaders to dig into food reserves to appease the hungry, embittered people.

Signs pointing this way in Rumania have been observed less than a month after rioting by overworked and undernourished workers in Czechoslovakia and East Germany. There have been reports of similar trouble in Poland.

The Bucharest radio announced early today that the Communist-controlled Rumanian government has ordered additional rations of bread, flour products, potatoes, vegetables, sugar and oil.

The increases will be effective next Saturday in Bucharest, the Rumanian capital, and the surrounding regions. This step apparently is being taken to prepare for the forthcoming congress of the World Federation of Democratic Youth in Bucharest. Elsewhere in Rumania, the increased rations will be available sometime between July 16 and 21.

The Red regime's move follows recent reports of riots and plunderings of Communist collective farms near Bucharest. That area has been affected by food shortages in recent years.

Fires Sweep Two Towns

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 5 (AP) — Fires raged in two small Swedish towns today causing damage estimated at eight million crowns ($1,600,000).

Two blocks were destroyed in the central part of Ljungby, a small town in the southern district of Smaland.

The other fire occurred at the West Coast town of Lysekil, where eight buildings were destroyed.

Today the flames, being fought by nearly 1,000 men, broke out anew at three points—Cooper Canyon, near Buckhorn Camp and along Santiago Canyon.

The blaze today jumped the Angeles Crest Highway, main artery linking Los Angeles with Palmdale and the Antelope Valley.

The fire, worst in the area in 11 years has been steadily expanding northeast and northwest as it burns down the eastern slope of the San Gabriels, aided by 90-degree weather, low humidity and gusty winds from the desert.

Flames have charred 36,000 acres and destroyed at least eight dwellings since the fire broke out in the Sulphur Springs area 25 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Earth Getting Hotter Expert Sees Future Man Regulating The Weather

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP) — The weather, in case you hadn't noticed it, is getting hotter all the time. But the weatherman thinks he can do something about it.

Not tomorrow or the next day, mind you, but one of these days. The idea is a little Buck Rogersish, but the weather people aren't fooling when they start talking about space platforms and changing the content of the atmosphere.

Dr. Harry Wexler, chief of the scientific services division of the U. S. Weather Bureau, described the idea today.

"The sun, of course, is responsible for the weather," he said, "and many people believe that solar radiation governs temperatures on the earth."

"But," he added, "there are many things in our atmosphere that interfere with solar radiation. Dust, for instance, and the amount of carbon dioxide in the air. Not atom bombs, though. They dissipate too quickly."

Mark Twain once said that "everybody complains about the weather but nobody does anything about it," and Wexler said that's pretty largely true right now, but it may not be for long.

"We could probably regulate the weather right now," he said, "if we had instruments close enough to the sun to measure the variations of solar radiation."

"Then we could compare that with our ground measurements and learn the effect of the atmospheric resistance."

Doctor Treats Self After Mishap At Sea OCEAN CITY, Md., July 5 (AP) — Dr. E. Ellsworth Cook of Baltimore was on the road to recovery today after treating himself at sea before Coast Guardsmen arrived to render aid. Cook's foot was caught in a spinning flywheel yesterday when he slipped aboard his boat while looking for a leak. The vessel was 12 miles off Ocean City at the time. The Johns Hopkins Hospital staff member radioed for help, treating his injuries with the aid of his wife until a Coast Guard craft arrived. He was taken to Peninsula General Hospital in Salisbury for treatment of severe cuts on his heel.

Gas Truck-Car Crash Claims Second Life NEPTUNE, N. J., July 5 (AP) — The fiery crash of a gasoline tank truck and a car Friday claimed its second victim last night. Mrs. Frances Fussell of Silver Spring, Md., whose husband, Willis, 72, was trapped and burned to death in their car, died in Pitkin Memorial Hospital of burns. She was critically burned when a tank truck, seeking to avoid a collision, overturned, drenching the Fussell auto with flaming gasoline. The truck driver, Thomas Viracola, 63, of West Long Branch, was in critical condition in the same hospital.

Diplomats Warn Red Satellite Riots Shouldn't Be Overrated

Feel Russia Still Holds Full Control

(Editor's Note: AP Bureau Chief Richard O'Regan has been stationed in Vienna for three years, digesting newspapers from the Communist satellites, listening to their broadcasts, feeling the temper and pulse of regimes which do not welcome free reporters. In the following dispatch, O'Regan, with the aid of Western diplomats in Vienna, assesses the meaning of the latest developments — violent and otherwise — in the East European Communist countries.

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA, Austria, July 5 (AP) — Is Russia's East European satellite empire crumbling and about to fall?

Is this the meaning of the Berlin and Czech riots, or reported martial law in West Poland, or reported clashes in Romania?

Western diplomats in Vienna said today they do not believe so. Despite the impression left in the West by week-end government shakeups and reported disturbances behind the Iron Curtain, they believe the Kremlin and its puppet leaders in the satellite countries have the restlessness of 70 million East Europeans under control.

To meet that discontent, the Communist regimes are reacting both with force and with concessions. Force has been used in Berlin and Czechoslovakia, "kindness" has been used in Hungary and Romania.

And throughout the entire area, a fundamental change of Communist tactics in dealing with the subjugated East European peoples appears in the making.

The Western diplomats say the reports of disturbances are of immense significance, but they cautioned that they "must not be overrated." They said they are merely signals that the Kremlin's past policy of treating East Europeans as slaves has been wrong, and that the Kremlin knows it and is changing it.

The diplomats say they believe the new Communist gestures to the dissatisfied workers of East Europe were planned before the East Berlin and Czechoslovak outbreaks. Fear that these disturbances would spread probably speeded them up.

European Beauty Contestants Arrive

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP) — A dozen beauties from as many nations arrived today to seek the "Miss Universe" title at Long Beach, Calif.

The girls arrived in two groups on planes from Europe. A vanguard of contestants from Latin American countries arrived yesterday.

Conn. Editor Dies

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 5 (AP) — Roger A. Connolly, 52, managing editor of the New Haven Register and president of the Connecticut circuit of The Associated Press, died today in New Haven Hospital. He was admitted recently following a heart attack.

NATIONALIST TROOPS KEEP "SHARP" IN INDOCHINA—For four years during their internment in Indochina, Chinese nationalist troops kept in shape with constant training, even though they had no weapons or other military equipment. Here, soldiers use wooden guns in realistic hand-to-hand combat. They were among the 20,000 fighting men and 9,000 dependents of Lt. Gen. Huang Chieh's First Army repatriated to Formosa.

Bulgaria Okays Forced Labor

VIENNA, Austria, July 5 (AP) — Communist Bulgaria has legalized forced labor, it was revealed today.

The Soviet satellite's leaders have enacted a law whereby a Bulgarian worker who leaves his job without permission by his manager, and a young apprentice who quits his professional school face imprisonment and heavy fines.

Two Bulgarian newspapers, reaching Vienna revealed the new law was enacted by the country's top Communist leaders, despite fierce opposition by experts in the Bulgarian Communist parliament's legal board. They did not say when the law was enacted, or if it was approved unanimously by the puppet parliament.

The edict, published in the "Gazette of the Presidium of the Bulgarian National Assembly," is called the "law for the strengthening of labor in enterprises and public offices." It stipulates that a worker in state, co-operative or public enterprises may not leave his job without permission by the manager, and he will be punished with two to four months imprisonment or labor camp if he does so.

The manager of an enterprise who does not report violators to the authorities will face the same punishment.

Bolivian Indian Raiders Kill 15

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 5 (AP) — The toll of several days of violence caused by raiding Indians in the Cochabamba Valley was officially placed at 15 dead and 35 people seriously injured, telephone reports from Cochabamba City stated today. No foreigners are listed among casualties.

The Bolivian ministers of government and agricultural affairs arrived yesterday in Cochabamba and inspected the troubled area, which is the more densely populated region of Bolivia.

It has been impossible to determine so far the total amount of material damages. Reports from the town of Tarata said 90 per cent of the homes were sacked by Indians identified with farm labor unions.

Last Thursday the raiders arrived at the suburbs of Cochabamba City, but were halted by authorities. This morning a gang of Indians was reported heading toward the town of Totorá, but the Farm Labor Union sent a delegation to dissuade them and avoid further bloodshed.

Senators See Early Break In Money Measure Logjam

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP) — Two Senate Appropriations Committee members said today they look for House action shortly to break a growing logjam of bills to finance government operations the next 12 months.

The House so far has failed to appoint conferees to settle differences with the Senate on five appropriations bills carrying more than three billion dollars for the new fiscal year that began July 1.

A $3,444,145,000 appropriation bill for the Treasury and Post Office Departments is the only regular supply measure enacted thus far.

It got through for one reason. The Senate accepted it without change as it passed the House, thus sending it directly to President Eisenhower for his signature.

In five other money bills, difference amounts have been voted by the two branches and these will have to be adjusted by conference committees.

The Senate has appointed its conferees but the House has not—even though one of the bills cleared both branches as long ago as May 20.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD) said the House Appropriations Committee, headed by Rep. Taber (R-NY), has been "trying to stall" until it can get a complete picture of the spending program.

"The Senate has suggested that conferees be appointed, but the House wants to wait," he said in an interview.

Another member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.), said he understood the House had taken the position it would not appoint any conferees until after July 6.

Dice Game Quarrel Climaxed By Slaying

CENTREVILLE, Md., July 5 (AP) — A July 4 shooting in an oyster shanty at nearby Grasonville ended in the death of Lorenzo Elton Dennis, 34, Negro, and the arrest of Charles Edward Johnson, 30, Negro, on a murder charge.

State police said Dennis was shot with a small rifle after a quarrel which followed a dice game in the shanty. Dennis was killed in his home next door.

Trooper Robert Crocker arrested Johnson 20 minutes after the shooting and placed him in Queen Anne's county jail here.

Romanian Reds Try To Appease Hungry People

VIENNA, Austria, July 5 (AP) — Fear of anti-Communist rebellion in Eastern Europe apparently has reached Romania, forcing that Soviet satellite country's leaders to dig into food reserves to appease the hungry, embittered people.

Signs pointing this way in Romania have been observed less than a month after rioting by overworked and undernourished workers in Czechoslovakia and East Germany. There have been reports of similar trouble in Poland.

The Bucharest radio announced early today that the Communist-controlled Romanian government has ordered additional rations of bread, flour products, potatoes, vegetables, sugar and oil.

The increases will be effective next Saturday in Bucharest, the Romanian capital, and the surrounding regions. This step apparently is being taken to prepare for the forthcoming congress of the World Federation of Democratic Youth in Bucharest. Elsewhere in Romania, the increased rations will be available sometime between July 16 and 21.

The Red regime's move follows recent reports of riots and plunderings of Communist collective farms near Bucharest. That area has been affected by food shortages in recent years.

Fires Sweep Two Towns

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 5 (AP) — Fires raged in two small Swedish towns today causing damage estimated at eight million crowns ($1,600,000).

Two blocks were destroyed in the central part of Ljungby, a small town in the southern district of Smaland.

More Than 300,000 Citizens Man 10,000 Skywatch Posts

System Is Still Below Minimum Of 500,000

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—About 302,000 citizens are operating 10,000 lookout posts atop towers and in tall buildings, helping the military's radar net and high flying patrol planes scan the sky for any aerial raiders.

After a year of operation, this ground observer corps system is still below the minimum of 500,000 people and 15,000 posts considered necessary, Air Force officials said today.

Nevertheless they are pleased with the progress since the program finally got started last July after a previous abortive effort.

Peterson Says U.S. Air Raid Warning System Inadequate

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The United States still hasn't an adequate warning system to spot enemy air attacks nor enough fighters to intercept hostile bombers, Val Peterson, civil defense administrator, declared today.

"At the present time the Air Force says it will give us no warning time of an enemy attack up to five minutes of warning time," Peterson said on the CBS television show "Man of the Week."

What is needed, he said, is up to one hour warning as a minimum — at least three if possible — so the civilian population can be dispersed before enemy bombers reach their targets.

evaluated and relayed to other elements of the air warning and air defense organization of the military — are operating.

The Air Force considers the possibility of a lightning strike by Soviet long range bombers as great now as it was before Russia began making peace overtures in the cold war.

Discussing Air Force plans before a congressional committee recently, Gen. Nathan Twining, USAF chief of staff, said "the steadily rising Communist strength in the air makes it increasingly necessary that Air Force personnel be on the alert at all times against a sudden and heavy attack."

Radar Has Limitations

Ground observers are a vitally necessary component of the general air raid warning system, Air Force officials explain, because of limitations of the radar system. From ground level up to about 4,000 feet on an average, are difficult or impossible to track by radar because of hills of the earth's curvature. Radar operates on a line-of-sight principle; its beams will not bend.

An enemy bombing force evading or getting past the distant radar net, the outer perimeter of which extends along the fringes of the North American continent, could be tracked from there on only by local radar systems set up as part of the anti-aircraft defenses of industrial of key government areas or by the eyes and ears of the volunteers who man the posts of the ground observer corps.

Tax Blamed For Drop In West Va. Pop Sales

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—The president of the West Virginia Bottlers Association blames the state's pop tax for a 5 per cent drop in soft drink sales in the state during the fiscal year ended June 30.

Mahlon G. Guthrie of Charleston said the 5 per cent figure was in addition to a sales drop of 25 per cent the industry experienced the previous fiscal year from the penny-a-bottle tax enacted by the 1951 Legislature.

In each of those two years, said Guthrie's prepared statement, soft drink sales increased 10 per cent nationally.

The association president said the tax was "a very weak tax which has failed miserably to live up to its expectations."

Grandma, Housewife First Home In Powderpuff Derby

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 5 (AP)—Two California housewives, one of them a grandmother, landed at Municipal Airport today to finish first in the seventh annual Powderpuff Derby.

They are Mrs. Isabelle McCrae, 39, of Lemon Grove, the pilot, and Mrs. Betty McNeil, 41, of La Mesa, the co-pilot. Mrs. McNeil is the mother of two and grandmother of three.

They are not necessarily the winners of the 2,678-mile women's transcontinental air race. The winner, to be announced Wednesday, will be determined on a handicap basis.

The Californians flew yesterday from the starting point at Lawrence, Mass., to Amarillo, Tex., the longest first day flight of any of the entrants.

Mrs. McNeil's plane, a 185-horsepower Beechcraft Bonanza, is one of the most powerful in the race. The other entrants were strung out along the western half of the

Three Killed On Md. Roads

[By The Associated Press]

Three persons had died in highway accidents and a fourth by drowning as Maryland's Fourth of July holiday week end drew to a close.

The only drowning reported occurred Sunday afternoon when Joseph Gressinger, about 18, of Wilmington, Del., drowned in the Elk River near Chesapeake City, Cecil County.

Gressinger dove from a boat and failed to come up. Friends recovered the body but efforts to revive him failed.

Killed Sunday was Garrison Golt, 30, of Kenton, Del. Police said he was run over by a car on the Black Bottom Road near Golt, in Kent County.

Killed Saturday were Coy Ray Carter, 18, of Pylesville and Harvey Vernon Woolford, 27, Negro of Cambridge.

Carter was killed in an two-car smashup two miles south of Aberdeen.

Woolford died when his car skidded into a tree on Route 331, near Cambridge.

Fight Expected Over Ike's Aid Holdback Plan

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) today predicted a Senate-House fight over a proposal that would require President Eisenhower to hold back a billion dollars of military aid to Europe until a six-nation international army is formed.

The House included the mandatory proposal in its foreign aid authorization bill. The Senate voted to permit—but not require — Eisenhower to hold up the money.

Vorys said in an interview this probably will be the main issue when Senate and House representatives meet Tuesday to adjust differences in the two bills.

Little Difficulty Seen

Vorys, one of the key House negotiators, said he expected little difficulty in deciding how much money to authorize for the program during the year ending June 30, 1954.

The Senate has approved $5,318,000,000. The House voted $4,998,000,000. President Eisenhower requested $5,474,000,000.

"We might split the (320 million dollar) difference between the Senate and House totals," Vorys said. "Or we might agree on the House figure."

"After all," he added, "the amount of money doesn't mean much because we know the actual appropriations will be lower."

Heavy Cuts Predicted

The authorization bill merely sets a ceiling. Both houses must vote the money later. Cuts up to two billion dollars have been predicted.

But the House voted to earmark half of European military aid — $1,039,844,935 — to the still unformed European Defense Community and its proposed international army.

The proposal came under administration fire. The Senate softened it to provide discretionary authority for the President to withhold up to one billion dollars until the EDC is created.

Rakosi Remains Hungary Power

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 5 (AP)—Westerners here are convinced that Matyas Rakosi, although he has been relieved of his jobs as prime minister and secretary general of the Hungarian Communist party, still is a most important political figure in the country.

It would be nonsensical to entertain any idea that this veteran has lost his power. He still is the No. 1 man on the nine-man Politburo of the party and No. 1 among the three party secretaries.

On the other hand, however, it would be just as erroneous to conclude that the new premier, Imre Nagy, is a puppet. He is known to be a man of strong will who has disagreed more than once with his superiors in the party. Nevertheless, he is a 100 per cent loyal Communist.

In his speech to Parliament after being chosen yesterday, Premier Nagy made it clear that the shift of persons also would mean a drastic change in politics, bearing a striking resemblance to the East German "new look."

But even those with a good imagination cannot believe in two things:

1. That Rakosi would give up his No. 1 ranking in this country.
2. That the changes in policy will be as extensive as Nagy announced.

Young Gangster Slain By Off Duty Policeman

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP)—An off duty policeman flushed a youthful wolf pack of strongarm robbers early today in a subway passage and shot one youth dead.

The policeman, Thomas Lally, said his attention was drawn to the gang by shouts of James Anderson, 17, who had been mugged and robbed of nine dollars by five Negro youths.

The robbers fled down the passage connecting the Dearborn and State Street subway lines. Lally fired, killing Herbert Burkhalter.

Lally said the robbery of Anderson, a Negro, was the third reported in the subway passage in one week.

Air Force Reports: Kaiser Paid Non-Working Union Officials $1,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The Air Force has estimated the Kaiser Motor Company paid more than a million dollars to "non-working union officials" — shop stewards, bargaining representatives and the like — in 1951 and 1952, some of it in overtime bonuses for work never done.

Sen. Knowland Defends Rhee

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Sen. William Knowland (R-Calif.) said today that he might not be faced with the present "unfortunate situation" in Korea if the Truman administration had consulted Syngman Rhee.

Knowland was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press" television show.

He said he believed President Eisenhower's sending of a special representative, Walter Robertson, to South Korean President Rhee was the "first real consultation" with Rhee on truce terms.

Knowland, acting majority leader of the Senate since Sen. Robert Taft (R-Ohio) became ill, was asked if he thought the United States could trust Rhee since the release of anti-Communist North Korean prisoners.

"I don't think Mr. Rhee has done anything which would warrant us not trusting him," Knowland replied.

He was then asked if the United States would be able to "win back Syngman Rhee's trust."

He replied he believed Rhee would trust the United States because of his long-standing admiration and love for this country.

Knowland, asked if he thought the United Nations Command should use force to enforce a truce if it were signed without Rhee's consent, replied "definitely not," and added:

"We should make every effort to bring about a rapprochement between the Republic of South Korea and the United States and United Nations forces."

Pope Urges Parents To Exhort Priesthood

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—Pope Pius XII said today "mothers and fathers of families must not hesitate to turn the eyes of their children early toward the sanctuary" of priesthood.

In a letter to Bernard Cardinal Griffin, archbishop of Westminster, read at services opening a Roman Catholic vocations exhibition, the Pope said:

"They (parents) should make it clear, in the family circle, that no greater privilege or honor could come to them than to have a son called to stand at the altar."

Searchers Find Tot Lost Overnight In Dense Forest

BUTTE, Mont., July 5 (AP)—Patty Ann McLean, 3, was found safe and well today after being lost for nearly 23 hours in a heavily timbered Montana forest.

The tot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. McLean of Butte, wandered away from a family picnic 15 miles northeast of here yesterday afternoon.

Silver Bow County Sheriff William Dalling said three searchers found the youngster about eight miles south of the picnic grounds.

Quirino Pardoned Jap POWs So His Country Would Not "Inherit Hate"

BALTIMORE, July 5 (AP)—President Elpidio Quirino of the Philippines declared today he pardoned Japanese war prisoners because "I do not want my children and my people to inherit from me hate for people who yet might be our friends."

In an interview at Johns Hopkins Hospital which he entered Tuesday for a physical checkup, Quirino told interviewers:

He feels the Japanese "might yet be our friends."

He "fully understands" South Korean President Syngman Rhee's order to release anti-Communist war prisoners without the consent of the United Nations.

"I have extended pardons to the Japanese war prisoners serving terms in the Philippines," Quirino said, "not as an amnesty which requires concurrence of the Philippine Congress."

"I should be the last one to pardon them, as the Japanese killed my wife and three children and five other members of the family."

Quirino explained the pardon applies to about 300 persons convicted by the war commission of the Allies.

About a third were Japanese prisoners, he said, and the others were Philippine residents who collaborated with them.

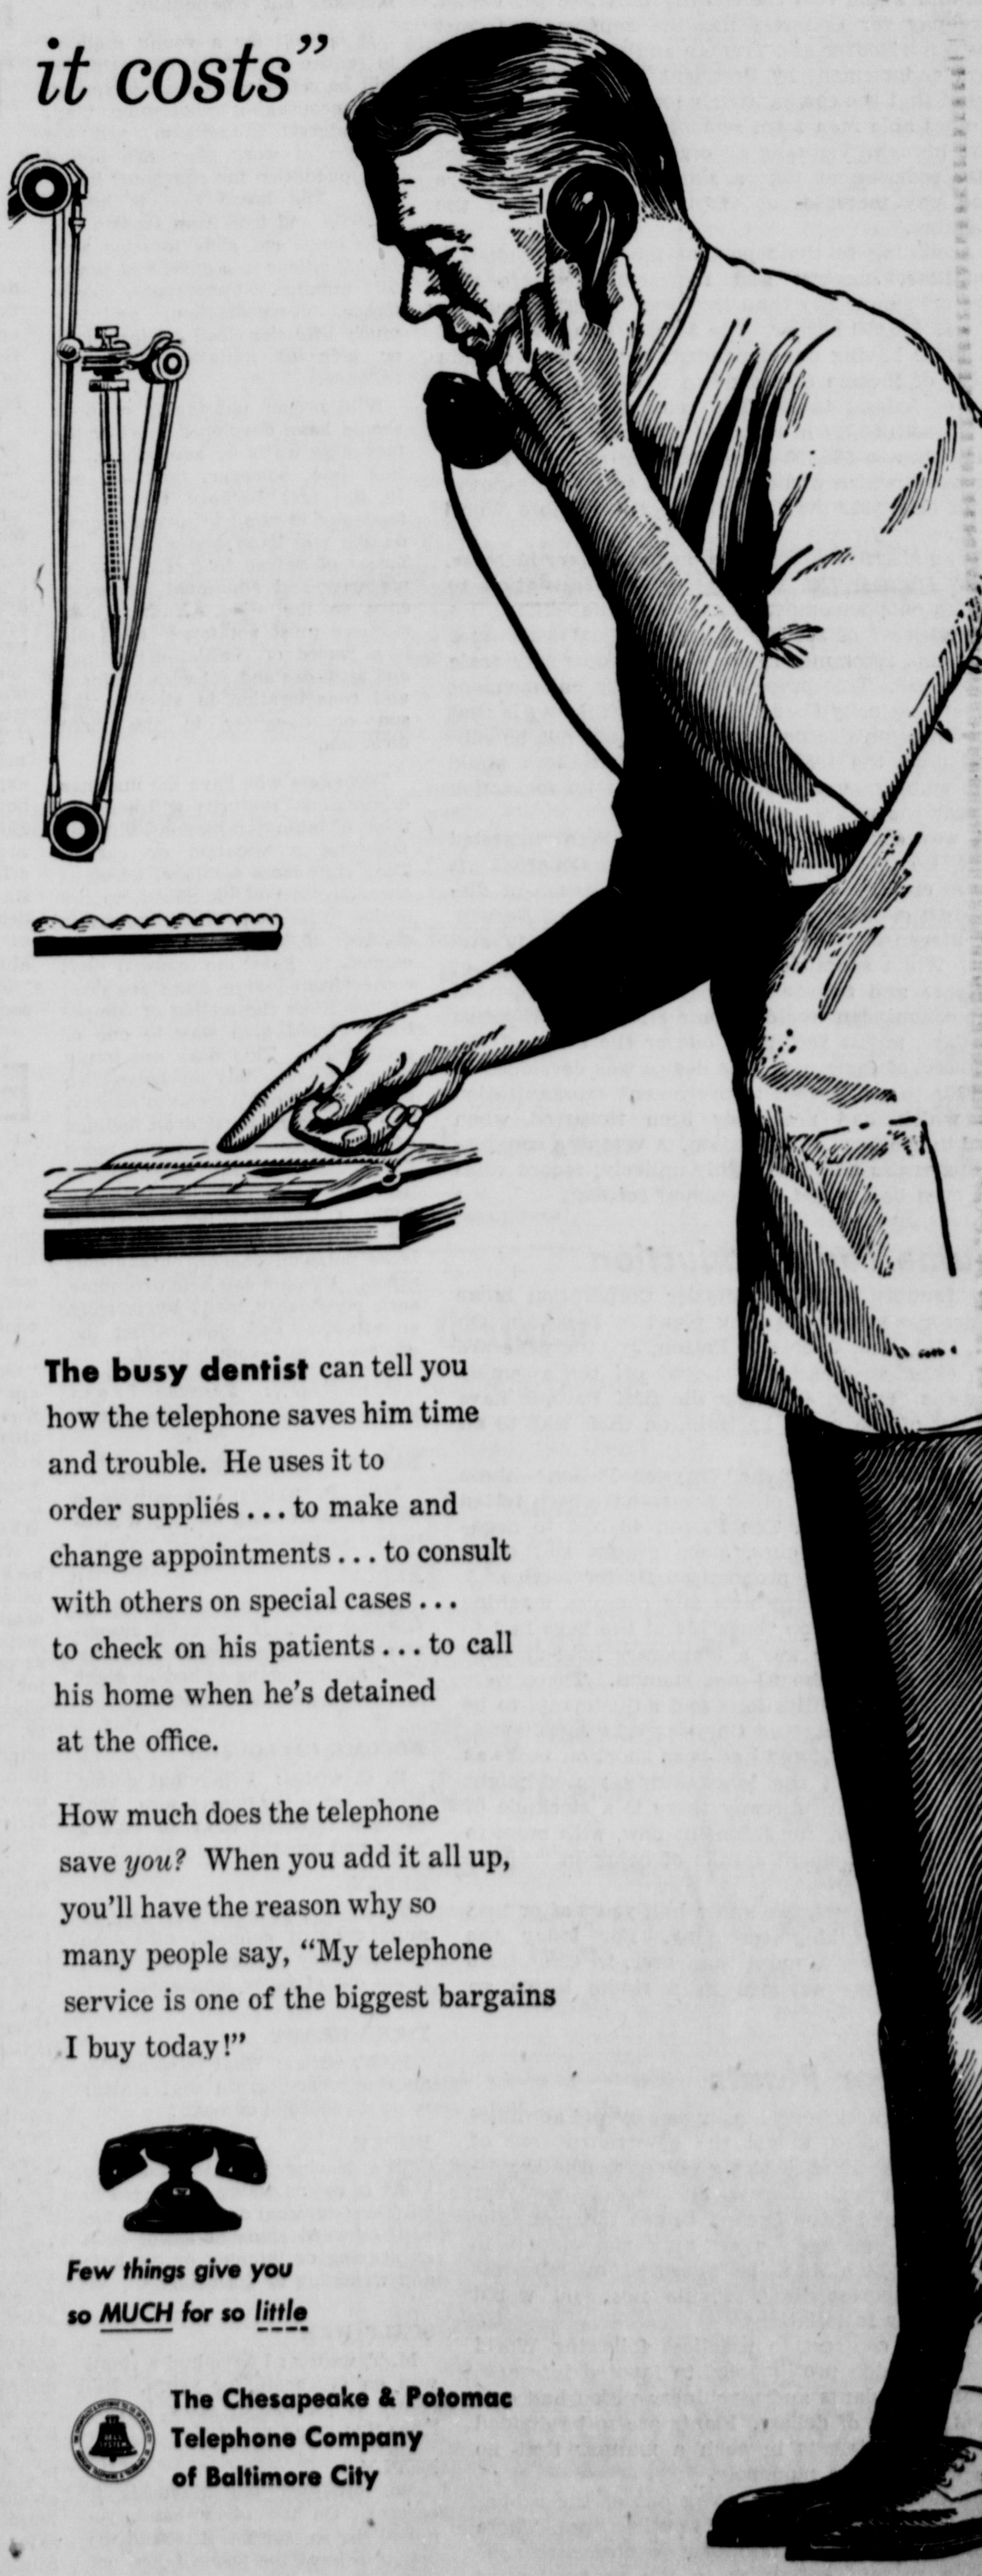

A Philippine army nurse massaged Quirino's left ankle as he gazed over the hospital lawn and answered questions put to him by newsmen.

Elaborating on his earlier comment about Korean President Rhee's release of prisoners without the consent of the United Nations, Quirino said:

"Rhee knows that the moment U. N. troops are withdrawn from his country it will be open to new Communist moves."

Quirino referred to the 78-year-old Korean President as "old buddy," and added, "I like his spirit."

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The United States still hasn't an adequate warning system to spot enemy air attacks nor enough fighters to intercept hostile bombers, Val Peterson, civil defense administrator, declared today.

"At the present time the Air Force says it will give us no warning time of an enemy attack up to five minutes of warning time," Peterson said on the CBS television show "Man of the Week."

What is needed, he said, is up to one hour warning as a minimum — at least three if possible — so the civilian population can be dispersed before enemy bombers reach their targets.

evaluated and relayed to other elements of the air warning and air defense organization of the military — are operating.

The Air Force considers the possibility of a lightning strike by Soviet long range bombers as great now as it was before Russia began making peace overtures in the cold war.

Discussing Air Force plans before a congressional committee recently, Gen. Nathan Twining, USAF chief of staff, said "the steadily rising Communist strength in the air makes it increasingly necessary that Air Force personnel be on the alert at all times against a sudden and heavy attack."

Radar Has Limitations

Ground observers are a vital necessary component of the general air raid warning system, Air Force officials explain, because of limitations of the radar system. from ground level up to about 4,000 feet on an average, are difficult or impossible to track by radar because of hills of the earth's curvature. Radar operates on a line-of-sight principle; its beams will not bend.

An enemy bombing force evading or getting past the distant radar net, the outer perimeter of which extends along the fringes of the North American continent, could be tracked from there on only by local radar systems set up as part of the anti-aircraft defenses of industrial key government areas or by the eyes and ears of the volunteers who man the posts of the ground observer corps.

Tax Blamed For Drop In West Va. Pop Sales

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—The president of the West Virginia Bottlers Association blames the state's pop tax for a 5 per cent drop in soft drink sales in the state during the fiscal year ended June 30.

Mahlon G. Guthrie of Charleston said the 5 per cent figure was in addition to a sales drop of 25 per cent the industry experienced the previous fiscal year from the penny-a-bottle tax enacted by the 1951 Legislature.

In each of those two years, said Guthrie's prepared statement, soft drink sales increased 10 per cent nationally.

The association president said the tax was "a very weak tax which has failed miserably to live up to its expectations."

Grandma, Housewife First Home In Powderpuff Derby

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 5 (AP)—Two California housewives, one of them a grandmother, landed at Municipal Airport today to finish first in the seventh annual Powderpuff Derby.

They are Mrs. Isabelle McCrae, 39, of Lemon Grove, the pilot, and Mrs. Betty McNeil, 41, of La Mesa, the co-pilot. Mrs. McNeil is the mother of two and grandmother of three.

They are not necessarily the winners of the 2,678-mile women's transcontinental air race. The winner, to be announced Wednesday, will be determined on a handicap basis.

The Californians flew yesterday from the starting point at Lawrence, Mass., to Amarillo, Tex., the longest first day flight of any of the entrants.

Mrs. McNeil's plane, a 185-horsepower Beechcraft Bonanza, is one of the most powerful in the race.

The other entrants were strung out along the western half of the

Minister Attacks Five Legislators

BALTIMORE, July 5 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Don Frank Fenn, prominent Episcopal minister, today charged five congressional leaders with cultivating a "miasma of fear" as a means of intimidating the American people.

The rector of St. Michaels and All Angels Church, in a post Independence Day sermon, said congressional investigators who stay within the letter of the law but violate it in spirit are "undermining the sure foundations of this nation."

Dr. Fenn identified the congressional leaders as Sens. McCarthy (R-Wis.), McCarran (D-Nev.) and Jenner (R-Ind.) and Reps. Velde (R-Ill.) and Jackson (R-Cal.).

"They are within the letter of the law, I am sure," he added, "but I am sure that the judgment of God is upon them for the violation of the spirit of the law."

"They do not actually subvert judicial processes," he continued, "but they do act as detectives, prosecutor, jury and judge so far as the average citizen is concerned."

Camp Meeting Opens At Smith Island, Md.

SMITH'S ISLAND, Md., July 5 (AP)—The annual two-week "Camp Meeting"—traditional reunion time for Smith Island Methodists—opened today with native sons and daughters back for the occasion.

Gov. McKeldin accepted an invitation to speak at the morning service, which started the meeting lasting through July 19.

The Rev. L. L. Knott introduced the Rev. Ralph L. Johnson of Tennessee and his assistant, Miss Roberta Hall, as the speaker and musician for the camp.

For visitors staying at Crisfield, on the mainland eight miles off, during the meeting special daily boat trips have been arranged.

Gov. McKeldin also accepted an invitation to speak at Asbury Methodist Church in Crisfield today.

Dogs Guard RAF Base Against Mau Maus

NAIROBI, Kenya, July 5 (AP)—The Royal Air Force has brought in a section of highly trained Alsatian dogs to guard its installations in Kenya against anti-white Mau Mau terrorists. The dogs were airlifted in from a training center in the Suez Canal zone.

Cpl. John Eisner, in charge, said the dogs are not killers. "They know their job is to take prisoners," he said. "They are faster than anything on two feet, and when they spot their man they bring him down."

Most of the pilots awakened before the chickens this morning to resume their westward flights. The 65 women pilots and co-pilots arrived in Peoria, Ill. Saturday afternoon in 34 of the 48 planes remaining in the cross-country air race. They spent the night in Peoria.

The Peoria Association of Commerce treated the women to breakfast at 4 a.m. and then drove them from downtown hotels to the airport before sunrise.

Mrs. McCrae, a wartime WASP who holds a flight instructor's rating and has 1,100 hours in the air, said the weather was "nice all the way" except for a thunderstorm she encountered late yesterday over New Mexico. She turned back to Amarillo and spent the night.

The policeman, Thomas Lally, said his attention was drawn to the gang by shouts of James Anderson, 17, who had been mugged and robbed of nine dollars by five Negro youths.

The robbers fled down the passage connecting the Dearborn and State Street subway lines. Lally fired, killing Herbert Burkhalter. Lally said the robbery of Anderson, a Negro, was the third reported in the subway passage in one week.

Three Killed On Md. Roads

[By The Associated Press]

Three persons had died in highway accidents and a fourth by drowning as Maryland's Fourth of July holiday week end drew to a close.

The only drowning reported occurred Sunday afternoon when Joseph Gressinger, about 18, of Wilmington, Del., drowned in the Elk River near Chesapeake City, Cecil County.

Gressinger dove from a boat and failed to come up. Friends recovered the body but efforts to revive him failed.

Killed Sunday was Garrison Golt, 30, of Kenton, Del. Police said he was run over by a car on the Black Bottom Road near Golt, in Kent County.

Killed Saturday were Coy Ray Carter, 18, of Pylesville and Harvey Vernon Woolford, 27, Negro of Cambridge.

Carter was killed in an two-car smashup two miles south of Aberdeen.

Woolford died when his car skidded onto a tree on Route 331, near Cambridge.

Fight Expected Over Ike's Aid Holdback Plan

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) today predicted a Senate-House fight over a proposal that would require President Eisenhower to hold back a billion dollars of military aid to Europe until a six-nation international army is formed.

The House included the mandatory proposal in its foreign aid authorization bill. The Senate voted to permit—but not require—Eisenhower to hold up the money.

Vorys said in an interview this probably will be the main issue when Senate and House representatives meet Tuesday to adjust differences in the two bills.

Little Difficulty Seen
Vorys, one of the key House negotiators, said he expected little difficulty in deciding how much money to authorize for the program during the year ending June 30, 1954.

The Senate has approved $5,318,000,000. The House voted $4,998,000,000. President Eisenhower requested $5,474,000,000.

"We might split the (320 million dollar) difference between the Senate and House totals," Vorys said. "Or we might agree on the House figure."

"After all," he added, "the amount of money doesn't mean much because we know the actual appropriations will be lower."

Heavy Cuts Predicted
The authorization bill merely sets a ceiling. Both houses must vote the money later. Cuts up to two billion dollars have been predicted.

But the House voted to earmark half of European military aid — $1,039,844,935 — to the still unformed European Defense Community and its proposed international army.

The proposal came under administration fire. The Senate softened it to provide discretionary authority for the President to withhold up to one billion dollars until the EDC is created.

Rakosi Remains Hungary Power

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 5 (AP)—Westerners here are convinced that Matyas Rakosi, although he has been relieved of his jobs as prime minister and secretary general of the Hungarian Communist party, still is a most important political figure in the country.

It would be nonsensical to entertain any idea that this veteran has lost his power. He still is the No. 1 man on the nine-man Politburo of the party and No. 1 among the three party secretaries.

On the other hand, however, it would be just as erroneous to conclude that the new premier, Imre Nagy, is a puppet. He is known to be a man of strong will who has disagreed more than once with his superiors in the party. Nevertheless, he is a 100 per cent loyal Communist.

In his speech to Parliament after being chosen yesterday, Premier Nagy made it clear that the shift of persons also would mean a drastic change in politics, bearing a striking resemblance to the East German "new look." But even those with a good imagination cannot believe in two things:

1. That Rakosi would give up his No. 1 ranking in this country.

2. That the changes in policy will be as extensive as Nagy announced.

Sen. Knowland Defends Rhee

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—Sen. William Knowland (R-Calif.) said today that he might not be faced with the present "unfortunate situation" in Korea if the Truman administration had consulted Syngman Rhee.

Knowland was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press" television show.

He said he believed President Eisenhower's sending of a special representative, Walter Robertson, to South Korean President Rhee was the "first real consultation" with Rhee on truce terms.

Knowland, acting majority leader of the Senate since Sen. Robert Taft (R-Ohio) became ill, was asked if he thought the United States could trust Rhee since the release of anti-Communist North Korean prisoners.

"I don't think Mr. Rhee has done anything which would warrant us not trusting him," Knowland replied.

He was then asked if the United States would be able to "win back Syngman Rhee's trust."

He replied he believed Rhee would trust the United States because of his long-standing admiration and love for this country.

Knowland, asked if he thought the United Nations Command should use force to enforce a truce if it were signed without Rhee's consent, replied "definitely not," and added:

"We should make every effort to bring about a rapprochement between the Republic of South Korea and the United States and United Nations forces."

Calcutta Police Use Tear Gas On Rioters

CALCUTTA, India, July 5 (AP)—Police broke out tear gas today as mobs, protesting a boost in street-bombs in the fifth straight day of rioting.

More than 200 demonstrators were arrested as rioters stoned and clubbed police trying to protect the trams. One police official was injured by a bomb. A street-car was set afire and others were stoned. Police used tear gas to break up a number of gatherings.

The trouble began five days ago with a mass refusal to pay a quarter of a cent boost in second class fares.

Earlier today officials had reported that—despite the continued rioting—more and more street-cars were returning to service and more second class passengers were paying the increased fares.

SEARCHERS FIND TOT LOST OVERNIGHT IN DENSE FOREST
BUTTE, Mont., July 5 (AP)—Patty Ann McLean, 3, was found safe and well today after being lost for nearly 23 hours in a heavily timbered Montana forest.

The tot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. McLean of Butte, wandered away from a family picnic 15 miles northeast of here yesterday afternoon.

Silver Bow County Sheriff William Dalling said three searchers found the youngster about eight miles south of the picnic grounds.

Quirino Pardoned Jap POWs So His Country Would Not "Inherit Hate"

BALTIMORE, July 5 (AP)—President Elpidio Quirino of the Philippines declared today he pardoned Japanese war prisoners because "I do not want my children and my people to inherit from me hate for people who yet might be our friends."

In an interview at Johns Hopkins Hospital which he entered Tuesday for a physical checkup, Quirino told interviewers:

He feels the Japanese "might yet be our friends."

He "fully understands" South Korean President Syngman Rhee's order to release anti-Communist war prisoners without the consent of the United Nations.

"I have extended pardons to the Japanese war prisoners serving terms in the Philippines," Quirino said, "not as an amnesty which requires concurrence of the Philippine Congress."

"I should be the last one to pardon them, as the Japanese killed my wife and three children and five other members of the family."

Quirino explained the pardon applies to about 300 persons convicted by the war commission of the Allies.

About a third were Japanese prisoners, he said, and the others were Philippine residents who collaborated with them.

A Philippine army nurse massaged Quirino's left ankle as he gazed over the hospital lawn and answered questions put to him by newsmen.

Elaborating on his earlier comment about Korean President Rhee's release of prisoners without the consent of the United Nations, Quirino said:

"Rhee knows that the moment U. N. troops are withdrawn from his country it will be open to new Communist moves."

Quirino referred to the 78-year-old Korean President as "old buddy" and added, "I like his spirit."

Pay Of Congress

Pending on the calendar of the U. S. Senate is a bill, unanimously reported by the Judiciary Committee in May, which would increase the salaries of members of Congress from $15,000 to $25,000 a year. Senators and representatives have long had an eye on a pay raise to $25,000 but something has always arisen to make it seem untimely, as is the case again this year.

An attempt in the House in April to fix congressional salaries at $22,500 was ruled out on a point of order, but in June the House amended the legislative appropriation bill to allow members to deduct the whole of their living expenses in Washington when filing federal income tax returns. The living-expense deduction is now limited to $3,000. The Senate has never given whole-hearted approval to this method of inching up legislators' take-home pay. The fact is that the House provision would be of greatest benefit to the wealthiest members, who could deduct more in Washington living expenses than they receive in congressional pay.

When the legislative appropriation bill comes up for action by the senators, they will have an opportunity to substitute a straightforward pay increase for the tax-relief provision for members, which seems particularly inappropriate at a time when tax relief for others is being delayed beyond earlier expectations. But a boost in congressional pay may seem even more inappropriate in view of the present state of the national finances. If not voted this year, a congressional pay raise may be skipped by the present Congress; in the view of many members voting an increase in the election year 1954 would amount to political suicide.

The timidity of Congress on the subject of its compensation is difficult to understand. An increase in congressional salaries to $25,000 would add only .00717 per cent to the Eisenhower budget of $74.1 billion, and would cost the country only 3.4c per capita. More pay for Congress has the support of former Presidents Hoover and Truman and was recently given warm endorsement by President Eisenhower—on the ground that the comparatively low take-home pay discourages able men from seeking careers in the legislative branch. Virtually all organizations working for better government take a similar view — and have urged pay increases of varying amounts upon the legislators.

According to the report of the Senate Judiciary Committee, senators and representatives are now worse off financially than they were in 1939 when the pay was $10,000 a year. The $15,000 compensation of a member having one dependent and lacking outside sources of income comes down to $12,706 after payment of federal taxes. The committee figures that this is worth $6,724 in terms of 1939 purchasing power. An increase to $25,000 would net the member $19,164 after taxes, which would give him a purchasing-power gain of only $529 over the pay received before World War II.

As an alternative for an immediate salary increase, Senator Dirksen (R., Ill.) has offered legislation to create an outside commission to study the "difficulties and sacrifices" of service in the national legislature and submit recommendations on a proper pay scale for Congress. This proposal carries the endorsement of Senate Majority Leader Taft. The difficulty is that the commission's recommendations could not be submitted until the 1954 session and then there would be the embarrassment of calling them up for action in a year the voters go to the polls.

A way out of that dilemma has been suggested by the Committee for Strengthening Congress. It proposes creation of a very small commission of distinguished citizens—Herbert Hoover, Bernard Baruch, Adlai Stevenson—to make the proposed study and report. When submitted to the presiding officers of the House and Senate, the pay scale recommended by the commission would become effective in a period of 60 days, unless vetoed by one or the other of the two houses of Congress. This device was developed in the 1930s to put through government reorganization plans which had previously been thwarted when offered in the form of legislation. A veto of a congressional pay raise would be highly unlikely; record votes might even be avoided by common consent.

Volume Tank Production

In January 1951 the Chrysler Corporation broke ground for a great new tank plant in Delaware. On July 1, 1952, Mrs. George S. Patton, Jr., the general's widow, christened one of the first off the assembly line as the "Patton 48." Now the first Pattons have pulled out of the plant, by train, on their way to an "undisclosed destination."

For the past year the Chrysler Pattons—these tanks are also made by other firms—have been tested at Army tank centers. The Patton 48 had to negotiate water holes, ditches, steep grades and other obstacles before being pronounced fit for service. It was new. Like any new and complex machine it was bound to develop "bugs"—and the bugs had to be chased out. There was a temporary hold-up over the functioning of the 90-mm cannon. There were plenty of minor modifications and adjustments to be made before the Army and Chrysler were satisfied.

If the troops in Korea had been short on tanks as well as ammunition the long testing period might have been cut short. Anyway there is a stockpile of Chrysler tanks ready for shipment now, with more to follow. The management speaks of being in "volume production."

That is good news, two and a half years after that little ground-breaking ceremony. For today the Kremlin in Moscow is more than ever, in Churchill's words, "a mystery wrapped in a riddle inside an enigma."

Sell Rubber Plants

One of the most important moves by the administration is the effort to get the government out of business. A measure authorizing sale of synthetic rubber plants to private interests by June of next year has been passed by the House. Under the plan, the President will appoint a three-man commission to receive bids, which must be approved by Congress before sales become final. Plants not sold would become standby installations.

This is in contrast to practices following World War II, when high profits went to favored interests, which salvaged plants and machinery which had cost taxpayers billions of dollars. Plants are to be divided among rubber interests in such a manner that no concern will obtain a monopoly.

Thus the government is going out of the rubber business, as it eventually will do in other lines. There is no emergency that warrants the government's supplementing private enterprise in the production of necessities.

Emotional Development Of The Young

Emotional immaturity is responsible for many nervous ailments and behavior problems of the adult. Such individuals have never grown up emotionally and they go through life with the notion that other people are instruments placed at their disposal to fulfill their desires. This is in sharp contrast to the attitude of the more solid citizens who participate in life in a mature way, thereby realizing the full satisfaction of adult living. A trait as important as maturity is worth cultivating not only in ourselves but in our youngsters.

Most behavior patterns start in early childhood and are fairly well established by adolescence. The emotional aspects are molded to a certain extent by the amount of love, affection, and protection the youngster receives from the parents. The satisfaction derived from knowing he is wanted and a part of the family are of love, affection, and protection the youngster receives from the parents. The satisfaction derived from knowing he is wanted and a part of the family are of inestimable value to any child making him feel secure, adequate, courageous, and willing to face life. When the time comes he is ready to be independent and to compete with others on a mature level. In this respect the boy becomes a man and a girl becomes a woman not only physically and mentally but emotionally.

It is well for a young mother to realize that their own attitudes will be reflected in their offspring. By encouraging wholesome play, an interest in religion, and the dignity of work they are laying the foundation for character building. The home that is happy, friendly and free from tension will help boys and girls to cope with life situations in a quiet and peaceful manner. Conversely, impatience, overprotection, and too much affection lead to insecurity or lack of initiative and self-reliance.

With proper upbringing children should have developed most of the favorable traits by adolescence. At this time, however, they are put to the test because there is a tendency to cling to juvenile ways on the one hand and to obey the forces of nature that push toward maturity and emotional independence on the other. Fathers and mothers must not forget that this is a period of conflicting feelings and attitudes and act with kindness and consideration in steering the son or daughter in the right direction.

Teenagers who have the makings of emotional maturity will begin to think of taking on responsibility by selecting a vocation or career. They shift from self-love, which is characteristic of childhood, to the desire to love others. Without this change of attitude they cannot expect to gain the reward that comes from loving some one else. At this stage the feeling of competition should give way to one of cooperation. This does not imply submissiveness but an honest attempt to find one's niche in society. The adolescent must drop feelings of inferiority and become more self-confident because inferiority is part of immaturity and may become a complex, particularly if the youngster suffers from acne, lacks personal charm, or has quit school. Parents can help overcome such personality traits by pouring on affection and encouraging the adolescent to accept himself.

This tracing indicates that the heart is not as young as it used to be. These internal changes go along with outward signs of aging such as graying or thinning of the hair and wrinkling of the skin.

Gen. Vandenberg Confers With Truman On Senate Race In Michigan; House Public Works Committee "Gives Away" Niagara Falls Power

WASHINGTON—Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, retiring chief of staff of the Air Force, took a rear elevator up to Room 676 of the Mayflower Hotel the other day and dropped in for a quiet chat with his old boss Harry Truman.

Though one is a Republican and the other a Democrat, the two talked, believe it or not, about politics—specifically about the possibility of Vandenberg's running for the Senate from Michigan against GOP Sen. Homer Ferguson. Truman was eager to have him run.

"I've been a Republican all my life," said General Vandenberg, "but when I see what this administration has done to the Air Force, it almost makes me a Democrat." Truman, who fought for a big military budget, didn't have to express agreement. He has said both privately and publicly that Eisenhower cuts in the Air Force are one of the worst tragedies affecting the security of the nation. On the political front, he told Vandenberg that he would undertake to sound out the governor of Michigan, up-and-coming young "Soapy" Williams, a Democrat, to see whether he would stay out of the Michigan race if Vandenberg ran.

Upon further talks will depend whether, first, Vandenberg runs in the primary as a Republican against Senator Homer Ferguson, also a Republican, and whether he runs as a Democrat in the final election. The ultimate decision will partly depend on Governor Williams. Popular in Michigan, he would be a hard man to beat.

Democratic Mirth

A group of Democratic senators were dissecting the Eisenhower administration recently in the Senate cloakroom.

"What has happened to Eisenhower's initiative on foreign policy?" asked Tennessee's freshman Sen. Albert Gore.

"Syngman Rhee has it," suggested Oklahoma's Sen. Mike Monroney.

"No," someone else blurted, "the Communists have it."

"You're both wrong," broke in Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma. "Rhee and the Communists are rascals' over it."

"Anyhow, Eisenhower doesn't have it," agreed Alabama's Sen. John Sparkman.

Enemy Number One

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—Enemy number one is not communism or any other "ism." Enemy number one is weight. I don't refer to your weight or my weight. We all can control this by the simple method of eating less, and thus avoiding "second-helping-itis." Instead, I am referring today to the cost of transportation, amounting to over $100 billion a year, of which I estimate 80 per cent is due to the weight of goods and not to the labor and other costs.

What Causes Weight? Whatever we eat, wear, or use as a home starts from the forests, mines or farms. At these points of origin the costs are very low. For instance, standing timber sells for $2 per cord; coal in the mine sells for $1 per ton; and a bushel of wheat on the farm for only about $2. We pay 10 times these costs after they are transported to our home or breakfast table. If weight could be reduced 85 per cent I believe the cost of living would tumble 70 per cent.

This brings me to my hobby of Gravity which is the cause of this wasteful weight. Thus far no insulator, absorber, or reflector of Gravity has been discovered, but this will be accomplished someday. All other forces, such as light, sound, fire, odor, electricity, magnetism, X-rays and even atomic rays can be shut off. Metallurgists will soon discover a means of partially insulating or reflecting Gravity waves. This discovery will revolutionize manufacturing, transportation and distribution.

Nothing To Worry About

Some people fear that if we interfere with Gravity they would rise to the ceiling of the room or, if out-of-doors, disappear in the skies. There is absolutely no danger of this. The same fears were expressed when our first ancestors discovered fire and later when Franklin tried to harness lightning. When a partial insulator or reflector of Gravity is discovered it can be controlled as well as fire or electricity or atomic rays. Furthermore, this can be accomplished safely whether the Gravity waves come from the sky and push us down, or come from the earth and pull us down.

The Gravity Research Foundation of New Boston, N. H., tells me that such an insulator would not reduce our weight if used for shoe soles or stair treads. In order to take advantage of such a partial insulator or reflector we must be wholly encased as if we were in a sealed coffin and this wouldn't do us much good! This is another reason why no one need fear the control of Gravity. We should rather fear the lack of control of our appetites! To us, starches may be more dangerous than Gravity!

How Alloys Will Work

As indicated above, there is little hope of reducing the weight of automobiles, trucks or even freight cars. But there is real hope for reducing the weight of their contents. One of the early developments will be hermetically sealing truck trailers with an anti-gravity alloy. This same principle will be used to reduce the weight of trunks and suitcases. I believe that Russian scientists are now desperately at work to discover a Gravity reflector to very much lessen the weight of the packs which all soldiers carry on their backs. Think what this would mean to the nine million of our own boys. Readers will think of other illustrations but remember that only the enclosed contents can be de-weighted.

Of course the greatest boom would take place in connection with the airplane. Why the government and airplane manufacturers do not give the subject more serious consideration is beyond my comprehension. The engineers answer me by saying they are "too busy with other things to bother about Gravity." My reply is that 40 years ago when the Goodyear Company was making lighter-than-air dirigibles and I asked why they did not help the Wright Brothers in making heavier-than-air airplanes, they gave the same reply: "We're too busy." All of which reminds me of what Thomas Edison said to me shortly before he died: "Babson, we don't yet know anything. The young people now graduating from schools and colleges have far greater opportunities than we ever had if they will only work, save and study."

Ike's Politics

WASHINGTON There is an increasingly sharp split in the President's entourage between two opposing schools of political strategy.

On one side are most of the members of Eisenhower's personal staff, who would like the President to assert his mastery in his own house. More particularly, this school holds that Eisenhower must assume personal leadership of the Republican party, even at the cost of open conflict with the party's powerful anti-Eisenhower factions.

On the other side are a much smaller group of White House staff members, conspicuously including the congressional liaison man, Maj. Gen. Wilton R. Parsons, plus most of the congressional leaders and professional Republican politicians. They want party harmony at all costs, even if the pursuit of party harmony required the President to make the most humiliating surrenders to his enemies.

The debate, thus far, has largely centered on what the White House calls "the McCarthy problem." The first real turning point, it is now clear, was the fight over the confirmation of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow. On that occasion the White House and the State Department, being cornered, had to fight Sen. McCarthy. Bohlen was confirmed. Yet the real victory went to McCarthy.

In particular, when the Bohlen fight was over, the Republican Senate leaders went to the White House to declare that they "didn't want another Bohlen case." The President gave pledges of future cooperation. And Gen. Parsons hastened to spread the happy word on Capitol Hill, that Sen. McCarthy and his ilk would thereafter enjoy a virtual veto on all Presidential appointments.

McCarthy Protected

This was the real explanation of the recent case of Paul H. Nitze. As first revealed in this space, this brilliant State Department official was nominated for a high Defense Department post by the White House itself. These reporters were incorrect in stating, however, that Nitze's appointment had then been vetoed by Sen. Robert A. Taft. This was the official but false version of events given to the Defense Department by the White House congressional liaison, perhaps because the true version was much more embarrassing.

In brief, it was Sen. McCarthy who protested the Nitze appointment to Gen. Parsons. It was in response to Sen. McCarthy's protest that Gen. Parsons raised a warning signal. And it was because they "didn't want another Bohlen case," that the Senate Republican Policy Committee then requested the cancellation of the Nitze nomination. Not Taft, but McCarthy, had interposed this veto. The President submitted with hardly more than a murmur of regret.

This episode is only one of a long series of similar surrenders, all of them highly uncharacteristic of Eisenhower the man, but seemingly standard practice for Eisenhower the politician. The question is whether these surrenders gain the President anything more than the strictly temporary peace and quiet that is the reward of appeasement.

Gen. Parsons of course pleads for such surrenders because he has been the Army's congressional lobbyist for so long. All service lobbyists inevitably acquire the outlook of well worn pieces of chamois leather. Equally most of the Republican professionals plead for such surrenders because they do not want trouble, and hope that Sen. McCarthy and his faction will make Republican votes in 1954.

Real Test Coming

The trouble is, however, that McCarthy-made votes will be anti-Eisenhower votes for anti-Eisenhower Republicans, whose elections will further weaken the President's authority both in his party and in the Congress. That should be plain enough after the recent Wisconsin Republican convention, which Sen. McCarthy and his friends transformed into a blatant anti-Eisenhower rally.

The climax of the Wisconsin convention was the public and formal censure of Sen. Alexander Wiley, for opposing the Bricker Amendment to the Constitution at the urgent and personal request of the President. Wiley stood up and took it, on the President's behalf. But now the President has cut the ground from under poor Wiley, by another of his so-called harmony gestures—the sudden offer to compromise on the Bricker Amendment.

Even now, in short, the habit of yielding is spreading to issues of vital national policy. In the present congressional session, the President is going to pass a minimum legislative program, not without many difficulties with the hostile groups in his own party. All sorts of larger, thornier and more controversial issues have been put off to the next session. Then will come the real test of the President's authority.

In the next session, the President will find that his authority has been altogether lost, unless he is willing to start fighting for it pretty soon. The oldest rule of politics is that no one wins a prize that he is not ready to fight for.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The British Program

It has been stated that the British program for the easing of tension with Russia is as follows:

1. The neutralization of Germany.
2. Special relations between Russia and the satellites.
3. Full recognition of Red China, and what is called recognition of the Asiatic revolution — if Red China would show more tact and less aggression in bringing it about.
4. Virtual abandonment of Korea under a formula.

Let us consider these questions point by point.

1. The neutralization of Germany means that the manpower of Germany and her industrial capacity would be at the disposal neither of NATO nor of Soviet Russia. Germany is to be an ally neither of the United States nor of Soviet Russia.

Neutralization is usually accompanied by disarming, except for a minor gendarmerie essential to maintain order. This was done by the Paris Treaty after World War I. But Germany countered by creating a gendarmerie of officers who were prepared to take command of a citizen's army when Der Tag came. That army was able to fight on a multitude of fronts for six years. In effect, it is impossible to disarm a people who do not choose to be disarmed.

What guarantee can Soviet Russia give that the Kremlin will not arm a Communist people's army as was done in China between 1924 and 1949 when that army took over the whole country? Such an army could be disguised as a political party. Actually there can be no such guarantee, because international communism is a conspiratorial arrangement for which Russia, as a state, rejects or assumes responsibility at will. The evidence in East Germany is that that area is being integrated into the Russian empire.

2. It is difficult to analyze what the British mean by special rela-

there is no record of how individual members stood on the legislation. Dondero saw to this by calling for a "show of hands," instead of a record roll-call vote.

However, this column is able to report that the following Republicans voted against Eisenhower and for the Niagara giveaway:

Dondero, Harry McGregor of Ohio, Hubert Scudder of California, Myron George of Kansas, Charles Oakman of Michigan and Frank Small of Maryland.

Democrats who joined them were John Dempsey of New Mexico and George Fallon of Maryland.

tions between Russia and the satellites. The Lansing-Ishii Agreement between the United States and Japan recognized that proximity justifies special privileges. This concept undoubtedly produced the Far Eastern phase of World War II, which antedated the European phase by eight years.

Poland is now a province of Russia, Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia are moving toward that goal. East Germany is conquered territory. China is completely dominated by the Kremlin in the diplomatic and economic fields. What other special relations would the British include in this category?

3. The full recognition of Communist China would end forever the moral authority of the United Nations. For Communist China was the aggressor in the Korean War and sent a conquering army into that territory to fight and defeat what is called the United Nations forces. Recognition of Communist China would mean that the authority of the United Nations to maintain the peace has been successfully challenged. A precedent would thus be set for other nations. It would be like the Japanese challenge of the League of Nations over Manchuria and the Italians challenge over Ethiopia.

Furthermore, it would involve a betrayal by the United States of an ally, Nationalist China, who has stood the test of time. No matter how it is viewed, Chiang Kai-shek did arrest the onward march of the Communist horde. They have not succeeded in conquering Malaya, Indo-China, or Thailand, all of which were within their reach at one time. The mere presence of a Nationalist government on Formosa forced upon the Chinese Communists an unexpected preoccupation which slowed their conquests.

The United States cannot desert Formosa without abandoning every contractual relationship among states. Who trusts a fair-weather friend?

4. Korea is being abandoned. But for the noble patriotism of the old man, Syngman Rhee, the British plan, on this point would have been a complete success. He stood like Horatius at the Bridge and he had to treat with him. Rhee will go down in history as a noble character in an ignoble age.

Winston Churchill's program is that of a very tired man. Maybe all the world is tired. Maybe everybody is prepared to throw in the sponge. Unless we are, Winston Churchill's program ought not to be a guide for America.

Pay Of Congress

Pending on the calendar of the U. S. Senate is a bill, unanimously reported by the Judiciary Committee in May, which would increase the salaries of members of Congress from $15,000 to $25,000 a year. Senators and representatives have long had an eye on a pay raise to $25,000 but something has always arisen to make it seem untimely, as is the case again this year.

An attempt in the House in April to fix congressional salaries at $22,500 was ruled out on a point of order, but in June the House amended the legislative appropriation bill to allow members to deduct the whole of their living expenses in Washington when filing federal income tax returns. The living-expense deduction is now limited to $3,000. The Senate has never given whole-hearted approval to this method of inching up legislators' take-home pay. The fact is that the House provision would be of greatest benefit to the wealthiest members, who could deduct more in Washington living expenses than they receive in congressional pay.

When the legislative appropriation bill comes up for action by the senators, they will have an opportunity to substitute a straightforward pay increase for the tax-relief provision for members, which seems particularly inappropriate at a time when tax relief for others is being delayed beyond earlier expectations. But a boost in congressional pay may seem even more inappropriate in view of the present state of the national finances. If not voted this year, a congressional pay raise may be skipped by the present Congress; in the view of many members voting an increase in the election year 1954 would amount to political suicide.

The timidity of Congress on the subject of its compensation is difficult to understand. An increase in congressional salaries to $25,000 would add only .00717 per cent to the Eisenhower budget of $74.1 billion, and would cost the country only 3.4c per capita. More pay for Congress has the support of former Presidents Hoover and Truman and was recently given warm endorsement by President Eisenhower—on the ground that the comparatively low take-home pay discourages able men from seeking careers in the legislative branch. Virtually all organizations working for better government take a similar view — and have urged pay increases of varying amounts upon the legislators.

According to the report of the Senate Judiciary Committee, senators and representatives are now worse off financially than they were in 1939 when the pay was $10,000 a year. The $15,000 compensation of a member having one dependent and lacking outside sources of income comes down to $12,706 after payment of federal taxes. The committee figures that this is worth $6,724 in terms of 1939 purchasing power. An increase to $25,000 would net the member $19,164 after taxes, which would give him a purchasing-power gain of only $529 over the pay received before World War II.

As an alternative for an immediate salary increase, Senator Dirksen (R., Ill.) has offered legislation to create an outside commission to study the "difficulties and sacrifices" of service in the national legislature and submit recommendations on a proper pay scale for Congress. This proposal carries the endorsement of Senate Majority Leader Taft. The difficulty is that the commission's recommendations could not be submitted until the 1954 session and then there would be the embarrassment of calling them up for action in a year the voters go to the polls.

A way out of that dilemma has been suggested by the Committee for Strengthening Congress. It proposes creation of a very small commission of distinguished citizens—Herbert Hoover, Bernard Baruch, Adlai Stevenson—to make the proposed study and report. When submitted to the presiding officers of the House and Senate, the pay scale recommended by the commission would become effective in a period of 60 days, unless vetoed by one or the other of the two houses of Congress. This device was developed in the 1930s to put through government reorganization plans which had previously been thwarted when offered in the form of legislation. A veto of a congressional pay raise would be highly unlikely; record votes might even be avoided by common consent.

Volume Tank Production

In January 1951 the Chrysler Corporation broke ground for a great new tank plant in Delaware. On July 1, 1952, Mrs. George S. Patton, Jr., the general's widow, christened one of the first off the assembly line as the "Patton 48." Now the first Pattons have pulled out of the plant, by train, on their way to an "undisclosed destination."

For the past year the Chrysler Pattons—these tanks are also made by other firms—have been tested at Army tank centers. The Patton 48 had to negotiate water holes, ditches, steep grades and other obstacles before being pronounced fit for service.

It was new. Like any new and complex machine it was bound to develop "bugs"—and the bugs had to be chased out. There was a temporary hold-up over the functioning of the 90-mm cannon. There were plenty of minor modifications and adjustments to be made before the Army and Chrysler were satisfied.

If the troops in Korea had been short on tanks as well as ammunition the long testing period might have been cut short. Anyway there is a stockpile of Chrysler tanks ready for shipment now, with more to follow. The management speaks of being in "volume production."

That is good news, two and a half years after that little ground-breaking ceremony. For today the Kremlin in Moscow is more than ever, in Churchill's words, "a mystery wrapped in a riddle inside an enigma."

Sell Rubber Plants

One of the most important moves by the administration is the effort to get the government out of business. A measure authorizing sale of synthetic rubber plants to private interests by June of next year has been passed by the House. Under the plan, the President will appoint a three-man commission to receive bids, which must be approved by Congress before sales become final. Plants not sold would become standby installations.

This is in contrast to practices following World War II, when high profits went to favored interests, which salvaged plants and machinery which had cost taxpayers billions of dollars. Plants are to be divided among rubber interests in such a manner that no concern will obtain a monopoly.

Thus the government is going out of the rubber business, as it eventually will do in other lines. There is no emergency that warrants the government's supplementing private enterprise in the production of necessities.

Emotional Development Of The Young

Emotional immaturity is responsible for many nervous ailments and behavior problems of the adult. Such individuals have never grown up emotionally and they go through life with the notion that other people are instruments placed at their disposal to fulfill their desires. This is in sharp contrast to the attitude of the more solid citizens who participate in life in a mature way, thereby realizing the full satisfaction of adult living. A trait as important as maturity is worth cultivating not only in ourselves but in our youngsters.

Most behavior patterns start in early childhood and are fairly well established by adolescence. The emotional aspects are molded to a certain extent by the amount of love, affection, and protection the youngster receives from the parents. The satisfaction derived from knowing he is wanted and a part of the family are of love, affection, and protection the youngster receives from the parents. The satisfaction derived from knowing he is wanted and a part of the family are of love, affection, and protection the youngster receives from the parents. The satisfaction derived from knowing he is wanted and a part of the family are of love, affection, and protection the youngster receives from the parents.

It is well for a young mother to realize that their own attitudes will be reflected in their offspring. By encouraging wholesome play, an interest in religion, and the dignity of work they are laying the foundation for character building. The home that is happy, friendly and free from tension will help boys and girls to cope with life situations in a quiet and peaceful manner. Conversely, impatience, overprotection, and too much affection lead to insecurity or lack of initiative and self-reliance.

With proper upbringing children should have developed most of the favorable traits by adolescence. At this time, however, they are put to the test because there is a tendency to cling to juvenile ways on the one hand and to obey the forces of nature that push toward maturity and emotional independence on the other. Fathers and mothers must not forget that this is a period of conflicting feelings and attitudes and act with kindness and consideration in steering the son or daughter in the right direction.

Teenagers who have the makings of emotional maturity will begin to think of taking on responsibility by selecting a vocation or career. They shift from self-love, which is characteristic of childhood, to the desire to love others. Without this change of attitude they cannot expect to gain the reward that comes from loving some one else. At this stage the feeling of competition should give way to one of cooperation. This does not imply submissiveness but an honest attempt to find one's niche in society. The adolescent must drop feelings of inferiority and become more self-confident because inferiority is part of immaturity and may become a complex, particularly if the youngster suffers from acne, lacks personal charm, or has quit school. Parents can help overcome such personality traits by pouring on affection and encouraging the adolescent to accept himself.

As first revealed in this space, this brilliant State Department official was nominated for a high Defense Department post by the White House itself. These reporters were incorrect in stating, however, that Nitze's appointment had then been vetoed by Sen. Robert A. Taft. This was the official but false version of events given to the Defense Department by the White House congressional liaison, perhaps because the true version was much more embarrassing.

In brief, it was Sen. McCarthy who protested the Nitze appointment to Gen. Parsons. It was in response to Sen. McCarthy's protest that Gen. Parsons raised a warning signal. And it was because they "didn't want another Bohlen case," that the Senate Republican Policy Committee then requested the cancellation of the Nitze nomination. Not Taft, but McCarthy, had interposed this veto. The President submitted with hardly more than a murmur of regret.

This episode is only one of a long series of similar surrenders, all of them highly uncharacteristic of Eisenhower the man, but seemingly standard practice for Eisenhower the politician. The question is whether these surrenders gain the President anything more than the strictly temporary peace and quiet that is the reward of appeasement.

Gen. Parsons of course pleads for such surrenders because he has been the Army's congressional lobbyist for so long. All service lobbyists inevitably acquire the outlook of well worn pieces of camels leather. Equally most of the Republican professionals plead for such surrenders because they do not want trouble, and hope that Sen. McCarthy and his faction will make Republican votes in 1954.

Real Test Coming

The trouble is, however, that McCarthy-made votes will be anti-Eisenhower votes for anti-Eisenhower Republicans, whose elections will further weaken the President's authority both in his party and in the Congress. That should be plain enough after the recent Wisconsin Republican convention, which Sen. McCarthy and his friends transformed into a blatant anti-Eisenhower rally.

The climax of the Wisconsin convention was the public and formal censure of Sen. Alexander Wiley, for opposing the Bricker Amendment to the Constitution at the urgent and personal request of the President. Wiley stood up and took it, on the President's behalf. But now the President has cut the ground from under poor Wiley, by another of his so-called harmony gestures — the sudden offer to compromise on the Bricker Amendment.

Even now, in short, the habit of yielding is spreading to issues of vital national policy. In the present congressional session, the President is going to pass a minimum legislative program, not without many difficulties with the hostile groups in his own party. All sorts of larger, thornier and more controversial issues have been put off to the next session. Then will come the real test of the President's authority.

In the next session, the President will find that his authority has been altogether lost, unless he is willing to start fighting for it pretty soon. The oldest rule of politics is that no one wins a prize that he is not ready to fight for.

The British Program

It has been stated that the British program for the easing of tension with Russia is as follows:

1. The neutralization of Germany.
  2. Special relations between Russia and the satellites.
  3. Full recognition of Red China, and what is called recognition of the Asiatic revolution — if Red China would show more tact and less aggression in bringing it about.
  4. Virtual abandonment of Korea under a formula.
- Let us consider these questions point by point.
1. The neutralization of Germany means that the manpower of Germany and her industrial capacity would be at the disposal neither of NATO nor of Soviet Russia. Germany is to be an ally neither of the United States nor of Soviet Russia.

Neutralization is usually accompanied by disarmament, except for a minor gendarmerie essential to maintain order. This was done by the Paris Treaty after World War I. But Germany countered by creating a gendarmerie of officers who were prepared to take command of a citizen's army when Der Tag came. That army was able to fight on a multitude of fronts for six years. In effect, it is impossible to disarm a people who do not choose to be disarmed.

What guarantee can Soviet Russia give that the Kremlin will not arm a Communist people's army as was done in China between 1924 and 1949 when that army took over the whole country? Such an army could be disguised as a political party. Actually there can be no such guarantee, because international communism is a conspiratorial arrangement for which Russia, as a state, rejects or assumes responsibility at will. The evidence in East Germany is that that area is being integrated into the Russian empire.

2. It is difficult to analyze what the British mean by special rela-

there is no record of how individual members stood on the legislation. Dondero saw to this by calling for a "show of hands," instead of a record roll-call vote.

However, this column is able to report that the following Republicans voted against Eisenhower and for the Niagara giveaway: Dondero, Harry McGregor of Ohio, Hubert Scudder of California, Myron George of Kansas, Charles Oakman of Michigan and Frank Small of Maryland.

Democrats who joined them were John Dempsey of New Mexico and George Fallon of Maryland.

tions between Russia and the satellites. The Lansing-Ishii Agreement between the United States and Japan recognized that propinquity justifies special privileges. This concept undoubtedly produced the Far Eastern phase of World War II, which antedated the European phase by eight years.

Poland is now a province of Russia. Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia are moving toward that goal. East Germany is completely dominated by the Kremlin in the diplomatic and economic fields. What other special relations would the British include in this category?

3. The full recognition of Communist China would end forever the moral authority of the United Nations. For Communist China was the aggressor in the Korean War and sent a conquering army into that territory to fight and defeat what is called the United Nations forces. Recognition of Communist China would mean that the authority of the United Nations to maintain the peace has been successfully challenged. A precedent would thus be set for other nations. It would be like the Japanese challenge of the League of Nations over Manchuria and the Italians challenge over Ethiopia.

Furthermore, it would involve a betrayal by the United States of an ally, Nationalist China, who has stood the test of time. No matter how it is viewed, Chiang Kai-shek did arrest the onward march of the Communist horde. They have not succeeded in conquering Malaya, Indo-China, or Thailand, all of which were within their reach at one time. The mere presence of a Nationalist government on Formosa forced upon the Chinese Communists an unexpected preoccupation which slowed their conquests.

The United States cannot desert Formosa without abandoning every contractual relationship among states. Who trusts a fair-weather friend?

4. Korea is being abandoned. But for the noble patriotism of the old man, Syngman Rhee, the British plan, on this point would have been a complete success. He stood like Horatius at the Bridge and we had to treat with him. Rhee will go down in history as a noble character in an ignoble age.

Winston Churchill's program is that of a very tired man. Maybe all the world is tired. Maybe everybody is prepared to throw in the sponge. Unless we are, Winston Churchill's program ought not to be a guide for America.

Miss Burns To Head Tri-Towns Soroptimists

PIEDMONT — Miss Leonora Burns was elected president of the newly formed Tri-Towns Soroptimist Club at a dinner meeting recently at the Potomac Hotel.

Other officers are Miss Ann Kelly, vice president; Mrs. Katherine Dailey, corresponding secretary; Miss Naoma Flanagan, recording secretary and Mrs. Lois Bell, treasurer.

Board of Directors is composed of Mrs. Margaret Maybury, one year; Miss Maizie Kitzmiller, two years, and Mrs. Alvina Hitt, three years. Miss Nellie Dowling was named regional representative for one year, and Edith Lambert for two years.

Mrs. Blanche Rogers, Baltimore, coordinator of distributive education in a Baltimore High School, named the setup of the Soroptimist Clubs. The local club will be a member of the Southeastern region which is affiliated with the national and international federations.

Miss Edith Reinhardt, Baltimore, chairman of extension for the southeastern region, also assisted in the organizing of the club.

A business meeting will be held at 8 p. m. today at the Piedmont Library.

Oakland Phone Use Increases

OAKLAND — The use of Oakland's telephone service has grown greatly since the change-over to dial service in May, according to R. K. Dayton, manager.

Dayton said that during the busiest periods of the day the volume of calls now handled has reached 802 per hour. On an average business day 10,000 calls are made through the dial machine by Oakland customers, a 25 percent increase since shortly after the dial change-over.

The busiest period of the day usually occurs between 9:30 and 11:30 a. m. Dayton said. He added that on Saturday, however, the greatest usage occurs in the early afternoon, the volume of calls last Saturday reaching 12,685 for the total day.

Telephone officials said that engineering studies are under way to determine the design and amount of additional equipment which is to be installed to meet the growing demand for service.

However, Dayton pointed out since the dial switches and other electrical apparatus must be "tailor made" for each telephone office, it will be some time before the equipment is ready for installation. If dial tone is not heard, hang up, wait a few minutes and then dial again.

Pay Of Congress

Pending on the calendar of the U. S. Senate is a bill, unanimously reported by the Judiciary Committee in May, which would increase the salaries of members of Congress from $15,000 to $25,000 a year. Senators and representatives have long had an eye on a pay raise to $25,000 but something has always arisen to make it seem untimely, as is the case again this year.

An attempt in the House in April to fix congressional salaries at $22,500 was ruled out on a point of order, but in June the House amended the legislative appropriation bill to allow members to deduct the whole of their living expenses in Washington when filing federal income tax returns. The living-expense deduction is now limited to $3,000. The Senate has never given whole-hearted approval to this method of inching up legislators' take-home pay. The fact is that the House provision would be of greatest benefit to the wealthiest members, who could deduct more in Washington living expenses than they receive in congressional pay.

When the legislative appropriation bill comes up for action by the senators, they will have an opportunity to substitute a straightforward pay increase for the tax-relief provision for members, which seems particularly inappropriate at a time when tax relief for others is being delayed beyond earlier expectations. But a boost in congressional pay may seem even more inappropriate in view of the present state of the national finances. If not voted this year, a congressional pay raise may be skipped by the present Congress; in the view of many members voting an increase in the election year 1954 would amount to political suicide.

The timidity of Congress on the subject of its compensation is difficult to understand. An increase in congressional salaries to $25,000 would add only .00717 per cent to the Eisenhower budget of $74.1 billion, and would cost the country only 3.4c per capita. More pay for Congress has the support of former Presidents Hoover and Truman and was recently given warm endorsement by President Eisenhower—on the ground that the comparatively low take-home pay discourages able men from seeking careers in the legislative branch. Virtually all organizations working for better government take a similar view—and have urged pay increases of varying amounts upon the legislators.

According to the report of the Senate Judiciary Committee, senators and representatives are now worse off financially than they were in 1939 when the pay was $10,000 a year. The $15,000 compensation of a member having one dependent and lacking outside sources of income comes down to $12,706 after payment of federal taxes. The committee figures that this is worth $6,724 in terms of 1939 purchasing power. An increase to $25,000 would net the member $19,164 after taxes, which would give him a purchasing-power gain of only $529 over the pay received before World War II.

As an alternative for an immediate salary increase, Senator Dirksen (R., Ill.) has offered legislation to create an outside commission to study the "difficulties and sacrifices" of service in the national legislature and submit recommendations on a proper pay scale for Congress. This proposal carries the endorsement of Senate Majority Leader Taft. The difficulty is that the commission's recommendations could not be submitted until the 1954 session and then there would be the embarrassment of calling them up for action in a year the voters go to the polls.

A way out of that dilemma has been suggested by the Committee for Strengthening Congress. It proposes creation of a very small commission of distinguished citizens—Herbert Hoover, Bernard Baruch, Adlai Stevenson—to make the proposed study and report. When submitted to the presiding officers of the House and Senate, the pay scale recommended by the commission would become effective in a period of 60 days, unless vetoed by one or the other of the two houses of Congress. This device was developed in the 1930s to put through government reorganization plans which had previously been thwarted when offered in the form of legislation. A veto of a congressional pay raise would be highly unlikely; record votes might even be avoided by common consent.

Volume Tank Production

In January 1951 the Chrysler Corporation broke ground for a great new tank plant in Delaware. On July 1, 1952, Mrs. George S. Patton, Jr., the general's widow, christened one of the first off the assembly line as the "Patton 48." Now the first Pattons have pulled out of the plant, by train, on their way to an "undisclosed destination."

For the past year the Chrysler Pattons—these tanks are also made by other firms—have been tested at Army tank centers. The Patton 48 had to negotiate water holes, ditches, steep grades and other obstacles before being pronounced fit for service.

It was new. Like any new and complex machine it was bound to develop "bugs"—and the bugs had to be chased out. There was a temporary hold-up over the functioning of the 90-mm cannon. There were plenty of minor modifications and adjustments to be made before the Army and Chrysler were satisfied.

If the troops in Korea had been short on tanks as well as ammunition the long testing period might have been cut short. Anyway there is a stockpile of Chrysler tanks ready for shipment now, with more to follow. The management speaks of being in "volume production."

That is good news, two and a half years after that little ground-breaking ceremony. For today the Kremlin in Moscow is more than ever, in Churchill's words, "a mystery wrapped in a riddle inside an enigma."

Sell Rubber Plants

One of the most important moves by the administration is the effort to get the government out of business. A measure authorizing sale of synthetic rubber plants to private interests by June of next year has been passed by the House. Under the plan, the President will appoint a three-man commission to receive bids, which must be approved by Congress before sales become final. Plants not sold would become standby installations.

This is in contrast to practices following World War II, when high profits went to favored interests, which salvaged plants and machinery which had cost taxpayers billions of dollars. Plants are to be divided among rubber interests in such a manner that no concern will obtain a monopoly.

Thus the government is going out of the rubber business, as it eventually will do in other lines. There is no emergency that warrants the government's supplementing private enterprise in the production of necessities.

Emotional Development Of The Young

Emotional immaturity is responsible for many nervous ailments and behavior problems of the adult. Such individuals have never grown up emotionally and they go through life with the notion that other people are instruments placed at their disposal to fulfill their desires. This is in sharp contrast to the attitude of the more solid citizens who participate in life in a mature way, thereby realizing the full satisfaction of adult living. A trait as important as maturity is worth cultivating not only in ourselves but in our youngsters.

Most behavior patterns start in early childhood and are fairly well established by adolescence. The emotional aspects are molded to a certain extent by the amount of love, affection, and protection the youngster receives from the parents. The satisfaction derived from knowing he is wanted and a part of the family are of love, affection, and protection the youngster receives from the parents. The satisfaction derived from knowing he is wanted and a part of the family are of inestimable value to any child making him feel secure, adequate, courageous, and willing to face life. When the time comes he is ready to be independent and to compete with others on a mature level. In this respect the boy becomes a man and a girl becomes a woman not only physically and mentally but emotionally.

It is well for young mothers to realize that their own attitudes will be reflected in their offspring. By encouraging wholesome play, an interest in religion, and the dignity of work they are laying the foundation for character building. The home that is happy, friendly and free from tension will help boys and girls to cope with life situations in a quiet and peaceful manner. Conversely, impatience, overprotection, and too much affection lead to insecurity or lack of initiative and self-reliance.

With proper upbringing children should have developed most of the favorable traits by adolescence. At this time, however, they are put to the test because there is a tendency to cling to juvenile ways on the one hand and to obey the forces of nature that push toward maturity and emotional independence on the other. Fathers and mothers must not forget that this is a period of conflicting feelings and attitudes and act with kindness and consideration in steering the son or daughter in the right direction.

Teenagers who have the makings of emotional maturity will begin to think of taking on responsibility by selecting a vocation or career. They shift from self-love, which is characteristic of childhood, to the desire to love others. Without this change of attitude they cannot expect to gain the reward that comes from loving some one else. At this stage the feeling of competition should give way to one of cooperation. This does not imply submissiveness but an honest attempt to find one's niche in society. The adolescent must drop feelings of inferiority and become more self-confident because inferiority is part of immaturity and may become a complex, particularly if the youngster suffers from acne, lacks personal charm, or has quit school. Parents can help overcome such personality traits by pouring on affection and encouraging the adolescent to accept himself.

BED AS PUNISHMENT

Mrs. P. writes: Is putting a child to bed during the day a good means of punishment?

REPLY
No. Bed should be used for sleeping only. If the child associates it with punishment he may rebel against going to bed at night or remain wakeful for hours.

BECOME CALLOUSED

R. C. writes: I find that guitar lessons leave my fingers sore. Will calluses form in time so that I won't find practicing so painful?

REPLY
Those who practice long enough must develop calluses, otherwise the ordinary guitar would have fallen out of favor long ago.

TIRED HEART

P. W. writes: What is meant by an electrocardiogram that states: some myocardial damage?

REPLY
This tracing indicates that the heart is not as young as it used to be. These internal changes go along with outward signs of aging such as graying or thinning of the hair and wrinkling of the skin.

SCALP WEN

M. T. writes: I have had a small wen on my scalp for years. Recently it started to grow larger. Does this mean cancer?

REPLY
No. provided the diagnosis is correct. On the other hand, removal is so simple it would be better to have the lesion taken out rather than entertain such gloomy thoughts.

Life Aboard The Ammunition Ship

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Vandenberg Confers With Truman On Senate Race In Michigan; House Public Works Committee "Gives Away" Niagara Falls Power

WASHINGTON—Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, retiring chief of staff of the Air Force, took a rear elevator up to Room 676 of the Mayflower Hotel the other day and dropped in for a quiet chat with his old boss Harry Truman.

Though one is a Republican and the other a Democrat, the two talked, believe it or not, about politics—specifically about the possibility of Vandenberg's running for the Senate from Michigan against GOP Sen. Homer Ferguson. Truman was eager to have him run.

"I've been a Republican all my life," said General Vandenberg, "but when I see what this administration has done to the Air Force, it almost makes me a Democrat." Truman, who fought for a big military budget, didn't have to express agreement. He has said both privately and publicly that Eisenhower cuts in the Air Force are one of the worst tragedies affecting the security of the nation. On the political front, he told Vandenberg that he would undertake to sound out the governor of Michigan, up-and-coming young "Soapy" Williams, a Democrat, to see whether he would stay out of the Michigan race if Vandenberg ran.

Upon further talks will depend whether, first, Vandenberg runs in the primary as a Republican against Senator Homer Ferguson, also a Republican, and whether he runs as a Democrat in the final election. The ultimate decision will partly depend on Governor Williams. Popular in Michigan, he would be a hard man to beat.

Democratic Mirth

A group of Democratic senators were dissecting the Eisenhower administration recently in the Senate cloakroom.

"What has happened to Eisenhower's initiative on foreign policy?" asked Tennessee's freshman Sen. Albert Gore.

"Syngman Rhee has it," suggested Oklahoma's Sen. Mike Monroney.

"No," someone else blurted, "the Communists have it."

"You're both wrong," broke in Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma. "Rhee and the Communists are rascals over it."

"Anyhow, Eisenhower doesn't have it," agreed Alabama's Sen. John Sparkman.

Enemy Number One

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—Enemy number one is not communism or any other "ism." Enemy number one is weight. I don't refer to your weight or my weight. We all can control this by the simple method of eating less, and thus avoiding "second-helpingitis." Instead, I am referring today to the cost of transportation, amounting to over $100 billion a year, of which I estimate 80 per cent is due to the weight of goods and not to the labor and other costs.

What Causes Weight?
Whatever we eat, wear, or use as a home starts from the forests, mines or farms. At these points of origin the costs are very low. For instance, standing timber sells for $2 per cord; coal in the mine sells for $1 per ton; and a bushel of wheat on the farm for only about $2. We pay 10 times these costs after they are transported to our home or breakfast table. If weight could be reduced 85 per cent I believe the cost of living would tumble 70 per cent.

This brings me to my hobby of Gravity which is the cause of this wasteful weight. Thus far no insulator, absorber, or reflector of Gravity has been discovered, but this will be accomplished someday. All other forces, such as light, sound, fire, odor, electricity, magnetism, X-rays and even atomic rays can be shut off. Metallurgists will soon discover a means of partially insulating or reflecting Gravity waves. This discovery will revolutionize manufacturing, transportation and distribution.

Nothing To Worry About

Some people fear that if we interfere with Gravity they would rise to the ceiling of the room or, if out-of-doors, disappear in the skies. There is absolutely no danger of this. The same fears were expressed when our first ancestors discovered fire and later when Franklin tried to harness lightning. When a partial insulator or reflector of Gravity is discovered it can be controlled as well as fire or electricity or atomic rays. Furthermore, this can be accomplished safely: whether the Gravity waves come from the sky and push us down, or come from the earth and pull us down.

The Gravity Research Foundation of New Boston, N. H., tells me that such an insulator would not reduce our weight if used for shoe soles or stair treads. In order to take advantage of such a partial insulator or reflector we must be wholly encased as if we were in a sealed coffin and this wouldn't do us much good! This is another reason why no one need fear the control of Gravity. We should rather fear the lack of control of our appetites! To us, starches may be more dangerous than Gravity!

How Alloys Will Work

As indicated above, there is little hope of reducing the weight of automobiles, trucks or even freight cars. But there is real hope for reducing the weight of their contents. One of the early developments will be hermetically sealing truck trailers with an anti-gravity alloy. This same principle will be used to reduce the weight of trunks and suitcases. I believe that Russian scientists are now desperately at work to discover a Gravity reflector to very much lessen the weight of the packs which all soldiers carry on their backs. Think what this would mean to the nine million of our own boys. Readers will think of other illustrations but remember that only the enclosed contents can be de-weighted.

Of course the greatest boom would take place in connection with the airplane. Why the government and airplane manufacturers do not give the subject more serious consideration is beyond my comprehension. The engineers answer me by saying they are "too busy with other things to bother about Gravity." My reply is that 40 years ago when the Goodyear company was making lighter-than-air dirigibles and I asked why they did not help the Wright Brothers in making heavier-than-air airplanes, they gave the same reply: "We're too busy." All of which reminds me of what Thomas Edison said to me shortly before he died: "Babson, we don't yet know anything. The young people now graduating from schools and colleges have far greater opportunities than we ever had if they will only work, save and study."

Ike's Politics

WASHINGTON
There is an increasingly sharp split in the President's entourage; between two opposing schools of political strategy.

On one side are most of the members of Eisenhower's personal staff, who would like the President to assert his mastery in his own house. More particularly, this school holds that Eisenhower must assume personal leadership of the Republican party, even at the cost of open conflict with the party's powerful anti-Eisenhower factions.

On the other side are a much smaller group of White House staff members, conspicuously including the congressional liaison man, Maj. Gen. Milton R. Eisenhower, blue most of the congressional leaders and professional Republican politicians. They want party harmony at all costs, even if the pursuit of party harmony required the President to make the most humiliating surrenders to his enemies.

The debate, thus far, has largely centered on what the White House calls "the McCarthy problem." The first real turning point, it is now clear, was the fight over the confirmation of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Moscow. On that occasion, the White House and the State Department being cornered, had to fight Sen. McCarthy. Bohlen was confirmed. Yet the real victory went to McCarthy.

In particular, when the Bohlen fight was over, the Republican Senate leaders went to the White House, to declare that they "didn't want another Bohlen case." The President gave pledges of future cooperation. And Gen. Eisenhower hastened to spread the happy word on Capitol Hill, that Sen. McCarthy and his ilk would thereafter enjoy a virtual veto on all Presidential appointments.

McCarthy Protected

This was the real explanation of the recent case of Paul H. Nitze. As first revealed in this space, this brilliant State Department official was nominated for a high Defense Department post by the White House itself. These reporters were incorrect in stating, however, that Nitze's appointment had then been vetoed by Sen. Robert A. Taft. This was the official but false version of events given to the Defense Department by the White House congressional liaison, perhaps because the true version was much more embarrassing.

In brief, it was Sen. McCarthy who protested the Nitze appointment to Gen. Eisenhower. It was in response to Sen. McCarthy's protest that Gen. Eisenhower raised a warning signal. And it was because they "didn't want another Bohlen case," that the Senate Republican Policy Committee then requested the cancellation of the Nitze nomination. Not Taft, but McCarthy, had interposed this veto. The President submitted with hardly more than a murmur of regret.

This episode is only one of a long series of similar surrenders, all of them highly uncharacteristic of Eisenhower the man, but seemingly standard practice for Eisenhower the politician. The question is whether these surrenders gain the President anything more than the strictly temporary peace and quiet that is the reward of appeasement.

Gen. Persons of course pleads for such surrenders because he has been the Army's congressional lobbyist for so long. All service lobbyists inevitably acquire the outlook of well worn pieces of chamois leather. Equally most of the Republican professionals plead for such surrenders because they do not want trouble, and hope that Sen. McCarthy and his faction will make Republican votes in 1954.

Real Test Coming

The trouble is, however, that McCarthy-made votes will be anti-Eisenhower votes for anti-Eisenhower Republicans, whose elections will further weaken the President's authority both in his party and in the Congress. That should be plain enough after the recent Wisconsin Republican convention, which Sen. McCarthy and his friends transformed into a blatant anti-Eisenhower rally.

The climax of the Wisconsin convention was the public and formal censure of Sen. Alexander Wiley, for opposing the Bricker Amendment to the Constitution at the urgent and personal request of the President. Wiley stood up and took it, on the President's behalf. But now the President has cut the ground from under poor Wiley, by another of his so-called harmony gestures—the sudden offer to compromise on the Bricker Amendment.

Even now, in short, the habit of yielding is spreading to issues of vital national policy. In the present congressional session, the President is going to pass a minimum legislative program, not without many difficulties with the hostile groups in his own party. All sorts of larger, thornier and more controversial issues have been put off to the next session. Then will come the real test of the President's authority.

In the next session, the President will find that his authority has been altogether lost, unless he is willing to start fighting for it pretty soon. The oldest rule of politics is that no one wins a prize that he is not ready to fight for.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The British Program

It has been stated that the British program for the easing of tension with Russia is as follows:

1. The neutralization of Germany.
2. Special relations between Russia and the satellites.
3. Full recognition of Red China, and what is called recognition of the Asiatic revolution—if Red China would show more tact and less aggression in bringing it about.
4. Virtual abandonment of Korea under a formula.

Let us consider these questions point by point.

1. The neutralization of Germany means that the manpower of Germany and her industrial capacity would be at the disposal neither of NATO nor of Soviet Russia. Germany is to be an ally neither of the United States nor of Soviet Russia.

Neutralization is usually accompanied by disarming, except for a minor gendarmerie essential to maintain order. This was done by the Paris Treaty after World War I. But Germany countered by creating a gendarmerie of officers who were prepared to take command of a citizen's army when Der Tag came. That army was able to fight on a multitude of fronts for six years. In effect, it is impossible to disarm a people who do not choose to be disarmed.

What guarantee can Soviet Russia give that the Kremlin will not arm a Communist people's army as was done in China between 1924 and 1949 when that army took over the whole country? Such an army could be disguised as a political party. Actually there can be no such guarantee, because international communism is a conspiratorial arrangement for which Russia, as a state, rejects or assumes responsibility at will. The evidence in East Germany is that that area is being integrated into the Russian empire.

2. It is difficult to analyze what the British mean by special relations between Russia and the satellites. The Lansing-Ishii Agreement between the United States and Japan recognized that proximity justifies special privileges. This concept undoubtedly produced the Far Eastern phase of World War II, which antedated the European phase by eight years.

Poland is now a province of Russia. Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia are moving toward that goal. East Germany is conquered territory. China is completely dominated by the Kremlin in the diplomatic and economic fields. What other special relations would the British include in this category?

3. The full recognition of Communist China would end forever the moral authority of the United Nations. For Communist China was the aggressor in the Korean War and sent a conquering army into that territory to fight and defeat what is called the United Nations forces. Recognition of Communist China would mean that the authority of the United Nations to maintain the peace has been successfully challenged. A precedent would thus be set for other nations. It would be like the Japanese challenge of the League of Nations over Manchuria and the Italians challenge over Ethiopia.

Furthermore, it would involve a betrayal by the United States of an ally, Nationalist China, who has stood the test of time. No matter how it is viewed, Chiang Kai-shek did arrest the onward march of the Communist horde. They have not succeeded in conquering Malaya, Indo-China, or Thailand, all of which were within their reach at one time. The mere presence of a Nationalist government on Formosa forced upon the Chinese Communists an unexpected preoccupation which slowed their conquests.

The United States cannot desert Formosa without abandoning every contractual relationship among states. Who trusts a fair-weather friend?

4. Korea is being abandoned. But for the noble patriotism of the old man, Syngman Rhee, the British plan, on this point, would have been a complete success. He stood like Horatius at the Bridge and we had to treat with him. Rhee will go down in history as a noble character in an ignoble age.

Winston Churchill's program is that of a very tired man. Maybe all the world is tired. Maybe everybody is prepared to throw in the sponge. Unless we are, Winston Churchill's program ought not to be a guide for America.

Miss Burns To Head Tri-Towns Soroptimists

PIEDMONT — Miss Leonora Burns was elected president of the newly formed Tri-Towns Soroptimist Club at a dinner meeting recently at the Potomac Hotel.

Other officers are Miss Ann Kelly, vice president; Mrs. Katherine Dailey, corresponding secretary; Miss Naoma Flanagan, recording secretary and Mrs. Lois Bell, treasurer.

Board of Directors is composed of Mrs. Margaret Maybury, one year; Miss Maizie Kitzmiller, three years, and Mrs. Alvina Hitt, three years. Miss Nellie Dowling was named regional representative for one year, and Edith Lambert for two years.

Mrs. Blanche Rogers, Baltimore, coordinator of distributive education in a Baltimore High School, named the setup of the Soroptimist Clubs. The local club will be a member of the Southeastern region which is affiliated with the national and international federations.

Miss Edith Reinhardt, Baltimore, chairman of extension for the southeastern region, also assisted in the organizing of the club.

A business meeting will be held at 8 p. m. today at the Piedmont Library.

Oakland Phone Use Increases

OAKLAND — The use of Oakland's telephone service has grown greatly since the change-over to dial service in May, according to R. K. Dayton, manager.

Dayton said that during the busiest periods of the day the volume of calls now handled has reached 802 per hour. On an average business day 10,000 calls are made through the dial machine by Oakland customers, a 25 percent increase since shortly after the dial change-over.

The busiest period of the day usually occurs between 9:30 and 11:30 a. m. Dayton said. He added that on Saturday, however, the greatest usage occurs in the early afternoon, the volume of calls last Saturday reaching 12,685 for the total day.

Telephone officials said that engineering studies are under way to determine the design and amount of additional equipment which is to be installed to meet the growing demand for service.

However, Dayton pointed out since the dial switches and other electrical apparatus must be "tailor made" for each telephone office, it will be some time before the equipment is ready for installation.

If dial tone is not heard, hang up, wait a few minutes and then dial again.

Rotary Seats New Officers

PIEDMONT — Newly elected officers of the Piedmont Rotary Club were installed at a dinner meeting last week at the Potomac Hotel.

Elmer J. Shaver, local manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, succeeds H. Glenn Boyd as president.

Potomac State Names Winners Of Scholarships

KEYSER — Joseph Reed, son of Rev. and Mrs. Benjamin Reed, Burlington, has been named winner of the George R. Davis Scholarship to Potomac State College.

The announcement of the scholarship was made last week by Paul F. Iverson, chairman of the scholarship committee, which also has as its members Miss Ann Withers and John O. Maiden, both of the Potomac State faculty.

The scholarship, in honor of the late Mr. Davis, who was president and cashier of the Farmers and Merchants Bank, provides $150 for an entering freshman from any Mineral County school.

At the same time winners of two other scholarships to the local college were named.

One is the Faculty Scholarship, awarded to Miss Janet C. Thayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Thayer, Arlington, Va., which provides $150 per year for a two-year period, granted a graduate of any high school in any state.

The other is the W. B. Woolf Scholarship, sponsored by the prominent Keyser businessman. Providing $150 per year for a two-year period, this award was made to Albert Whitmer, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Whitmer, Sr., Petersburg.

Oakland Guard Wins Honors

OAKLAND — Members of Company "C," Oakland National Guard, are setting a good record at the two weeks' encampment period at Camp AP Hill, Fredricksburg, Va.

Sergeant Herschel Johnson took first place in an assault boat crossing competition on Tuesday, while others also won honors.

Cpl. Frederick Thayer was first in a demolition road crater squad competition, while Sgt. Floyd Wensel and Mahlon Yost were second on a "gin pole" competition. The company took second place in the battalion track meet. Participants were Roland Schoch, Thomas Sheehey, Donald Johnson, Darwin Sanders, Stanley Bittinger, James Sowers, Herbert Meyers and Robert King, and placed in the various events. The softball team was leading the Battalion.

Parsons Legion Seats Officers, Names Delegates

PARSONS — J. H. Hershberger of Hendricks was installed as commander of Cheat Valley Post 101, American Legion of Parsons. Officers were installed by J. L. Halderman of Thornton, commander of the Ninth District.

Other new officers installed were Glen Fankhouser, first vice commander; Fred Hansford, second vice commander; Lorren K. Lambert, third vice commander; Jared J. Parsons Jr., post historian; Cecil M. Stalnaker, post chaplain; Joseph Bundy, post sergeant-at-arms; Claude G. Shaffer, custodian of property.

W. R. Grandstaff was re-elected adjutant; R. K. McClain, service officer; Fred Long, Americanism officer; Ellis J. VonHaven, post chief welfare officer, and Robert O. Shrout, post finance officer.

The veterans made a donation to the Youth Center of Parsons. Commander Hershberger and W. R. Grandstaff were elected as delegate and alternate to the department convention to be held in July.

Lonaconing VFW Plans Carnival

LONAICONING — Alvin C. Neat Post 5280, Veterans of Foreign Wars, plan to hold a carnival celebration in July.

Harold William Moyer, junior vice commander, presided at the VFW meeting. Post Commander Calvin James attended the Veterans of Foreign Wars state encampment in Baltimore and will report on the meeting to the Lonaconing post.

Thursday, July 9, is the next scheduled meeting night for the post.

Giants Roll Up Highest Score, Wallop Dodgers

Gather 16 Hits, Five Homers In 20-6 Rout

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP) — Scoring in each of the first seven innings, the New York Giants pummeled four Brooklyn pitchers unmercifully today, rolling up the National League season's highest run total as they overwhelmed the pace-setting Dodgers, 20-6 before 36,733 unbelieving fans.

In handing the Dodgers their worst defeat in several seasons, the Giants amassed 16 hits that included five home runs. Hank Thompson blasted two round trippers, one with the bases loaded. He also singled twice to drive in seven runs. Alvin Dark, Bobby Thomson and Daryl Spencer also homered for the winners.

Sal Maglie, encouraged by his teammates' heavy cannonading, coasted to his sixth triumph of the season, his second without a defeat over the Dodgers.

British Open Starts Today

160 Will Participate; Hogan Is 9-4 Choice

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, July 5 (AP)—The British Open Tournament starts early tomorrow in this tent-littered town where thousands of Scots have flocked up for the biggest golf rush since Bobby Jones was at his peak.

And from the fans point of view the tournament might very well be renamed the "Ben Hogan Open." Hogan is the 9-4 favorite despite the fact he is known here only by reputation. He has never hit a golf ball in competition in the British Isles but when he tees off on the Burnside course just after 8:00 a.m. (EST.), a good bit of Scotland is expected to follow.

In Scotland "Ben" means mountain and Hogan is just that to these descendants of the golf inventors of 400 years ago.

Hogan is such an attraction, such a living legend since he won the U.S. Open three times after being almost killed in an auto accident in 1949, that his galleries alone during the five day meet are expected to reach 15,000 persons per round.

The other stars who open this international extravaganza on both the Championship and Burnside courses include America's Lloyd Mangrum and amateur Frank Stranahan and South Africa's defending champion, Bobby Locke.

Out of about 160 starters, the low 100 scorers start the championship proper Wednesday with an 18 hole round on the 7,200 yard, approximately par 72 championship course.

Roberts Cops 13th From Pirates, 2-0

PITTSBURGH, July 5 (AP)—Rapid Robin Roberts, aiding his own cause with a two-out double in the 10th inning, stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 today for the Philadelphia Phillies in the first game of a doubleheader and his 13th victory of the season. The second contest was halted by the Pennsylvania curfew law after 6:13 innings with the Pirates leading 7-0. The Sunday curfew law stipulates no sports event shall start or continue after 6 p.m. (EST). The game will be completed from point of interruption here Aug. 11.

Lanky Jim Waugh, 19-year-old righthander recalled by the Pirates from Burlington in the Carolina League, allowed the Phillies six hits until the second game was called in the last of the seventh with one out and two Phillies aboard.

Tribe Shut Out By Pierce, 4-0

Cleveland Captures Opening Contest, 7-6

CLEVELAND, July 5 (AP)—South-paw Billy Pierce regained the Chicago White Sox their half-game hold on second place today by throwing a five-hit, 4-0 shutout at the Cleveland Indians after the Tribe won the twin bill's opener 7-6.

In winning his 10th against four losses and his third shutout, Pierce didn't allow a Cleveland runner to reach third. Not until the eighth was the Tribe able to get two hits off him in one inning. One of these was a single by Dale Mitchell who has a 15-game hitting streak going. Pierce struck out four to run his league-leading total to 79.

Bob Elliott's bat provided Pierce sufficient runs to win. Elliott singled after Minnie Minoso's double in the fourth for the first White Sox run and hit his seventh homer of the season over the left field fence to lead off the sixth.

16 Players Chosen By Four Million Fans For All-Star Game

Stengel, Dressen To Select Hurlers For July 14 Battle

Crosley Field Scene
Of Action; 4,403,338
Votes Cast In 22 Days

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP) — Sixteen players chosen by nearly 4½ million fans in a world-wide poll were named today for the 20th annual big league All-Star game at Cincinnati's Crosley Field July 14.

All first team spots for National and American League teams were filled by the poll except those of the pitchers. Pitcher selections will be announced in a day or so by Managers Casey Stengel and Chuck Dressen.

The two managers will also pick supporting personnel to back up the fans' first teams in the outfield, infield and back of the home plate.

4,403,338 Votes Cast
Tabulators announced 4,403,338 votes were cast in this year's poll — total beaten only in 1949 when 4,637,743 votes were counted.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

1B-Red Kluwe, Cincinnati .305
2B-Red Schoendienst, St. Louis .346
3B-Ed Mathews, Milwaukee .305
SS-Harold Reese, Brooklyn .278
LF-Stan Musial, St. Louis .308
CF-Gus Bell, Cincinnati .318
RF-Enos Slaughter, St. Louis .288
C-Roy Campanella, Brooklyn .300

AMERICAN LEAGUE

1B-Mickey Vernon, Washington .326
2B-Billy Goodman, Boston .317
3B-A. J. Ryan, Philadelphia .318
SS-Chico Carrasquel, Chicago .259
LF-Gus Zernial, Philadelphia .272
CF-Mickey Mantle, New York .309
RF-Hank Bauer, New York .296
C-Larry Berra, New York .268

The poll's highest individual vote-getter was Kluwe, with 1,652,803. He will make his debut in the annual inter-league classic.

Here are final tabulations on the leaders:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Gordon Bowie and Walter Eyler, Cumberland, defeated Glenn Workman and Earl Michaels, Keyser, 6-2, 9-7.

Red Schoendienst's Pinch Homer Gives Cards Even Break

MILWAUKEE, July 5 (AP) — Red Schoendienst's pinch homer gave St. Louis a 4-1 triumph over Milwaukee in the second game of a doubleheader halted by darkness at the end of eight innings today after the Braves had won the opener, 4-0.

The split, coupled with Brooklyn's 20-6 pasting by New York, enabled the Braves to slice a half-game off the Dodgers' lead to trail in the National League pennant scramble by 1½ games.

Schoendienst, taken out of the opener in the sixth inning with a groin injury, hit for Steve Bilko with two out and laced one of Max Surkont's pitches over the right-field fence to score Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter, who had walked. The Cardinals' first run came in the same inning when Manager Eddie Stanky, replacing Schoendienst at second base, singled, was sacrificed to second and scored on Peanuts Lowrey's fly after the two walks.

Marshall Combs tossed a four-hitter in Petersburgh's triumph over Wardsville. He pitched hitless ball for 6 2/3 frames and struck out four. Jimmy Kessel paced the Merchants at the plate with three hits in four trips while Harold Sheppard hit safely in two official times at bat.

The Lost City-Franklin game yesterday was stopped in the first inning by rain. Franklin was leading by the score of 3-0 in the first inning when Jupe Pluvius put in his appearance.

In Saturday contests, Lost City defeated Romney, 11-3; Moorefield topped Wardsville, 9-2; and Franklin downed Petersburgh 9-1.

Altoona Flyers Beat Maids, 6-2

Altoona's Flyers defeated the East Side Maids of the Queens Softball League by the score of 6-2 yesterday at East Side Field.

Becky Lechlitter's homer with a mate aboard in the sixth accounted for both of East Side's tallies.

Witt homered for the Pennsylvania team. Score: Altoona 6, East Side 2.

Brown and Campbell, D. Adams and Lechlitter (East Side); Witt (Altoona).

Kiner Clouts Pair As Cubs, Reds Split

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP) — Ralph Kiner included his number 17 and 18 home runs among four the Cubs hit in the second game of a doubleheader but Cincinnati rode a five-run seventh inning spurt to an 8-6 victory. The sixth place Reds suffered an 8-4 loss in the opener before 24,983.

Hank Sauer belted his eleventh homer and Bill Serena his fourth in the collection of 10 Chicago hits in the nightcap off winner Clyde King and Joe Nuxhall, who arrived in the seventh inning to mop up.

Keeping Up With Hollywood by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 5 (INS)—You'd think Guy Madison was a brand new personality the way they're raving about him at Warner's since he turned in such a good acting job in "The Charge at Feather River." He's even being touted as a second (and younger) Gary Cooper.

Two or three years ago you couldn't give Guy to any of the majors. His career had slipped badly and he couldn't get a job until TV brought him to the fore in "Wild Bill Hickok."

After "Feather River" it was a foregone conclusion that Warner would get Guy before the cameras again soon. "The Rear Guard," another western, has been selected for him, with David Butler as his director.

This, to me, is one of the exciting stories of the year. I'm only sorry I have to give it to you as a rumor on account it's all being kept very hush-hush.

Grace Moore's famous picture, "One Night of Love," is being re-written at Columbia but without a woman star. The lead will be a man this time, and Mario Lanza has been quietly negotiating with Columbia for the top role.

Mario is free now and there's nothing to keep him from putting his name on the dotted line—and this story he particularly likes.

Debbie Reynolds, considered a doll by the teenage group, gets a loanout check from MGM to make "Susan Slept Here" for Alex Gottlieb. Alex co-authored the play with Steve Fisher, but if I'm not mistaken it played only on the West Coast.

Anyway, Debbie is happy about this new movie assignment. She is playing summer stock but she's quitting "Best Foot Forward" to hurry home to start work Aug. 1.

Debbie was disappointed when "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" was postponed and she lost out on a trip to Europe.

The mother of Debra Paget, plump Margaret Griffin, herself an actress, is very annoyed at the rumors and talk about the 6-karat diamond ring Debbie is wearing on her engagement finger.

Said Margaret, "If they don't stop talking so much about this ring, Debbie is going to find her self on a raft without a paddle."

Then mama explained that the mysterious gentleman who gave the ring to Debbie doesn't like all the excitement the "bauble" has created.

After keeping 20th Century-Fox on the anxious seat for weeks and weeks, Robert Mitchum notified the studio Friday that he definitely will be on hand to play opposite Marilyn Monroe in "River of No Return."

The one concession he asked was that he be allowed to take his wife, Dorothy, on location when the company leaves for Jasper National Park in Canada. That was okay with Darryl Zanuck, so Dorothy, who is one of the sweetest gals I know and one of the best wives, goes along.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Jane Harvey obtained a 24 hour quickie divorce from Jay Hyde, son of the late John Hyde, in Alabama.

Don Loper lands in Paris via TWA on Thursday for a month's stay. With him is Colonel Northrup and Emmy Burlingame. Don is on a month's buying tour. He'll also visit London and Milan.

At the opening at the Cresendo, Huntington Hartford was receiving congratulations on the birth of his son John.

Flo and Jack Haley were there to hear Bobby Short, who plays and sings jazz in the continental fashion—and good!—and Gloria Craig sing, and Marvin Roy do his prestidigitations with lights.

John Lindsay stopped by our table to say he'd had a letter from Diana Lynn from London and she's very happy.

Jerry Hirschfeld, owner of the Tropical Park (whose ex-wife recently married Beldon Kattelman) sat with us. He's here on some big business deal.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

"Operation Checkup" Planned By County Civil Defense Unit

A meeting of all supervisors of the various agencies of Civil Defense in the county will be held the first week of August to discuss "Operation Checkup," a statewide air raid test recently announced by Gov. McKeldin.

Shirley Ewing, state Civil Defense director, announced that "all traffic should stop" and everyone should "take cover" during the test.

"Operation Checkup" may start with a notice that unidentified aircraft are several hours away from the state.

The Red Warning (attack imminent) will last for three minutes and will be followed immediately by the attack period which will last for another three minutes. The White Signal (all clear) will then be given for seven minutes.

Ewing said that the general public will have normal activities interrupted for six minutes "at the very most."

This will be the first statewide test since World War II and will take place during daylight hours. Allegany county continues to lead the state with six of the 18 established GOC posts that operate on a 24 hour basis. A total of 134 posts are necessary to meet air force requirements. There are only 36 to date in this state.

Lt. Laurence Lawhorne and T. Sgt. William A. Henning of the Pittsburgh Filter Center recently visited several posts in the county checking on the heavy air traffic in the area.

Bedford Road post leads the county in new volunteers with forty. Frostburg follows with four and Cumberland and Cresaptown report three each. Women volunteers outnumber the men thirty four to sixteen.

Volunteering at Cresaptown are Marlene Twigg, Julie Gardner and Frances Wilson.

10 Area Scouts Leave Thursday For Jamboree

Will Be Gone Until July 30

Ten Tri-State Boy Scouts will attend the National Scout Jamboree at Irvine Ranch near Santa Ana, Calif.

They will leave Cumberland aboard a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train at 1:15 p. m. Thursday. From Cumberland will be Robert Jones, 315 Race Street; Robert D. Coleman, 320 South Street; and Kent Smith, LaVale.

From Tri-Towns will be Alton R. Fortney Jr. and Kermit Wildman, both of Luke, and Richard Reilly and John Farrell, both of Westernport.

From other parts of the council will be Samuel R. Fisher, Moorefield; H. Timothy Park, Petersburg; and Frederick Sheetz, Keyser.

Harry "Micky" Anthony Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anthony, former residents of Frostburg who recently moved to Cleveland, will also join with the local contingent. He is a former member of Troop 28 at Frostburg.

Their leader will be Harry J. Biggs, of Westernport, veteran Scoutmaster.

At Pittsburgh the Potomac Council Jamboree Troop will board a special train with air-conditioned sleeping coaches and two diners for the cross-country trip to the national event.

Stops will be made at Omaha, Neb., and Denver. After a church service Sunday, July 12, the scouts on the train will be taken on a sightseeing trip through Yellowstone National Park.

The train will also stop at Salt Lake City for a bus tour and a chance for the Scouts to swim in Great Salt Lake.

The National Jamboree will take place Friday, July 17, through Thursday, July 23. Fifty-thousand Scouts will live in a tent city erected on 3,000 acres of rolling hills overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Each Scout takes with him camping equipment including a tent to make himself self-sustaining in the outdoors. Food will be supplied at the jamboree headquarters and will be cooked outdoors.

On the return trip Saturday July 25, the troop's train will stop at Grand Canyon, Chicago and arrive in Cumberland on July 30.

Last weekend the ten Scouts and their leaders held an overnight practice session for the jamboree at Camp Potomac, the council camp near Oldtown, this county.

There was practice in erecting two-man tents they will use and in cooking on the charcoal stoves that will be used at the Jamboree.

Six Preston County, W. Va., Boy Scouts will attend the jamboree. They are Marshall Johnson of Terra Alta; David Sherren and Kenneth Parsons, both of Kingwood; Robert Gibson, Richard Dixon and Pindie Roth, all of Arthurdale.

Schultz Wins Watch In Eagles' Contest

Francis Schultz, trustee of Cumberland Aerie No. 245, has been announced as winner of the 55th anniversary membership drive of the Fraternal Order of Eagles just completed.

M. L. Brown, administrative director of the Eagles at the Grand Aerie in Kansas City, yesterday advised Schultz that the 11 new members he produced for the local aerie has won him first prize in the drive.

For winning the contest, Schultz will receive a gold wrist watch from the Grand Aerie.

Daily Bridge Lesson by Shepard Barclay

STRENGTH ONE FACTOR

THE SHEER strength of your hand, from the general standpoint, is only one factor to consider when deciding whether or not to attempt a penalty double. The location of that strength, your specific distribution, and the type of strength also bear upon the question of whether or not you probably can beat the doubled contract, and by how much. If the matter of how much seems satisfactory, you must then weigh it in the light of the existing vulnerability. Even after all that is settled to your own satisfaction, you still must compare the probable gain from a double with the likely score attainable by your own side if you take different action.

None

K102
AQJ32

Roy LeBlanc, of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, has asked two questions about that hand. North had opened with 1-Spade. East had bid 1-Heart and South doubled with the holding given. Is this a penalty double, and is the hand strong enough for that or for a takeout? Since South's partner had bid, the double was a penalty one, hoping to beat the contract.

Col. Mark C. Fox, one of the great engineers of the United States Air Force, who had just returned to the States after important years with the headquarters of the Allied Air Forces Southern Europe, in Florence, Italy, and then in Ankara, Turkey, who ranks with the very best bridge players in American fighting forces, answers the second question lucidly, thus:

"It is necessary to know the status of vulnerability and whether or not a part score is involved, to answer conclusively. It is essential to consider the points possibly makeable by South's own side. South can promise only one trump trick at hearts. Though North has indicated about 12 to 14 points—by the 4, 3, 2, 1 count—he has promised only two defensive tricks.

"Since South has a three-suiter, it is probable East is short in at least one suit, which might be clubs. Thus South can't confidently expect to set 2-Hearts more than about one trick, and can't be sure of doing it at all. It might even develop that North could never get a chance to lead his spades. North surely is short in hearts, so maybe his side could do well cross-ruffing with clubs or diamonds as trumps."

Col. Fox didn't say what he would do, but probably would favor a free bid of 3-Clubs over 2-Hearts, as we would, regardless of vulnerability.

"Welcome Notes" Greet Visitors Here

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Hot weather complicates the problem of keeping your make-up looking fresh through prolonged hours. If, in addition to being warm, you are also excited or exhilarated, it may be almost impossible to apply cosmetics, unless you know one trick: It's the application of just plain cold, cold, water.

Careers and those who must be away from home hours at a time should be sure that their first make-up of the day starts with a careful smoothing on of the right foundation—a foundation that is specially formulated for your skin, whether dry, normal or oily.

How To Powder

The powdering also should be done with extra care. Starting with a fresh piece of absorbent cotton, dip it generously into your powder. Apply the powder to your face firmly, gently pressing it on. Never fluff it or you will not achieve the smooth finish of the experts.

Begin at the outer edge of your left cheek, near your ear and work upward across your forehead around the right side of your face, across your chin and well under it. Remember your neck is part of your face when it comes to cosmetic application.

The center areas next get attention. Fill them in with the same press-on method, powdering your nose last. Avoid your eyelids entirely.

Though you look like a fugitive from a four barrel at this moment, you won't after you take a clean piece of cotton and remove the excess powder with quick, light, downward strokes from your forehead to the base of your neck. Then look at yourself—you'll see a smooth looking, long-lasting make-up as natural looking as that of a professional model!

Make-up Refresher

What about the cold water? Where does it come in? Well, if you have applied your foundation and powder accordingly to the above method, anytime during the day that you feel your face needs a bit of repair or refreshing, just take a piece of cleansing tissue, wring out in the coldest water available. Carefully pat it over your face (do not rub!) and then look into the mirror.

You'll be amazed to discover that your make-up looks newly applied! The foundation is completely undisturbed. You can't believe it, but even the need you felt for fresh powder just a few minutes before now seems superfluous! But if you do want to repowder, now you can without any danger of streaking or matting. Plain cold water is a great cosmetic aid.

Rotarians Finally Receive Yule Card From India Club

10 Area Scouts Leave Thursday For Jamboree

Will Be Gone

Ten Tri-State Boy Scouts will attend the National Scout Jamboree at Irvine Ranch near Santa Ana, Calif.

They will leave Cumberland aboard a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train at 1:15 p. m. Thursday. From Cumberland will be Robert Jones, 315 Race Street; Robert D. Coleman, 320 South Street, and Kent Smith, LaVale.

From Tri-Towns will be Alton R. Foreney Jr. and Kermit Wildman, both of Luke, and Richard Reilly and John Farrell, both of Westernport.

From other parts of the council will be Samuel R. Fisher, Moorefield; H. Timothy Park, Petersburg; and Frederick Sheets, Keyser.

Harry "Micky" Anthony Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Anthony, former residents of Frostburg who recently moved to Cleveland, will also join with the local contingent. He is a former member of Troop 28 at Frostburg.

Their leader will be Harry J. Biggs, of Westernport, veteran Scoutmaster.

At Pittsburgh the Potomac Council Jamboree Troop will board a special train with air-conditioned sleeping coaches and two diners for the cross-country trip to the national event.

Stops will be made at Omaha, Neb., and Denver. After a church service Sunday, July 12, the scouts on the train will be taken on a sightseeing trip through Yellowstone National Park.

The train will also stop at Salt Lake City for a bus tour and a chance for the Scouts to swim in Great Salt Lake.

The National Jamboree will take place Friday, July 17, through Thursday, July 23. Fifty-thousand Scouts will live in a tent city erected on 3,000 acres of rolling hills overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Each Scout takes with him camping equipment including a tent to make himself self-sustaining in the outdoors. Food will be supplied at the jamboree headquarters and will be cooked outdoors.

On the return trip Saturday July 25, the troop's train will stop at Grand Canyon, Chicago and arrive in Cumberland on July 30.

Last weekend the ten Scouts and their leaders held an overnight practice session for the jamboree at Camp Potomac, the council camp near Oldtown, this county.

There was practice in erecting two-man tents they will use and in cooking on the charcoal stoves that will be used at the Jamboree.

Six Preston County, W. Va., Boy Scouts will attend the jamboree. They are Marshall Johnson of Terra Alta; David Sherren and Kenneth Parsons, both of Kingwood; Robert Gibson, Richard Dixon and Pindie Roth, all of Arthurdale.

Schultz Wins Watch In Eagles' Contest

Francis Schultz, trustee of Cumberland Aerie No. 245, has been announced as winner of the 55th anniversary membership drive of the Fraternal Order of Eagles just completed.

M. L. Brown, administrative director of the Eagles at the Grand Aerie in Kansas City, yesterday advised Schultz that the 11 new members he produced for the local aerie has won him first prize in the drive.

STRENGTH ONE FACTOR

THE SHEER strength of your hand, from the general standpoint, is only one factor to consider when deciding whether or not to attempt a penalty double. The location of that strength, your specific distribution, and the type of strength also bear upon the question of whether or not you probably can beat the doubled contract, and by how much. If the matter of how much seems satisfactory, you must then weigh it in the light of the existing vulnerability. Even after all that is settled to your own satisfaction, you still must compare the probable gain from a takeout or a takeout? Since South's partner had bid, the double was a penalty one, hoping to beat the contract.

Col. Mark C. Fox, one of the great engineers of the United States Air Force, who had just returned to the States after important years with the headquarters of the Allied Air Forces Southern Europe, in Florence, Italy, and then in Ankara, Turkey, who ranks with the very best bridge players in American fighting forces, answers the second question lucidly, thus:

"It is necessary to know the status of vulnerability and wither or not a part score is involved, to answer conclusively. It is essential to consider the points possibly makeable by South's own side. South can promise only one trump trick at hearts. Though North has indicated about 12 to 14 points—by the 4, 3, 2, 1—he has promised only two defensive tricks.

"Since South has a three-suit-er, it is probable East is short in at least one suit, which might be clubs. Thus South can't confidently expect to set 2-Hearts more than about one trick, and can't be sure of doing it at all. It might even develop that North could never get a chance to lead his spades. North surely is short in hearts, so maybe his side could do well cross-ruffing with clubs or diamonds as trumps."

Col. Fox didn't say what he would do, but probably would favor a free bid of 3-Clubs over 2-Hearts, as we would, regardless of vulnerability.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Hot weather complicates the problem of keeping your make-up looking fresh through prolonged hours. If, in addition to being warm, you are also excited or exhilarated, it may be almost impossible to apply cosmetics, unless you know one trick: It's the application of just plain cold, cold, water.

Careers and those who must be away from home hours at a time should be sure that their first make-up of the day starts with a careful smoothing on of the right foundation — a foundation that is specially formulated for your skin, whether dry, normal or oily.

How To Powder The powdering also should be done with extra care. Starting with a fresh piece of absorbent cotton, dip it generously into your powder. Apply the powder to your face firmly, gently pressing it on. Never fluff it or you will not achieve the smooth finish of the experts.

Begin at the outer edge of your left cheek, near your ear and work upward across your forehead around the right side of your face, across your chin and well under it. Remember your neck is part of your face when it comes to cosmetic application.

The center areas next get attention. Fill them in with the same press-on method, powdering your nose last. Avoid your eyelids entirely.

Though you look like a fugitive from a flour barrel at this moment, you won't after you take a clean piece of cotton and remove the excess powder with quick, light, downward strokes from your forehead to the base of your neck. Then look at yourself — you'll see a smooth looking, long-lasting make-up as natural looking as that of a professional model!

Make-up Refresher What about the cold water? Where does it come in? Well, if you have applied your foundation and powder accordingly to the above method, anytime during the day that you feel your face needs a bit of repair or refreshing, just take a piece of cleansing tissue wrapped out in the coldest water available. Carefully pat it over your face (do not rub!) and then look into the mirror.

You'll be amazed to discover that your make-up looks newly applied! The foundation is completely undisturbed. You can't believe it, but even the need you felt for fresh powder just a few minutes before now seems superfluous! But if you do want to repowder, now you can without any danger of streaking or matting. Plain cold water is a great cosmetic aid

Focusing attention on welcoming visitors to Cumberland, the Chamber of Commerce has distributed "welcome notes" in local hotels and motels.

The "welcome card" in every hotel room, reads as follows: "To you who enter this room as guests, the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce extends a friendly welcome. We wish we could be privileged to greet you in person. Since this is not always possible, we take this means of telling you we are pleased that you are visiting our city."

"This is your home, be it only for a night or a day, and the community, through the Chamber of Commerce and the management of the hotel, wishes you a pleasant sojourn."

"You are in a city which is the business and financial center of a broad area encompassing parts of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. It has a diversity of outstanding industries, a large variety of modern stores, representative wholesale firms in many lines, excellent banking facilities and many types of service establishments. Throughout the area are scenic and historical attractions that will help make your visit delightful."

"Local newspapers are the 'News,' morning, and the 'Times,' evening and Sundays. Local broadcasting stations, with their networks and dial numbers, are WCUM (CBS) 1940; WDYC (ABC-Mutual) 1230; and WTBO (NBC) 1450. These offer you a comprehensive coverage of news and amusements. From India Club

The Cumberland Rotary Club last week received a much-forwarded card from the Ganhinagar, Kakinada (South India) Club which expressed greetings for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Mailed in time for the past Yule season, the card first went to Cumberland, Ky., and Cumberland, Me. then to (New) Cumberland, Pa., and finally to the local destination.

Postal authorities claim that although such cases are rare, mail scheduled for this city is sometimes sent to Kentucky and Pennsylvania, as well as Cumberland, Ind., and Cumberland, Me.

Naughton To Lecture
Carolina Bankers

Joseph M. Naughton, president of The Second National Bank of Cumberland, has again been invited to give two lectures at the Carolina Bank Conference in Chapel Hill, N. C. next week.

The conference, which lasts one week, is attended by 500 bankers from Virginia, North and South Carolina, and Georgia. All sessions are held at the University of North Carolina.

Naughton, accompanied by his son, William D. Naughton, will leave for this speaking engagement on July 13. This will mark his second appearance in the annual program of the Carolina Conference.

Lindbergh—The Lone Eagle

We were having a very excellent dinner with George Pattullo, the old-time war correspondent who got rich, when someone mentioned the series in the Saturday Evening Post by Charles Lindbergh.

"It's good stuff for us older fellows," said Bruce Barton, "but I wonder about the younger generation. They may think of him as a contemporary of Grover Cleveland."

John Wheeler

It was shortly after his flight across the Atlantic in the Spirit of St. Louis I first met him more or less as a surprise. If he appeared in public on those days, he would attract crowds as eager as the youngsters who flocked around the stage door of the Paramount Theater and screamed when Eddie Fisher came out. The bobby soxers of that period would try to cut buttons off the famous flier's clothes and tear swatches from his sleeves.

Martin Egan, a distinguished banker with J. P. Morgan, invited me for lunch and had the young pilot with him. He was diffident, modest, and retiring. Graciously and perhaps reluctantly, he gave me his autograph for my young daughter. Later, when she entered a contest run by a fountain-pen company, she finished third, winning a pair of rabbits or something, because she was the only competitor who had this rare gem. I wonder what has become of it now?

Ever since, I have known him, but never well. I doubt if anyone does. Probably his family. There are a couple of little stories I would like to tell about him. After he completed his flight to Paris, everyone wanted to hire him, and he couldn't step out to wash his hands but what somebody would shove a contract under his nose and stick a pen in his hand. Mr. Hearst asked him to call at his magnificent ranch, San Simeon. While the flier was waiting for the newspaper publisher, he was looking at two antique globes of pure silver. As W. R. walked in, he noticed this and said:

"Those are nice, aren't they?" Lindbergh agreed. Then his host handed him a contract. It provided for a down payment of $500,000 and a liberal percentage of the proceeds. One of the whereas clauses called for the pilot to play himself in a movie.

"It ought to make you at least a million," suggested Mr. Hearst. The young man shook his head. "No," he replied. "I am not an actor. I am a flier and that's my business."

"Throw it in the fire then," answered the publisher, pointing to a big grate. Mr. Lindbergh remarked this wouldn't be polite. Mr. Hearst insisted, and that was the end of the project. The next day a messenger arrived with a bulky package for the pilot. In it were the two silver globes, a present from the man whose contract he had rejected. We saw them in his house in Darien, Conn., one night we had dinner there, although he, himself, never told me the story. These are now in a St. Louis museum, a present from him. They are said to be worth about $50,000.

I had known about this incident for years and was sharpening it up in my memory. Sitting next to Lowell Thomas at the Dutch Treat the other day, I asked him about it.

"Sure," he said much to my disappointment. "Deac Lyman printed it in his introductory article in the Post."

I looked it up and found it pretty well buried. Several people I asked hadn't seen it. Since it is as much my anecdote as anyone else's, I decided to use it anyway.

The Lindberghs live in a remote section of Darien on the shore of Long Island Sound. He sent me directions how to get to our destination. These started by instructing me to set my speedometer at zero. Then he gave me the exact mileage from one check point to another as if we were making a long flight. We hit it right on the nose, as he did Le Bourget in Paris. When he came to see us, though, my road plan was a little sketchy, and he wound up seven miles off course in Danbury which was entirely my fault.

He neither smokes nor drinks. Sometimes, he will toy with a glass of sherry, using it for decoration. In conclusion, I admit this is not a funny column, but neither is Lindbergh a funny guy. He's a great one, though.

B&O's New Museum Shows Model Of Local Division

The model railroad reproduction of the Cumberland Division was one of the feature exhibits at the opening of the Baltimore and Ohio Transportation Museum last Thursday in Baltimore's Mt. Clare shops area. It was at this point that American commercial railroading began and the first tickets were sold to rail passengers in America in 1830. It is now the oldest railroad station in the world. Here Peter Cooper built his Tom Thumb, the first locomotive to be constructed and operated on a standard gauge railroad in this country.

The Mt. Clare roundhouse is a 22-side polygon with a diameter top of 240 feet and a height to cupola top of 123 feet. In this spacious interior will be housed not fewer than eleven locomotives that mark the development of motive power on the B & O.

The roundhouse also houses the famous collection of wooden models of experimental locomotives that were constructed as early as the 18th Century, and a collection of road and trail vehicles beginning with a centuries-old Mexican example cart and including a fine example of the Conestoga Wagon.

The building adjoining the roundhouse contains the smaller exhibits of the B & O's famous collection. These include its unrivaled show of railroad lanterns, and its beautiful bridge models beginning with the original wooden types erected on the B & O in 1829, and continuing to the massive steel type erected over the Great Kanawha River at Point Pleasant, W. Va., in 1947.

Examples of the earliest rail, consisting of a strap of iron nailed to wooden stringers, and of the other types of rail used during the B & O's 125 years, are shown. Prominent among the other displays is the series of oil paintings that describe the high points of the B & O's first 100 years.

Onetime Resident Credited With Flag Code Adoption

A native of Cumberland has had more to do than any other individual with the establishment of the National Flag Code which prescribes uniform regulations for proper display and respectful usage of the Stars and Stripes on such holidays as the Fourth of July and at all other times.

He is Major Garland W. Powell, now director of the Florida University radio station WRUF at Gainesville, Fla. He is a brother of Mrs. Orville L. Shirley and Virgil C. Powell, Cumberland, and of Col. F. Egerton Powell, Cambridge.

While director of the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion in the 1920s, Major Powell enlisted 144 patriotic and civic organizations in a move to promote a standard flag code. Up to that time there was no national flag etiquette and there was widespread confusion as to how to use and show respect for the flag.

President Warren G. Harding threw his support to Major Powell's endeavors and ordered the flag experts of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps to lend their assistance.

On June 14, 1923 Powell presided over a national conference in Washington and a permanent Flag Committee was named with the Cumberlander as national chairman. At a second conference May 15, 1924 today's Flag Code was adopted. It is the guide for all branches of the armed services and is used by organizations all over the country.

It was not until 1942 however, that the flag code that resulted from Major Powell's initiative was adopted officially by Congress.

Powell is one of the charter members of Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, and was its first commander.

Parnell Masters A's For 20th Time, 10-2

PHILADELPHIA, July 5 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox shelled two Philadelphia Athletics pitchers for eight runs in the first inning today and then coasted home behind the sixth pitching of Lefty Mel Parnell for a 10-2 victory.

Parnell, who now owns a 20-4 lifetime record against the A's, got all the cushion he needed in the first frame when the Red Sox jumped on Carl Scheib and Marion Fricano.

Cubs Recall Willis

CHICAGO, July 5 (INS)—The Chicago Cubs brought up pitcher Jim Willis from their Springfield, Mass., farm team of the International League.

In exchange for Willis, the Cubs sold right-hander Sheldon Jones to Springfield. Jones, who has pitched 39 innings in 22 games for the Cubs this season, had a none won, two lost record.

Willis spent the spring training season with the Cubs. He is a right-hander who pitched for Shreveport of the Texas League last year.

Fairview Turns Back Patterson Creek, 10-8

Fairview defeated Patterson Creek in a Mineral County Softball League game yesterday at Fairview by the score of 10-8.

Johnny Yaider was the "big gun" for Fairview with a grand slam homer and triple to his credit. Johnny Senn paced the Patterson Creek stickers with a double and single.

Green Spring plays at Fairview Tuesday. The score: PATTERSON CREEK..... 010 310 3-8 FAIRVIEW..... 010 215-10 M. Davis and T. Leichter. L. Day and J. Yaider. HR—Yaider (Fairview).

Ancell Is Named Parsons Chief

PARSONS—Homer Ancell, retired state policeman of Philippi, was appointed chief of police for Parsons, effective July 15, by the Parsons Council at a meeting last week.

Ancell, father of James F. Ancell, parole and probation officer, has been a guard at Pruntytown Industrial School for Boys and served with the State Police in Thomas several years ago. He replaces Bill Howell, police chief here since February 1, who resigned to accept other employment.

Miss Markley Named Talent Show Winner At Penn Avenue

Jennetta Markley won the Pennsylvania Avenue playground talent contest Friday night as she played three instruments.

The winner played selections on a portable organ, a guitar and an accordion. She wins the right to represent the playground in the intra-city playground contest sponsored by the City Recreation Department.

Second place went to Bobby Sites, violinist, and third to Walter Rice and Peggy Sharpless, a duo.

Cash prizes, awarded by the playground association, were $5 for first; $3 for second and $1 for third.

Judges were Mrs. Bernice Shumaker, Mrs. Harry Goss and Mrs. Frank Moss.

Today at 10:15 a. m. a bus will leave the playground for Constitution Park where two-weeks of swimming instruction will be given to registrants at Penn Avenue playground and other playgrounds in that section. Daily for two weeks, Monday through Friday, from 11 to 12 a. m. instructions will be given at the pool park.

This afternoon the playground will have a picnic in the park while Monday at dusk movies will be shown.

Rev. Whitacre Plans To Enter Seminary

Graduated last month with an A. B. degree from Elizabethtown College, Elizabethtown, Pa., Alan Louis Whitacre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Whitacre, RDI, Ridgeley, will enter Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago, next fall to further his education in the field of christian service for the Church of the Brethren. He has received a certificate from the church in recognition of his completion of its required college level Leadership Training Course at Elizabethtown.

For the summer, Rev. Whitacre has been placed as pastor of the Mill Creek Church of the Brethren at Tryon, N. C.

Cumberland Soldier Returns From Korea

Pfc. Joseph C. Evans, son of Mrs. Edna E. Evans, 524 Frank's Lane, arrived home on a ten-day leave after being in Korea 15 months.

The ship, the General Sturgis, bearing the local soldier and other Korean veterans docked Thursday in New York.

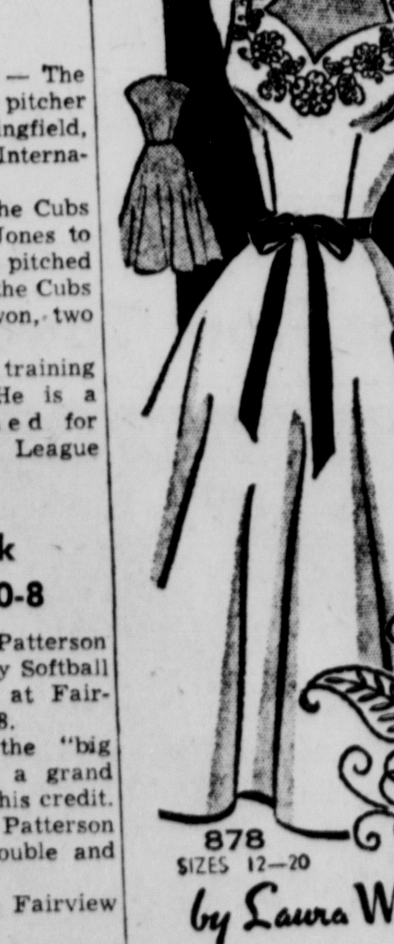

Pfc. Evans, who was with the 40th Infantry for 15 months in the war zone, will report to Fort Meade after his leave expires.

Chief Of Police

ROMNEY—The Town Council has named Luther L. Hutter chief of police succeeding Wayne Swauger, who recently resigned.

Hutter, a native of Moorefield, spent five years in the Army during World War II, and served with the Military Police for about half that time. He has been operating a service station at Moorefield.

Keyser Kiwanis Hears Reports

KEYSER—Keyser Kiwanis Club heard a report from the club's delegates who attended the annual convention of Kiwanis International in New York City at an outdoor dinner meeting recently at Markwood Church on U. S. Route 50 west of Burlington.

The convention was held a week ago in the metropolis and Keyser was represented by Harrison Fuller, president of the Keyser club; Gerould Klinefister and Robert Shapiro.

anyone wanted to get to the furnace, it was necessary to raise a hinged section of track at one point and remove a four-line railroad bridge at another. Otherwise it was simply a matter of shoveling coal. About that same time, Don had another pet cat. He discovered this one had a special taste for corn on the cob. But the cat couldn't keep the corn on a dish or prevent it from rolling about the floor. So Don, in his early ingenious fashion, constructed a small holder, which he mounted on a case about the size of a cigar box. As the cat ate across the corn, the cob remained stationary. When he reached the end of a row, the cat merely touched the gadget with his paw, the cob revolved, and the cat started on a new row. Don says "that cat could strip the corn from a cob about as fast as anybody."

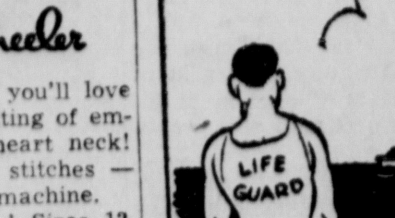

Tail story? Nope. He has pictures, and witnesses to prove it. Just like the parakeet and kitten shown here.

Wheat Growers Will Ballot About Acreage

Benson Invokes Marketing Quotas

Prospects of a record wheat supply—about 48 per cent higher than normal—have forced Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson to invoke marketing quotas on the 1954 wheat crop, according to George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee.

Farm law makes marketing quotas mandatory when the wheat supply exceeds 20 per cent of normal. Prospects of a 1.13 billion bushel crop, plus a carryover of 586 million bushels put the supply about 48 per cent above normal. Marketing quotas last previously were called for 10 years ago.

Referendum Needed
A national referendum of wheat growers must be held before acreage controls can be placed in effect. Under present law the voting deadline is July 24.

In Maryland, the PMA has conducted much preliminary work to determine quotas for the state's wheat growers. The University of Maryland Extension Service will work with the PMA to present facts on the effect of marketing quotas to farmers before they hold the referendum. Farmers then will weigh the advantages or disadvantages as they see them, and vote accordingly.

Under present law, national wheat acreage would be reduced to 55 million acres 22 million acres less than grown this year. However, the minimum quota proposed by a House Bill last week provided for a minimum quota of 66 million acres. A pending Senate bill prescribes a 62 million acre quota.

Two-Thirds Vote
If two-thirds of the farmers voting in the referendum approve quotas, farmers who plant without their acreage allotments will be eligible for government price supports on their wheat at 90 per cent of parity.

Farmers who grow less than 15 acres or 200 bushels of wheat will be free from restrictions according to present law. A Congressional proposal would raise the minimum to 25 acres or 400 bushels. In this case many Maryland growers would be free of acreage restrictions.

Although more than 200 Allegany County farmers planted some wheat in the past three years, only about 30 of them are eligible to vote in the referendum because they seeded at least 15 acres each year. The voting will take place at the PMA office, 37 Washington Street, but the date has not yet been settled.

B&O's New Museum Shows Model Of Local Division

The model railroad reproduction of the Cumberland Division was constructed as early as the 18th Century, and a collection of road and trail vehicles beginning with a centuries-old Mexican cart and including a fine example of the Conestoga Wagon.

The building adjoining the roundhouse contains the smaller exhibits of the B & O's famous collection. These include its unrivaled show of railroad lanterns, and its beautiful bridge models beginning with the original wooden types erected on the B & O in 1829, and continuing to the massive steel type erected over the Great Kanawha River at Point Pleasant, W. Va., in 1947.

Examples of the earliest rail, consisting of a strap of iron nailed to wooden stringers, and of the other types of rail used during the B & O's 125 years, are shown. The displays is the series of oil paintings that describe the high points of the B & O's first 100 years.

Onetime Resident Credited With Flag Code Adoption

A native of Cumberland has had more to do than any other individual with the establishment of the National Flag Code which prescribes uniform regulations for proper display and respectful usage of the Stars and Stripes on such holidays as the Fourth of July and at all other times.

He is Major Garland W. Powell, now director of the Florida University radio station WRUF at Gainesville, Fla. He is a brother of Mrs. Orville L. Shirley and Virgil C. Powell, Cumberland, and of Col. F. Egerton Powell, Cambridge.

While director of the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion in the 1920s, Major Powell enlisted 144 patriotic and civic organizations in a move to promote a standard flag code. Up to that time there was no national flag etiquette and there was widespread confusion as to how to use and show respect for the flag.

President Warren G. Harding threw his support to Major Powell's endeavors and ordered the flag experts of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps to lend their assistance.

On June 14 1923 Powell presided over a national conference in Washington and a permanent Flag Committee was named with the Cumberlander as national chairman. At a second conference May

Miss Markley Named Talent Show Winner At Penn Avenue

Jennetta Markley won the Pennsylvania Avenue playground talent contest Friday night as she played three instruments.

The winner played selections on a portable organ, a guitar and an accordion. She wins the right to represent the playground in the intra-city playground contest sponsored by the City Recreation Department.

Second place went to Bobby Sites, violinist, and third to Walter Rice and Peggy Sharpless, a duo.

Cash prizes, awarded by the playground association, were $5 for first; $3 for second and $1 for third.

Judges were Mrs. Bernice Shumaker, Mrs. Harry Goss and Mrs. Frank Moss.

Today at 10:15 a. m. a bus will leave the playground for Constitution Park where two-weeks of swimming instruction will be given to registrants at Penn Avenue playground and other playlots in that section. Daily for two weeks, Monday through Friday, from 11 to 12 a. m. instructions will be given at the pool park.

This afternoon the playground will have a picnic in the park while Monday at dusk movies will be shown.

At 7 p. m. Wednesday a live pet show will be staged with ribbons going to the largest, smallest, most unusual, longest hair and shortest hair entries.

Keyser Kiwanis Hears Reports

KEYSER—Keyser Kiwanis Club heard a report from the club's delegates who attended the annual convention of Kiwanis International in New York City at an outdoor dinner meeting recently at Markwood Church on U. S. Route 50 west of Burlington.

The convention was held a week ago in the metropolis and Keyser was represented by Harrison Fuller, president of the Keyser club; Gerould Klinefister and Robert Shapiro.

Plans were made to have a picnic at Ted Kessler's place on Patterson Creek, near Minco Park on July 15, at which wives and families of the local club will participate. A steak dinner will be served in the late afternoon.

Former Cumberlander

anyone wanted to get to the furnace, it was necessary to raise a hinged section of track at one point and remove a four-line railroad bridge at another. Otherwise it was simply a matter of shoveling coal.

About that same time, Don had another pet cat. He discovered this one had a special taste for corn on the cob. But the cat couldn't keep the corn on a dish or prevent it from rolling about the floor. So Don, in his early ingenious fashion, constructed a small holder, which he mounted on an axle-like arrangement in a case about the size of a cigar box. As the cat ate across the corn cob and removed the kernels, the cob remained stationary. When he reached the end of a row, the cat merely touched the gadget with his paw, the cob revolved, and the cat started on a new row. Don says "that cat could strip the corn from a cob about as fast as anybody."

Tall story? Nope. He has pictures, and witnesses to prove it. Just like the parakeet and kitten shown here.

Area Traffic Accidents Mar Holiday Weekend

Girl, 12, Victim Of Only Fatal Holiday Crash

Maysville Child Dies In Hospital

A 12-year-old girl was fatally injured in the only serious traffic accident to occur in the Tri-State area over the Fourth of July weekend.

Linda Lee Rohrbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lark Rohrbaugh of Maysville, W. Va., died yesterday morning in Potomac Valley Hospital at Keyser.

West Virginia State Police said she sustained a crushed chest when her father's car rolled over on U. S. 220 five miles south of Moorefield Saturday night.

Linda Lee's parents and her younger brother and sister also were injured in the accident. A 16-year-old Petersburg boy was charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

GIVEN PROMOTION — Leon P. Whitfield, 731 Hilltop Drive, has been promoted to Corporal in the Marine Air Detachment, Naval Air Station, Willow Grove, Pa. A graduate of LaSalle High School, he entered the service in March 1952. His wife, the former Anna K. Davis, lives at the Hilltop Drive address.

10 Hospitalized, 5 Others Hurt In Sunday Mishaps

Crashes Occur On Major Highways

Ten persons were hospitalized here last night following automobile accidents which took place as holiday weekend traffic clogged highways in the Tri-State Area.

In Sacred Heart Hospital following a collision on U. S. Route 40 at Polish Mountain were:

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buechner, 3253 Watkins Road, Columbus, Ohio, both of whom were admitted for observation and X-rays and were in "fairly good condition."

Mr. and Mrs. Edward McKenzie, 1328 Overlook Drive, Weirton, W. Va., who were admitted for further observation. McKenzie had a leg injury, but he and his wife were both in "good" condition.

Hospital attaches said they understood the McKenzies were driving west toward Cumberland when their car collided with the Buechner vehicle, which was going east. Buechner is a soldier stationed at Fort George G. Meade.

In the same hospital following another accident on U. S. 40 at Town Hill last night were:

James Monahan Jr., 2712 Kirkwood Place, West Hyattsville, who was in "fairly good" condition with chest injuries and a leg injury.

John Meese, of Nikep, a passenger in the Monahan car, who was in "fairly good" condition with an injury of the left arm and brush burns.

Nicholas Godfrey, 10, of 2005 North Beall Street, Kokomo, Ind., who was in "fair" condition with a head injury.

Monahan's wife, Helen, and son, James III, 2, were treated at the hospital and discharged.

Monahan reportedly was driving east when his car collided with a vehicle driven by the Godfrey boy's mother, which was traveling in the opposite direction. Mrs. Godfrey and another passenger escaped injury.

State Police Trooper First Class William F. Baker investigated both accidents.

Three other persons were admitted to Memorial Hospital following a two-car collision early last night on West Virginia State Route 28 five miles north of Romney. They are:

Henry Shockey, 21, Berlin, Pa., in "good" condition with injuries of the face and left knee.

James Shaffer, 22-year-old Narrows Park, Marine, in "good" condition with injuries of the chest and spine. He was a passenger in the car driven by Shockey.

Adam Ochociensky, Carmichael, Pa., in "good" condition with injuries of the chest and nose.

Also treated were Ochociensky's wife, Dorothy, and their two daughters, Sandra, 6, and Barbara, 2.

Holiday Closes As Rain Lowers Temperature

After the thermometer edged to a weekend official high of 91 degrees yesterday afternoon, summer showers put a damper on the closing hours of the two-day holiday period and the temperature dived some 20 degrees by early evening.

Robert R. Golden, local weather observer, reported that the high yesterday at Constitution Park was 91, the low 60 and the 8 p. m. reading 71 degrees. Rainfall was measured at .24 inch.

Two Rainbows
After the early evening shower ended, Golden and many other Cumberland residents observed two rainbows in the sky to the east. One was described as a "double" rainbow.

Holiday weekend traffic in and around Cumberland was at its peak Friday night as thousands left the city and again late yesterday afternoon and evening as these thousands returned from visits to resorts, home towns and many other places.

A 12-year-old Grant County (W. Va.) girl was fatally injured Saturday night in a crash near Moorefield and died yesterday morning in Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser. She was the lone area fatality.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 persons gathered at Constitution Park during the day yesterday. Although just about every table in the park was in use, the place was not nearly as jammed as it was Independence Day when an estimated 7,000 put in an appearance.

Fireworks Displayed
Others crowded in Saturday night for the fireworks display and probably as many as 10,000 were in the park by that time. Thousands viewed the fireworks from many vantage points about the city.

The aerial display here, discharged under the direction of Bert Caldera of Mt. Savage, was sponsored by Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, and the City Recreation Department. Merchants and others made donations towards the cost. The Mayor and Council has agreed to make up any loss sustained.

Linda Lee was a native of Grant County. Surviving, besides her parents and her brother and sister, are another sister, Carolena; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Reel, Maysville, and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rohrbaugh, Jordan Run.

The body is at the Schaeffer Funeral Home, Petersburg.

Two Other Mishaps
Two persons were injured in other accidents over the weekend.

Mrs. Genevieve Stewart, 39, of 30 State Street, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital early Saturday morning after the car in which she was riding struck a utility pole on Kelly Boulevard. She was in "fairly good" condition last night.

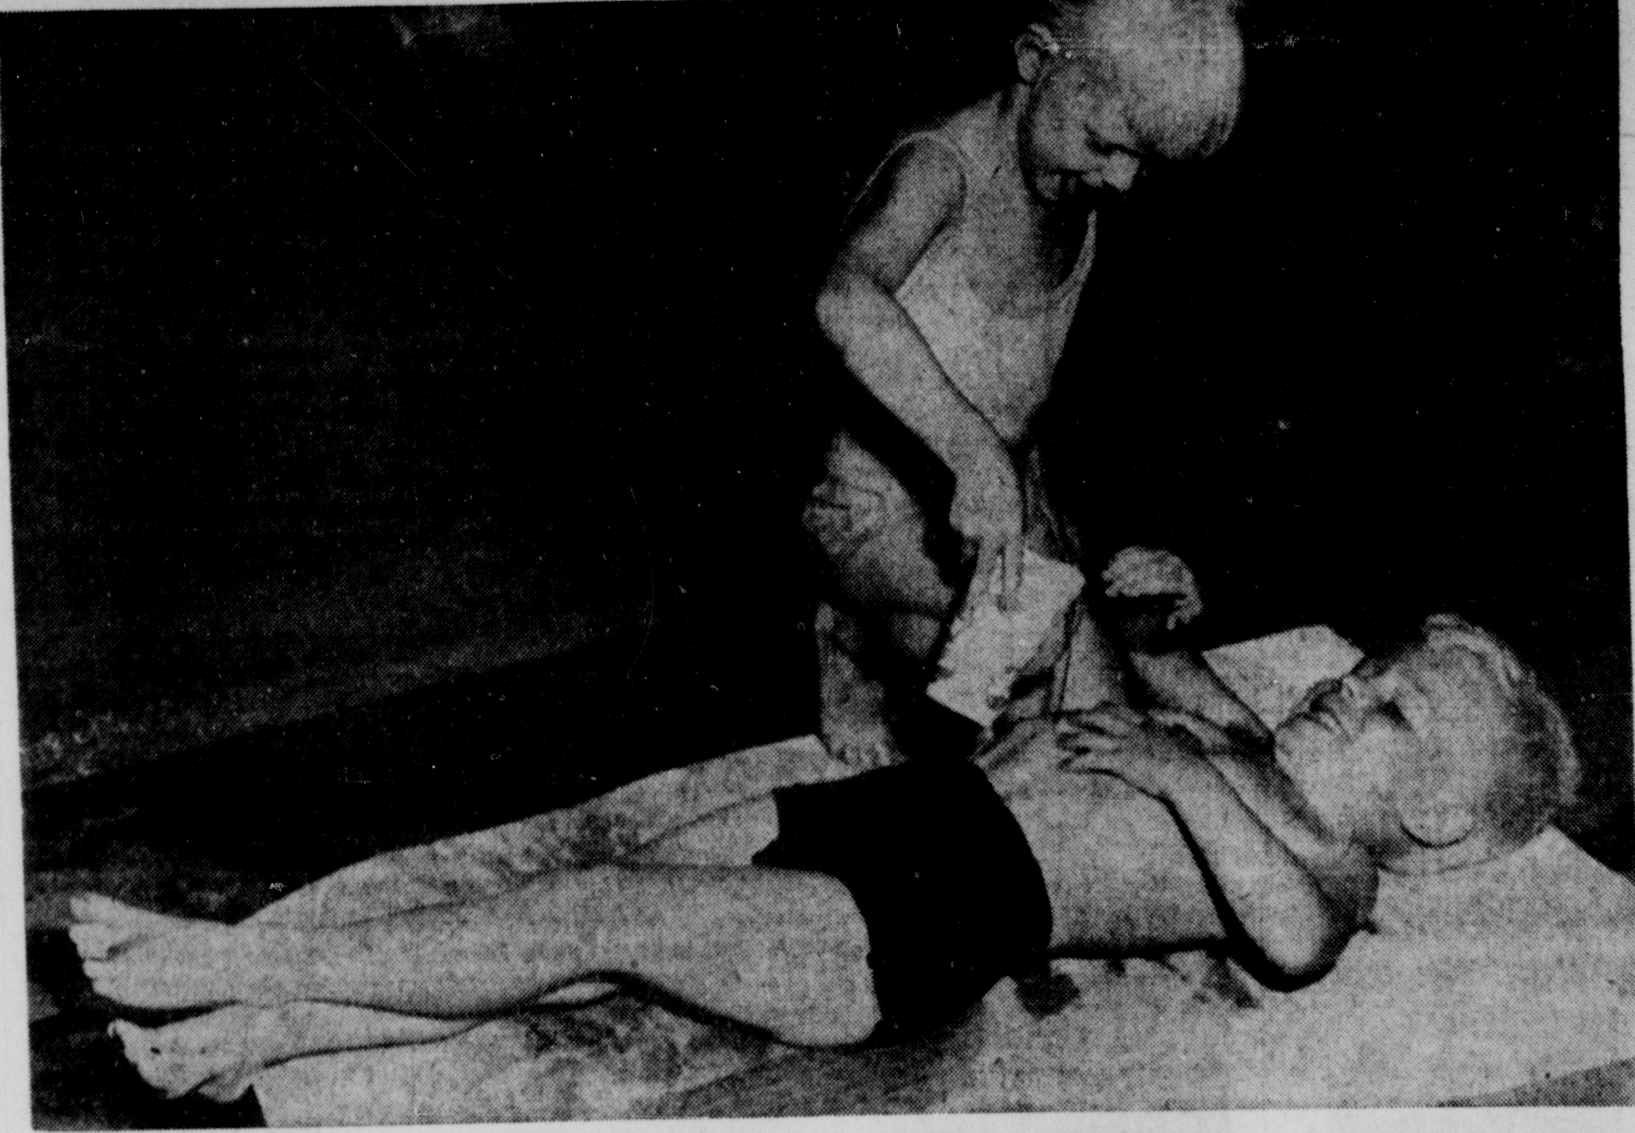

Mrs. Stewart's husband, Cheston A. Stewart, told police an unidentified car crowded him off the street. His car jumped the curb and hit the pole, but the other car failed to stop.

Leo Keyser Jr., 11, of Oldtown, was admitted to the same hospital late Friday night after he reportedly rode his bicycle in front of a car driven by James Hupp, 170 North Centre Street, on the West Virginia side of the interstate bridge at Oldtown. He was discharged from the hospital Saturday.

Mitchell Is Promoted By Allegheny Airlines
William J. Mitchell has been appointed assistant to the vice president of Traffic and Sales of Allegheny Airlines.

Mitchell, formerly regional sales manager of the Pittsburgh district for Allegheny, joined the company's engineering and research division in 1945, he transferred to the Sales Department of the Air Transport Division.

Home From Cuba
City Attorney and Mrs. Thomas B. Finan and two sons, Tommy and Timmy, 532 Washington Street, have returned from Havana, Cuba. En route they visited in Miami, Fla.

Heat Wave? Shucks!

David Mills says he doesn't mind a bit as sister Rosa Ann douses him with cool water at Constitution Park Pool. As a remedy for overheated epidermis, it can't be beaten. The tots are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Mills, 421 Broadway.

Soil Program Gets Inspection

Local employees of the United States Soil Conservation Service are awaiting a written report on the annual inspection of the Allegheny County activities of the agency.

Last Wednesday and Thursday two representatives of the Upper Darby, Pa., regional office of USSC were here to check the scope and success of the program. They are Robert B. Thornton, conservation specialist, and John Tinivell, engineering specialist.

The specialists visited various farms around the county all day Wednesday and for a time Thursday morning. Then, according to Martin M. Gordon, soil conservation aid, they spent a few hours in the Soil Conservation office at 37 Washington Street checking records and the manner in which they are kept.

Thornton and Tinivell left without submitting any written report and recommendations and Gordon said he expects these sometime this week.

Staggers Leads Holiday Parade In Martinsburg

Congressman Harley O. Staggers of Keyser observed the Independence Day holiday by serving as grand marshal of the third annual Fourth of July parade sponsored jointly by all of the veterans' organizations in Martinsburg, W. Va.

Another participant in the same parade was Marine Cpl. Herschel W. Williams of Clarksburg, a Congressional Medal of Honor winner.

The parade, which took some 45 minutes to pass the reviewing stand, included bands and drum and bugle corps from Martinsburg and other Berkeley County points, Hagerstown, Chambersburg, Pa., and Winchester, Va., costumed members of the Improved Order of Red Men from Williamsport, Martinsburg bathing beauties, firemen, horses and ponies.

Today's Sermonette

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord . . . Psalms 33:12.

For God And Country

By REV. W. W. PATTERSON

The love of country, associated with numerous patriotic motives and acts, including even the paying of taxes, is considered an essential requirement of citizenship if our American way of life is to be preserved and strengthened. To the degree that people love their country and are willing to sacrifice for it, we can say that the morale of the nation is good, and to that extent its future is secure.

However, a patriotism based on mere love of country, however good that may be in itself, may not be sufficient to steel the souls of men to pay the price of freedom in times of national emergency. A more fundamental love must come first; the love of God and a profound respect for His purpose in the life of the nation. Our founding fathers were well aware of this fact and they wrote it into the basic law of the land. This means that true patriotism is dependent upon true and profound religious faith.

When we put God first, we must be willing to allow his righteousness to pass judgment upon the nation and its people. Indeed, the events of history prove that whether we will it or not, God's judgment is visited upon us, and we cannot evade our divine responsibilities. No country is safe, however great the patriotism of its people, if it disregards or ignores the fundamental moral and spiritual laws of God.

Communism will fail not only because, being totalitarian, it makes true communal or community welfare impossible, but what is more important, because it has ruled God out. They might just as well try to keep the grass from turning green in the springtime.

germs of its own death, that we ourselves do not become infected. There are many who fear that, in at least some areas of our national life, this may already have happened. There is only one effective way to fight the atheistic ideology of communism and that is to make America so morally and spiritually strong that no pagan philosophy would have a chance to survive in the minds of our people. Thus, it will serve the purposes of freedom for the guardians of democracy to suggest that the church is subversive, or that some of its most devout leaders belong to a "pink fringe." More than ever today, we need the stability that comes from an abiding and rugged faith in God and the church. Having this we need not fear what communism can do to us.

Blessed indeed is that nation whose God is the Lord; the nation that has a sincere concern for the moral and spiritual welfare of its people; a nation that seeks not to profit at the expense of human degradation, or to encourage in any way, social, moral or economic evils which undermine character and make the hearts of its citizens to mourn. Blessed is the nation that causes its people to believe in One who has told us that if we will put first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, that all necessary physical and material blessings will be added unto us.

The church has a great part to play in keeping our country free not only in terms of outward national security, but more vitally in terms of an inner sense of freedom which removes fear and promotes brotherhood and good will. It must deny to no man the rights that are his under our Constitution but must go beyond the privileges which are his under the sovereignty of God. Jesus Christ stands at the doorway of a Kingdom today, through which if we pass, we cannot help becoming a much better citizen of the land we call America.

Cumberland Lions To Hear Quartet

A quartet will entertain members of the Cumberland Lions Club on Wednesday at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA during the weekly luncheon meeting of the organization.

The July meeting of the Board of Directors will be held Friday at 7:30 p. m. in Central YMCA and all officers, directors and committee chairmen are urged to attend.

Rotary To Hear Smith

Charles G. Smith, chairman of the local Ground Observers Corps, will be guest speaker tomorrow at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club slated at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA. His topic of discussion will be "G.O.C."

Motor Overheats

East Side firemen extinguished a blaze in the motor of a cooling system on a meat box at Ben's Grocery, 231 Independence Street, at 9:45 p. m. yesterday. There was no damage.

Weather

Showers yesterday afternoon and early evening lowered thermometers to a more comfortable reading but the prediction for today is for continued warm weather. A few scattered thundershowers are considered likely today. Yesterday's official high at Constitution Park was 91 and low 60 with the reading at 8 p. m. 71. There was .24 inch rain.

Council To Meet Today At 10 A. M.

Today's meeting of the Mayor and Council will be held at 10 a. m. under an order passed last Monday.

The order was sponsored by Mayor Roy W. Eves at the suggestion of Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan.

Mayor Eves said the time was changed from 2 p. m. because the afternoon meetings failed in their purpose.

The regular meetings were switched to the afternoon in April, Mayor Eves said, to provide additional time for executive sessions and to allow commissioners more time to prepare orders.

He said that in spite of the additional time, orders are prepared within a few minutes of the time of the formal meetings, so that there is not sufficient time for other commissioners to become acquainted with the business to be transacted.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, street commissioner, dissented when the order was passed, saying the reasons which caused the switch in time still hold good.

Margie Frey Wins Talent Competition

Margie Frey, 13-year old singer, who lives at 126 Karns Avenue, was adjudged winner in the Mt. Royal Playground Talent Show held in the City Hall auditorium.

Ginny Killen, a dancer, won second prize. Third were two sisters, Sue and Sara Bloss, who sang a duet. Honorable mention awards went to Betsy Ebert and Judy Speis, both of whom sang. Judges were Carole Reith and Dolores Gillard.

Miss Vera Bestwick, playground director, reports that a number of special events are planned this week. There will be a hat show at the playground at 2 p. m. Wednesday. On the same day, about 9 p. m., movies will be shown. Thursday, between noon and 1 p. m. a picnic lunch will be served.

Returns From Hospital

Mrs. Anna M. Orr, wife of County Commissioner James Orr, 544 Fairview Avenue, who was a patient in Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, for ten days, has returned to her home.

Youth Plunges 70 Feet Down Elevator Shaft

James Fazenbaker Is Severely Injured

A Westernport youth, working at a temporary summer job, was injured Friday afternoon when he fell about 70 feet down an elevator shaft at the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

Admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, was James Fazenbaker, about 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fazenbaker of Ross Street in Westernport.

He was reported to have sustained several broken bones in his right foot, some fractured ribs and bruises. X-rays have been taken to determine if he suffered any internal injuries.

His condition yesterday was reported by attaches as "satisfactory." Fazenbaker, who will be a senior this fall at Bruce High School, was working on construction at the Luke plant when the accident occurred about 3 p. m.

He and three other workmen were said to have been on a temporary elevator and were preparing to descend to the cellar floor from the top floor.

Fazenbaker leaned over to signal the elevator operator that they were ready to descend. The elevator did not move immediately and Fazenbaker, who was holding on to an overhead cross beam, again leaned over and signalled.

Meanwhile the elevator dropped from beneath him and had descended some distance when he lost his hold and fell to the cellar floor. His fall was broken several times along the way.

The operator noticed him falling and immediately stopped the elevator but Fazenbaker fell on to the ground. He was given medical attention at the dispensary by Dr. Robert Bess, plant physician, and rushed to the hospital in Fredlock's ambulance with Dr. Bess accompanying him.

Hercules Powder Promotes Buce

William A. Buce has been appointed assistant works manager of Hercules Powder Company's Bacchus, Utah, works, it was announced yesterday.

Buce succeeds Joseph B. Talley, recently named works manager at Bacchus. A native of Birmingham, Ala., Buce is a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He became associated with Hercules in 1940 as a chemist at the Hercules Experiment Station near Wilmington, and served in the same capacity at Kenil, N. J., before becoming chief chemist at Carthage, Mo. He has served in supervisory capacities at Hercules, Cal., and Bessemer, Ala. Buce was powder line supervisor at Bessemer until his appointment to Bacchus was announced.

It Isn't The Heat, It's Copperheads

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—It isn't the heat, it's the copperheads.

Two Eastern Panhandle men were bitten last week—one had no ill effects, the other went to a hospital.

Marshal Michael, son of the Morgan County assessor, was helping bale hay. He was bitten by a copperhead but nothing happened. The general opinion was the snake had exhausted its venom biting at the hay as it was raked.

State Trooper Lyle Woodell was resting on a blanket in front of his camp at Cacapon State Park. A copperhead bit him in the arm. He was brought to Morgan Memorial Hospital in a critical condition, but is expected to recover.

Circus Feature

Bill Bentlage, one of the many clowns with Tom Pack's Circus, is shown with his quadruped friend, Skipper. The two entertainers will be seen in the circus at Fort Hill High School Stadium July 25. It will be sponsored by Ali Ghan Temple and performances are set for 2:30 and 8 p. m. Advance tickets may be purchased at the Shrine Recorder's Office, South Centre Street.

Area Traffic Accidents Mar Holiday Weekend

Girl, 12, Victim Of Only Fatal Holiday Crash

Maysville Child Dies In Hospital

A 12-year-old girl was fatally injured in the only serious traffic accident to occur in the Tri-State area over the Fourth of July weekend.

Linda Lee Rohrbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lark Rohrbaugh of Maysville, W. Va., died yesterday morning in Potomac Valley Hospital at Keyser.

West Virginia State Police said she sustained a crushed chest when her father's car rolled over on U. S. 220 five miles south of Moorefield Saturday night.

Linda Lee's parents and her younger brother and sister also were injured in the accident. A 15-year-old Petersburg boy was charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

In Potomac Valley Hospital are:

Mrs. Dorothy May (Reel) Rohrbaugh, 32, in "good" condition with multiple lacerations and abrasions.

Delvina Rohrbaugh, 7, in "fairly good" condition with neck and shoulder injuries, the extent of which had not been determined yesterday.

Larry Rohrbaugh, 4, in "fairly good" condition with under-terminated head injuries.

The father, who had only minor injuries, was not hospitalized.

State Police Cpl. C. G. Hamrick of the Moorefield detachment, said the accident occurred at 10:40 p. m. (EST) Saturday as Rohrbaugh was driving south on U. S. 220.

Hohrbaugh was in the act of passing a car driven by Bobby Jenkins, 16, of Petersburg, when the two cars sideswiped.

The Rohrbaugh car careened across the highway, smashed against an embankment and overturned in the roadway. Cpl. Hamrick said Jenkins kept on going.

The Schaeffer Ambulance Service brought the injured to the Keyser hospital, where Linda Lee died yesterday morning.

YOUTH APPREHENDED

Cpl. Hamrick said Trooper Glen Burner of the Petersburg detachment of State Police spotted Jenkins' slightly damaged car near the boy's home yesterday morning, after hearing a description of the vehicle which was involved in the crash.

Cpl. Hamrick, Burner and Trooper D. A. Burner of Moorefield went to the Jenkins home and talked to the youth. The young driver later posted $200 bond with Justice of the Peace Harry Dolan of Moorefield for a hearing next Monday on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Cpl. Hamrick said the investigation is not closed.

A funeral service will be conducted for Linda Lee tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Maysville Gospel Tabernacle, of which she was a member.

Rev. Lowell R. Rogers, pastor, will officiate and burial will be in Maysville Cemetery.

Linda Lee was a native of Grant County. Surviving, besides her parents and her brother and sister, are another sister, Carolina; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Reel, Maysville, and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rohrbaugh, Jordan Run.

The body is at the Schaeffer Funeral Home, Petersburg.

TWO OTHER MISHAPS

Two persons were injured in other accidents over the weekend.

Mrs. Genevieve Stewart, 39, of 30 State Street, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital early Saturday morning after the car in which she was riding struck a utility pole on Kelly Boulevard. She was in "fairly good" condition last night.

Mrs. Stewart's husband, Cheston A. Stewart, told police an unidentified car crowded him off the street. His car jumped the curb and hit the pole, but the other car failed to stop.

Leo Keyser Jr., 11, of Oldtown, was admitted to the same hospital late Friday night after he reportedly rode his bicycle in front of a car driven by James Hupp, 170 North Centre Street, on the West Virginia side of the interstate bridge at Oldtown. He was discharged from the hospital Saturday.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 persons gathered at Constitution Park during the day yesterday. Although just about every table in the park was in use, the place was not nearly as jammed as it was Independence Day when an estimated 7,000 put in an appearance.

Fireworks Displayed

Others crowded in Saturday night for the fireworks display and probably as many as 10,000 were in the park by that time. Thousands viewed the fireworks from many vantage points about the city.

The aerial display here, discharged under the direction of Bert Caldera of Mt. Savage, was sponsored by Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, and the City Recreation Department. Merchants and others made donations towards the cost. The Mayor and Council has agreed to make up any loss sustained.

Heat Wave? Shucks!

David Mills says he doesn't mind a bit as sister Rosa Ann douses overheated epidermis, it can't be beaten. The tots are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Mills, 421 Broadway.

Soil Program Gets Inspection

Local employees of the United States Soil Conservation Service are awaiting a written report on the annual inspection of the Allegheny County activities of the agency.

Last Wednesday and Thursday two representatives of the Upper Darby, Pa., regional office of USCS were here to check the scope and success of the program. They are Robert B. Thornton, conservation specialist, and John Tinivell, engineering specialist.

The specialists visited various farms around the county all day Wednesday and for a time Thursday morning. Then, according to Martin M. Gordon, soil conservation aid, they spent a few hours in the Soil Conservation office at 37 Washington Street checking records and the manner in which they are kept.

Thornton and Tinivell left without submitting any written report and recommendations and Gordon said he expects these sometime this week.

Staggers Leads Holiday Parade In Martinsburg

Congressman Harley O. Staggers of Keyser observed the Independence Day holiday by serving as grand marshal of the third annual Fourth of July parade sponsored jointly by all of the veterans' organizations in Martinsburg, W. Va.

Another participant in the same parade was Marine Cpl. Herschel W. Williams of Clarksburg, a Congressional Medal of Honor winner.

The parade, which took some 45 minutes to pass the reviewing stand, included bands and drum and bugle corps from Martinsburg and other Berkeley County points, Hagerstown, Chambersburg, Pa., and Winchester, Va., costumed members of the Improved Order of Red Men from Williamsport, Martinsburg bathing beauties, firemen, horses and ponies.

Today's Sermonette

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord . . . Psalms 33:12

For God And Country

By REV. W. W. PATTERSON

The love of country, associated with numerous patriotic motives and acts, including even the paying of taxes, is considered an essential requirement of citizenship if our American way of life is to be preserved and strengthened. To the degree that people love their country and are willing to sacrifice for it, we can say that the morale of the nation is good, and to that extent its future is secure.

However, a patriotism based on mere love of country, however good that may be in itself, may not be sufficient to steel the souls of men to pay the price of freedom in times of national emergency. A more fundamental love must come first; the love of God and a profound respect for His purpose in the life of the nation. Our founding fathers were well aware of this fact and they wrote it into the basic law of the land. This means that true patriotism is dependent upon true and profound religious faith.

When we put God first, we must be willing to allow His righteousness to pass judgment upon the nation and its people. Indeed, the events of history prove that whether we will it or not, God's judgment is visited upon us, and we cannot evade our divine responsibilities. No country is safe, however great the patriotism of its people, if it disregards or ignores the fundamental moral and spiritual laws of God.

Communism will fail not only because, being totalitarian, it makes true communal or community welfare impossible, but what is more important, because it has ruled God out. They might just as well try to keep the grass from turning green in the springtime.

Let America beware lest in fighting communism, which has in it the germs of its own death, that we ourselves do not become infected. There are many who fear that, in at least some areas of our national life, this may already have happened. There is only one effective way to fight the atheistic ideology of communism and that is to make America so morally and spiritually strong that no pagan philosophy would have a chance to survive in the minds of our people. Thus, it serves the purposes of democracy for the guardians of democracy to suggest that the church is subversive, or that some of its most devout leaders belong to a "pink fringe." More than ever today, we need the stability that comes from an abiding and rugged faith in God and the church. Having this we need not fear what communism can do to us.

Blessed indeed is that nation whose God is the Lord; the nation that has a sincere concern for the moral and spiritual welfare of its people; a nation that seeks not to profit at the expense of human degradation, or to encourage in any way, social, moral or economic evils which undermine character and make the hearts of its citizens to mourn. Blessed is the nation that causes its people to believe in One who has told us that if we will put first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, that all necessary physical and material blessings will be added unto us.

The church has a great part to play in keeping our country free not only in terms of outward national security, but more vitally in terms of an inner sense of freedom which removes fear and promotes brotherhood and good will. It must deny to no man the rights that are his under our Constitution but must go beyond the Constitution in giving to him the privileges which are his under the sovereignty of God. Jesus Christ stands at the doorway of a Kingdom today, through which if we pass, we cannot help becoming a much better citizen of the land we call America.

Let America beware lest in fighting communism, which has in it the

Council To Meet Today At 10 A. M.

Today's meeting of the Mayor and Council will be held at 10 a. m. under an order passed last Monday.

The order was sponsored by Mayor Roy W. Eves at the suggestion of Finance Commissioner William V. Keegan.

Mayor Eves said the time was changed from 2 p. m. because the afternoon meetings failed in their purpose.

The regular meetings were switched to the afternoon in April, Mayor Eves said, to provide additional time for executive sessions and to allow commissioners more time to prepare orders.

He said that in spite of the additional time, orders are prepared within a few minutes of the time of the formal meetings, so that there is not sufficient time for other commissioners to become acquainted with the business to be transacted.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, street commissioner, dissented when the order was passed, saying the reasons which caused the switch in time still hold good.

Margie Frey Wins Talent Competition

Margie Frey, 13-year old singer, who lives at 126 Karns Avenue, was adjudged winner in the Mt. Royal Playground Talent Show held in the City Hall auditorium.

Ginny Killen, a dancer, won second prize. Third were two sisters, Sue and Sara Bloss, who sang a duet. Honorable mention awards went to Betsy Ebert and Judy Speis, both of whom sang. Judges were Carole Reith and Dolores Gillard.

Miss Vera Bestwick, playground director, reports that a number of special events are planned this week. There will be a hat show at the playground at 2 p. m. Wednesday. On the same day, about 9 p. m., movies will be shown. Thursday, between noon and 1 p. m., a picnic lunch will be served.

Returns From Hospital

Mrs. Anna M. Orr, wife of County Commissioner James Orr, 544 Fairview Avenue, who was a patient in Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, for ten days, has returned to her home.

Youth Plunges 70 Feet Down Elevator Shaft

James Fazenbaker Is Severely Injured

A Westernport youth, working at a temporary summer job, was injured Friday afternoon when he fell about 70 feet down an elevator shaft at the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

Admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, was James Fazenbaker, about 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fazenbaker of Ross Street in Westernport.

He was reported to have sustained several broken bones in his right foot, some fractured ribs and bruises. X-rays have been taken to determine if he suffered any internal injuries.

His condition yesterday was reported by attaches as "satisfactory." Fazenbaker, who will be a senior this fall at Bruce High School, was working on construction at the Luke plant when the accident occurred about 3 p. m.

He and three other workmen were said to have been on a temporary elevator and were preparing to descend to the cellar floor from the top floor.

Fazenbaker leaned over to signal the elevator operator that they were ready to descend. The elevator did not move immediately and Fazenbaker, who was holding on to an overhead cross beam, again leaned over and signalled.

Meanwhile the elevator dropped from beneath him and had descended some distance when he lost his hold and fell to the cellar floor. His fall was broken several times along the way.

The operator noticed him falling and immediately stopped the elevator but Fazenbaker fell on to the ground. He was given medical attention at the dispensary by Dr. Robert Bess, plant physician, and rushed to the hospital in Fredlock's ambulance with Dr. Bess accompanying him.

Hercules Powder Promotes Buce

William A. Buce has been appointed assistant works manager of Hercules Powder Company's Bacchus, Utah, works. It was announced yesterday.

Buce succeeds Joseph B. Talley, recently named works manager at Bacchus. A native of Birmingham, Ala., Buce is a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He became associated with Hercules in 1940 as a chemist at the Hercules Experiment Station near Wilmington, and served in the same capacity at Kenil, N. J., before becoming chief chemist at Carthage, Mo. He has served in supervisory capacities at Hercules, Cal., and Bessemer, Ala. Buce was powder line supervisor at Bessemer until his appointment to Bacchus was announced.

It Isn't The Heat, It's Copperheads

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., July 5 (AP)—It isn't the heat, it's the copperheads.

Two Eastern Panhandle men were bitten last week—one had no ill effects, the other went to a hospital.

Marshal Michael, son of the Morgan County assessor, was helping bale hay. He was bitten by a copperhead but nothing happened. The general opinion was the snake had exhausted its venom biting at the hay as it was raked.

State Trooper Lyle Woodrell was resting on a blanket in front of his camp at Cacapon State Park. A copperhead bit him in the arm. He was brought to Morgan Memorial Hospital in a critical condition, but is expected to recover.

Former Cumberlander Writes Latest 'How To' Article: Making Sports Car From Towel Bars, Faucet Handles

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT

It might seem like a long jump from cats and parakeets to sports cars and magazine writing, but it was not too much for Donald M. Close, son of Mrs. Sarah A. Close, 308 Harrison Street.

Donald, who is now employed as a photo engraver in Petersburg, Virginia, has always been interested in things mechanical as well as in small birds and animals. As a youngster, growing up in Cumberland, he was always working with gadgets of one kind or another and always managed to have at least one stray cat or other similar pet about the house. His father, the late James A. Close, who was a long-time printer for The Times and Alleghenian Company once said of him, "If there is a new way of doing something, Donald will probably find it."

Donald has borne out this prediction many times, always to his personal satisfaction, his personal profit, and most times, to the great interest and pleasure of others.

Writes Magazine Article

In the current issue of Auto Age there is a magazine article written and illustrated by Don, telling how he built a sports car, and giving pointers on the method used. The red sports car is unique and was so attractive, that it was used in full color as part of the front cover of the magazine.

Almost simultaneously with the publication of this magazine article, Richmond and Petersburg, Virginia newspapers carried feature stories and pictures about Don's pet kitten and parakeet, who do all sorts of tricks and get

Kitten And Parakeet

Cat and Canary? No, kitten and parakeet. These two pets, just as friendly as they appear to be, belong to Donald M. Close, son of Mrs. James A. Close, 308 Harrison Street. Billy, the parakeet, has a toy motorcycle on which he rides when Kitty's back isn't available.

along very amicably together. In fact they have become great pals and do not seem to know that birds don't like cats or that cats most always eat little birds. Don says, "Sometimes ignorance is bliss" and points to the kitten and parakeet as proof.

Not So Dumb

But then Billy the parakeet isn't so ignorant. Maybe it's the cat that's dumb. Billy rides the kitten's back all around the house, eats with him, calls him by name, scolds and "carries on" no little bit, especially when the kitten wants to sleep and Billy wants to ride. He can't be too dumb either, because he has always admired Don's red sports car. So Don bought a little red toy auto which Billy perches in. The auto wouldn't run by itself, so Don took home a little wind-up three-wheeled motorcycle. Billy perches on the motorcycle to spin around the room. Likes to go real fast too.

The two pets really are inseparable and Don says they are a lot of company. Originally the parakeet and kitten belonged to Don's cousin, Mrs. William M. Weatherholt of Petersburg, but when both adopted Donald, he took them home to his bachelor apartment and taught them to live together. The three of them seem to do all right.

As to Don's sports car, he built it of everything and anything he could use. It is streamlined, modern and "ultra" in design. He used aluminum saucepans for headlights, water faucet handles for locks to hold the rear-mounted spare tire, towel rods for the grill, sections of old truck tires as molds for his fenders, suit case straps and buckles to latch down the hood, and numerous other innovations.

The magazine article which he wrote and illustrated has resulted in requests for more magazine articles and also in a large quantity of fan mail, asking for plans and specifications and making other queries.

Don, who works a full work week and often overtime at his trade as a photo engraver, says he hasn't time to do much else, after he takes care of his job, his pets, and follows his other hobby of photography.

But it has always been that way with him.

Also A Musician

When he was in Fort Hill High School, where he graduated, he played in the band, carried papers, and still found time to build one of the most elaborate electric train layouts ever assembled here. It took up the entire cellar of his home on Harrison Street, and when
